BYLAWS:

1. The prizes in the accompanying schedule are open to all competitors, and any exhibit not shown in conformity with these rules will be ineligible for competition.

2. No labels to be affixed to exhibits without the approval of the committee, who may remove any affixed without such permission having been granted.

3. Bona-fide exhibitors and necessary assistants only will be admitted on the morning of the show, and all exhibits must be in the building before 10 a.m., and must be staged before 12 o'clock noon, at which hour all persons, except those retained by the committee, must withdraw.

4. The Exhibition will be closed at 9.30 p.m. on the second evening, when all persons except the committee and stewards must retire. Afterwards exhibitors will be admitted on production of exhibitors' passes, and will be allowed to remove exhibits on the written order of the secretary or a member of the council. (Note.—This law will be rigorously enforced).

5. All exhibits, after being delivered to the officers of the society, shall be considered pro tem. the property of the society, and shall not be removed till the close of the Exhibition.

6. The societies will take every reasonable care of all exhibits in their possession, but will not be held responsible for any damage done thereto.

7. Non-subscribers to the Societies will be allowed to compete on payment of 2s 6d for each entry when the prize is 10s or over in value; under that amount the entry will be 1s. Children's class free.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE. —Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—Times, July 13, 1864.

Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE "is prescribed by scores of orthodox practitioners. Of course it would not be thus singularly popular did it not supply a want and fill a place."—Medical Times, January 12, 1866.

Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the best and most certain remedy in coughs, colds, asthma, consumption, neuralgia, rheumatism, &c.

Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE. Caution: None genuine without the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne" on the Government stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle. NO EXPERIMENTS with our life. Good health is too highly important to permit experiments to be made upon us with the number of crude untried medicines that you are constantly asked to take. ABRAHAM'S PILLS have been thoroughly tested and proven by their practical use to be perfectly safe, reliable, and effective. There is no experimenting when Abraham's Pills are used. They are the standard medicine for over a quarter of a century, and their reputation is established as the perfect agent for the Liver and Kidneys. They are always uniform and certain in action, and never fail in their work, and make life with all its adjuncts happier than it can be otherwise made. If anyone attempts to experiment upon you by selling you a substitute for

KILL THE INSECTS AND THEIR EGGS with Clayton and Co.'s Great American Insect Exterminator. It paralyses the first touch, and then kills. If blown into their haunts (crevices), or where their eggs are laid, death is instantaneous for Beetles, Ants, Silver Fish, or any other insects. It is perfectly harmless to birds or animals, and may be placed under the wing of a pet canary, and rubbed on dogs, cats, or monkeys, killing the parasites that infest them. If burnt in a room or in a garden, it kills flies and mosquitoes. If placed on window-sills you will see the large "blow-fly," as well as the common fly, give up the ghost. If placed under the edges of carpets, silver fish and all other insect vermin die. It is used in the mattresses and bedsteads of all the hotels and steamboats of the United States and this colony. Sold everywhere in tins, 1s and 1s 6d, and in large boxes, 1s 6d. In large quantities (to blow into crevices), 1s 6d each. Wholesale and retail, WASHINGTON H. THE INDUSTRIAL DEPOT

PERMANENT MERCANTILE EXHIBITION

TO MANUFACTURERS, MERCHANTS,

AGENTS.

A permanent depot is to be established in the heart of the city of Sydney for the Exhibition of Samples from Colonial, British, and Foreign Manufacturers and Wholesale Merchants, combined with a

MERCANTILE EXCHANGE and AUCTION ROOM.

Such institutions are being conducted with great success in many commercial cities of Europe. They are the means of centralising and encouraging trade, and a most convenient medium for the intercourse of vendors and purchasers.

The site of the Industrial Depot is a capital one, in the very midst of the wholesale trade, being centrally situated in York and Clarence streets, with noble frontages in both thoroughfares. The management undertakes to keep the exhibits in proper order, and is also prepared to act, if so desired, as Agents for Exhibitors. All samples will be catalogued, and by judicious advertising the exhibition will be kept well before the public. A special feature of the Industrial Depot will be the Auction Room.

Exhibitors in replenishing their exhibits can, if desired, transfer old samples for sale by auction on the premises.

Considerable space for storage, office accommodation, and strongrooms will be set apart, and every convenience for packing, &c., will be provided.

Messrs. BACKHOUSE and LAIDLEY, the well-known Architects, have prepared plans of the building, the immediate erection of which is contemplated.

The very extensive area of floor space will be subdivided into sections from 25 square feet upwards, as required,

and offered at the following RENTALS, payable monthly, in advance:—

Ground Floor, 15s per 25 square feet per month.
First Floor, 12s 6d per 25 square feet per month.
Second Floor, 10s per 25 square feet per month.

Thus facilities are given for

(BY PATENTED PROCESS.)

Peter Möller's Cod Liver Oil is obtaining more favour with the Public and increased reputation amongst the Medical Profession day by day.

(BY PATENTED PROCESS.)

In the years 1851-1853 considerable attention was called to Cod Liver Oil, but its use was restricted in consequence of the crude method of its production, which gave a turbid, brownish, uncanny preparation, nauseous to the palate and sometimes impossible of digestion.

(BY PATENTED PROCESS.)

Since then the introduction by Peter Möller of a new application of steam, conducted under his own personal supervision, has secured the utmost cleanliness in every detail of the manufacture, and the Public have been able to obtain a pure, sweet, reliable, and digestible Oil when they insisted upon having Möller's—well, if they did not insist that was not Möller's fault.

(BY PATENTED PROCESS.)

In forty years Möller made many improvements. All the so-called substitutes were carefully examined and analysed—emulsions and mixtures, tinctures and essences, the bases of which were everything nearly except Cod Liver Oil, and in the majority of cases no more expensive article than water (Aqua Pura).

(BY PATENTED PROCESS.)

With these investigations it became more and more evident to Dr. Möller (who continued the researches of his father) that the "Active principle of Cod Liver Oil is in the Oil itself," and not as some chemists have supposed in the "remaining five per cent." after the separation of the ninety-five per cent. of fat and fat-acids (so called).

(BY PATENTED PROCESS.)

Impressed also with the fact that, excellent as his Oil was, there yet remained something to be accomplished before perfection could be claimed; in fact, no Oil had ever been made which presented the extremely delicate and pleasant flavour of the Oil as it is found in the freshly-boiled livers, therefore—

(BY PATENTED PROCESS.)

Important laboratory extensions were added, with every modern appliance for chemical investigation, and the exhaustive experiments of some 10 years being prosecuted with renewed vigour, finally obtained reward in full measure. The practical outcome is an entirely new process, producing a totally different Cod Liver Oil, lighter in colour, more limpid, wholly free from the taste, the "after taste," and the odour of even the better kinds of Oil, and SUITED TO THE MOST DELICATE STOMACH.

(BY PATENTED PROCESS.)

This Oil is now in every good Chemist's Shop, and although considerable outlay has been incurred in chemical research, and in obtaining patent, the prices have not been advanced. All bottles are capsuled, and bear the trade mark and perforated date as formerly. In case of difficulty or dissatisfaction write to PETER MOLLER, 43 Snow Hill, London, E.C.

LIFE IN LONDON AND THEREABOUT.

(CHRONICLED BY HENRY LUCY.)

A NEW PARTY IN THE COMMONS—GREATER BRITAIN—THE NEW DUKE OF COBURG.—A LONDON GAMIN.

WESTMINSTER, AUG. 24.

To the many sections of Party into which the H.O.C. is divided we are now promised an imposing addition. It would be difficult off-hand to number it. Thirteen years ago, when Lord Randolph Churchill and his merry men appeared above the political horizon, the now-historical style the Fourth Party seemed waiting for them. Early in the session that saw their birth Mr. Frank Hugh O'Donnell had taken the opportunity to observe in debate that time was when the House of Commons was divided in twain, the contending parties being known either as Whig and Tory or by the later modification, Liberal and Conservative. "Now," said Mr. O'Donnell, "there's a third party—the Irish Party." This proclamation was received with laughter, and when Lord Randolph and his two colleagues, Drummond Wolff and Mr. Gorst, began to make the running, they were happily and derisively called the Fourth Party. But they proved no laughing matter. Between them, as history has shown, they managed to bring about notable convulsions in the older and staider parties from which they had been evolved. Since then the progress of disintegration has gone steadily forward. The Fourth Party is, in truth, dead, and the efforts at revival made by Mr. Hanbury, "Tommy" Bowles, and Mr. Bartley are rather comical than threatening. But the Third Party has grown and multiplied to such extent that it can afford to have a bifurcation of its own. To-day, the old landmarks being everywhere trampled down, we have in the House of Commons a bewildering agglomeration of parties—Irish Nationalist, Parnellite, Welsh, Scotch (both like the Irish, with signs of cleavage), Temperance, Vaccination, Labour (also subdivided)) Radical, Disestablishment, Bi-metallic, and last, but not least, the Dissentient Liberal Party.

To these must now be added what is called the Australian Party. That is already a misnomer, a fact which shows the increased pace at which matters now move in the political maelstrom. Then the area was extended to take in Sir John Gorst, who has lived in New Zealand; and finally, at a meeting held on Wednesday in one of the committee-rooms of the House of Commons, it was resolved that members connected with any of the self-governing colonies should be admitted to membership of the new party. This step was taken at the instance of Sir Charles Dilke, whose Greater Britain sympathies were developed in early manhood. Thus a modest beginning has already reached a growth that promises portentous things. Happily the self-governing constitution of the colonies is so complete and real that your account with the Imperial Parliament rarely touches details coming within its ordinary scope. But in the conversation that took place on Wednesday several things were mentioned upon which direct and persistent representation in the House of Commons may be of practical use. Of these are the appointments of colonial governors and the circumstances thereto pertaining; possible improvements in cable communication, and the abolition of postal anomalies. The new party numbers in its ranks some of the shrewdest business men in the House, and with the assistance of two old Parliamentary hands like Sir Charles Dilke and Sir John Gorst, it should be able to accomplish substantial good.

The prospect of our losing the Duke of Edinburgh on his accession to the ducal throne of Coburg cannot truly be said to have appreciably ruffled the public mind. Probably without reasonable cause, the Duke of Edinburgh is the least popular of the Royal Family. He has either earned, or has unjustly had fastened upon him, the reputation of being parsimonious, and I suppose parsimony is in public estimation the one thing for which Royalty can never be forgiven. The Prince of Wales is well known to be free from the taint, and the average taxpayer would much rather face the prospect of helping to pay the Prince of Wales's debts than hear the Duke of Edinburgh had somewhere saved another five-pound note. The Duke's personal freedom from points conducive to popularity is unfortunately not compensated for by excessive agreeableness on the part of his wife. If the Prince of Wales were as little worthy of popularity as he richly deserves it, the charm and grace of the Princess of Wales would strike the average. The Duchess of Edinburgh ever since she came to the country has held herself aloof from her husband's people, and is absolutely unknown to all but an inconsiderable proportion of the multitude. One advantage of this, inestimable in its way to royalty, is that she might walk down Regent-street, or up Bond-street, looking into the shops without having a crowd at her heels. The life of the Czar's daughter was embittered at the outset of her residence here by her position relative to the Queen's daughters. According to Court etiquette, the Duchess on entering or leaving a room must needs give precedence to the Princesses Christian, Louise, and Beatrice—the two latter married, the one to a mere Scotch noble, the other to a half-baked prince who would not be permitted to approach the steps of the throne of her Imperial father. To the average honest woman it probably does not matter whether she goes out of a room first or last—unless, indeed, the place be on fire, or contain some exceedingly disagreeable persons. To the daughter of the Czar of all the Russias it is a thing of mighty consequence, and accounts for the non-appearance of the Duchess at drawing-rooms. If she were to put in an appearance on drawing-room day, the Queen's daughters would take precedence. So, as regularly as drawing-rooms come round, the Duchess has a headache, which would make the heat and crush of the palace unbearable.

One result of the Duke of Edinburgh's coming into the heirship of his uncle's estate will be to place him in a position in which constitutional tendencies towards economy may be boldly grappled with. The Duke of Coburg was rich beyond the dreams of avarice, and the Duke of Edinburgh is his sole heir. In these circumstances it seems reasonable to suppose that the Duke would declare he had no further need of the poor pittance of £25,000 a year which, in addition to the salary of an Admiral and other pickings, he draws from the British Exchequer. Seated on the throne of Coburg, drawing its more than ducal revenues, it would scarcely be worth while even for £25,000 a year to incur the odium that would attach to accepting the annuity paid for the expressed purpose of maintaining in proper style and comfort a son of the Queen. It is, however, reported that the difficulty will be met by an ingenious arrangement. Duke Alfred, as our Admiral-Prince is already officially styled, will visit Coburg to-morrow where the Diet is summoned to meet to take the oath of allegiance to their new sovereign. But when once settled on the Ducal Throne he will, it is said, abdicate in favour of his eldest son, and whilst the revenues of the Duchy of Coburg are kept in the family the head of the house will be nothing more than a younger son of the Queen of England, qualified to receive a stipulated pension, and anything else that may be going.

The tropical weather which astonished and transformed London has passed away. With the beginning of the new week the temperature suddenly fell. Kamarbands were as hastily put away as they had been brought out, and the neglected waistcoat once more appeared in the streets and in places of public resort. Whilst the heat still lasted I saw a little street picture which made me think regretfully of an old friend and colleague, dead these two years. The scene was the grass plot in front of Westminster Abbey; time 3 o'clock in the afternoon; the thermometer at 91·. The gardeners had out the water pipes and were soaking the lawn. The supply pipes leaked, as is their generous custom, and by one stood a boy eight or nine years old. He had on neither cap, coat, nor waistcoat, his trousers being perilously held up by a single brace. He had possessed himself of a sodawater bottle. This he filled at the pipe and then poured its contents over his head, the water running all down him like the ointment ran down Aaron's beard, only in this case the fluid came out in a stream and from the boy's boots, which were several sizes too large for him and, I strongly suspect, really belonged to his mother. The figure, backed by the solemn majesty of Westminster Abbey, made a picture which Charles Keene, if he had chanced to see it, would have seized and made immortal. Only he could have depicted the wickedly ecstatic look on the boy's face as he saw the water pouring out of his mother's boots.

OLD WORLD GOSSIP.

LONDON, AUG. 25.

The idea of an Australian party—or rather a Colonial party—in the House of Commons has at last taken shape. A meeting has been held this week at which it was decided to form a non-party organisation for the furtherance of colonial interests which will include on as wide a basis as possible all members of the House of Commons who have interests in the self-governing colonies. A number of specific points were discussed, but from conversations which I have had with the promoters of the movement, and especially with Sir John Gorst—who in virtue of his old New Zealand experience took the chair at the meeting—I gather that there is no idea at present of anything like a formal party with a regular programme. There is probably to be no recognised leader, the chairman being elected ad hoc at each meeting of the members interested. At the same time, the new party will act together for the purpose of "keeping Houses" whenever colonial questions are discussed, and in insuring that colonial matters generally are not swamped under the pressure of home business. Supposing, for instance, a motion were brought before the House directly affecting the interests of New South Wales. It would not follow that the members interested in Canada or the Cape would be bound to assist either in supporting or opposing that motion. But if the members representing Australian interests considered it desirable that the matter should be ventilated, they would be able to look confidently to the other "colonists" in the House to help them in getting it discussed. It will be seen that up to this point it will be easy to preserve a community of interests. As the members talk of dining together once a session, the movement will also have its social side. It has provoked a certain amount of general sympathy here, because anything which tends to give the interests of the colonies a closer association with our own every-day interests has a very wholesome popularity with the British public at large. But a colonial party with a vigorous colonial programme and a plan of united action is, under present conditions at all events, not quite a possibility in the House of Commons.

The cholera scare has been troubling us a good deal this week. Not only is it unpleasant to have it so near our shores as the ports of Holland, but there is reason to fear that there have been in the last few days one or two cases of the disease in the East-end of London itself. It is never easy to get at the truth in regard to these matters. A virulent case of English cholera, which would be set down as diarrhœa if no epidemic were raging, gets at once—at times when reports as to the spread of the pestilence are filling the newspapers—classed as Asiatic cholera by the frightened public imagination. On the other hand, so long as the least shadow of a doubt remains as to the true nature of the disease, it is the obvious duty of the local authorities and of the medical men to avoid alarming the public mind, since nothing is more certain than that panic favours the spread of pestilence. I believe, as a matter of fact, that hardly a summer passes without cases of true cholera occurring in the neighbourhood of the London docks. They are usually cases in which the infection has been obtained abroad, but the disease fails to spread because the conditions are not favourable. The mere occurrence, therefore, of isolated deaths from cholera in districts like this need not trouble us at all if we are absolutely safe as to the efficiency of our sanitary arrangements. But unfortunately, this is just the point on which we have received several shocks of late, through the outbreak of epidemics of other diseases in different parts of the country. By far the worst of these is at Worthing, where a terrible outbreak of typhoid fever has turned a prosperous and, at this time of the year, usually crowded watering-place into a desert, ruining the lodging-house keepers, threatening the local tradesmen with bankruptcy, and putting hundreds of families into mourning. It has turned out that in creating a new water supply the corporation had managed to connect it with the main drainage. Here was a case in which, if the cholera had once struck the town, it would have spread through it with the rapidity with which it blights an Asiatic hamlet. So, it will be seen, we have some causes for disquietude.

The outburst of ill-feeling between France and Italy which is filling the newspapers at present may prove to be temporary, but to anyone who who has taken the pains to understand the European situation it is ominous as to the future. That French capitalists should employ Italian workmen at cheaper rates than they would have to give for French labour; that the displaced French workmen should resent this and come into collision with their rivals; and that the result should be disorder and bloodshed is not in itself very remarkable. There is a good deal in it akin to the labour disputes which are constantly arising in Great Britain and the colonies. Nor is it extraordinary that the working classes of the Italian towns should be angry at the treatment to which men belonging to their own order were subjected. What, however, has startled thoughtful observers here is the rapidity with which a class dispute has taken an international character, and the readiness with which the Italian nation at large has taken up the cause of the injured workmen. Of course this has nothing to do with the actual merits of the dispute. For years—from the time, in fact, when France and Italy began to come into collision in their colonial policy in Northern Africa—there has been a steadily growing bitterness between the two nations, or, rather, a rapidly increasing hostility on the part of the Italians towards the French. It is, perhaps, five years ago that in a provincial town in Italy I heard a French danseuse hissed off the stage, simply because she was a Frenchwoman. Since then the public feeling in Italy has been growing worse rather than better. I have it on the authority of a member of the Italian Chamber—an old advocate of what is known as the Latin alliance—that among the classes throughout Italy who take an enlightened interest in politics there has long been a steadily growing sympathy with the Triple Alliance, not from any love of Germany, and certainly not of Austria, but purely from jealousy and resentment toward France. This feeling has done more to swamp the Irredentist agitation and to bury, at all events for a time, the memory of old grievances against Austria than anything else could possibly have done. The Italians look on themselves as a colonising people, and the wound inflicted on them by French ambition rankles badly. France has many powerful enemies, but there are shrewd observers who have always held that the most dangerous of all—because the most likely to take the aggressive against her—is the sister nation of the South.

The death of the Duke Ernest of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha has caused not a little commotion in Court circles. In the first place, his successor in the dukedom is our own Queen's second son, the Duke of Edinburgh, and, in the second place, he had a peculiar hold on English sentiment as the brother of the late Prince Consort. The Queen was very fond of him, and thought highly of his intellectual attainments, which were certainly of no mean order. The younger branches of the Royal Family, too—all his nephews and grand-nephews—were very much attached to "Uncle Ernest," who, in his turn, always displayed the warmest affection towards his English relatives. At one time he was frequently a conspicuous figure at both the English and the German Courts, but of late he has lived pretty much in retirement. His originally dignified and soldierly figure had become rather portly, and his health had shown symptoms of decline. From the German Court, too, he was estranged for certain specific reasons. He did not quite take to the sic volo, sic jubeo manner of the young Emperor; and the fall of Prince Bismarck, in conjunction with whom he had worked hard for the unity of the German Empire, especially annoyed him. But he was the kind of man who could make himself perfectly happy without ever passing the gates of his palace. Like the late Prince Consort he was intensely fond of music, and he composed operas which bore marks of talent, if not of genius. I once heard a well-known living composer, who is certainly not disposed to flatter the works of Royalties, speak highly of one of the Duke's operas, which he had heard performed on the Continent. An idea and, perhaps, a hope has existed at the German Court that the Duke of Edinburgh would abdicate his rights in the principality in favour of his son, Prince Alfred; but there is no definite indication of this at present.

The suicidal mania in this country still continues. I have looked through the file of one daily newspaper for about the last fortnight, and I find no fewer than 16 or 17 really sensational cases of suicide or attempted suicide. This, of course, does not exhaust the list. There are scores of cases which come before the magistrates in which owing to the influence of drink, or jealousy, or poverty, some poor wretch is charged with attempting to do away with himself or herself, and gets dismissed with a caution. These may be unearthed from the police court reports of local journals, but I am speaking now of cases sad enough to give them a tragic interest for the general public. There have been two cases of suicide by music-hall singers, one of whom flung herself from the window of an hotel at Brighton, while another cut her throat in London. In one instance a man jumped from a window, and his wife died from the shock; and in another a mother cut her daughter's throat while she was lying ill with scarlet fever, and then attempted her own life. A barmaid, 24 years of age, hanged herself from the pegs of a wardrobe, and two young servants drowned themselves in the Grand Surrey Canal because the "young man" of one of them had got himself into trouble. What is particularly noteworthy is the deliberation with which, in some cases, the crime has been committed. In one instance—that of a carpet pattern-designer—the suicide, before shooting himself, addressed a letter to a London newspaper setting forth his grievances against the world at large. By his side was found a slip from an exercise book, on which were a couple of verses from a French song dealing with the brevity and vanity of life. In this case the crime was evidently due to silly sentiment. The heat is supposed to be accountable in one or two cases for the state of mind which led to the suicide; but, although I have mentioned only the cases of the last fortnight, there can be no doubt that there has been an extraordinary proportion of this kind of crime throughout the present year. As might be expected, these occurrences have led to a newspaper controversy on the rights and wrongs of suicide, in which sundry gentlemen whose names are more or less familiar to the public have come forward to defend the heroism of the act. But the opinion of healthy-minded people remains unchanged. The juries put all the cases, even the most deliberate, down to "temporary insanity," and this quite expresses the general opinion of the public.

The members of the Lyceum Company, with the exception of Mr. Henry Irving and Miss Ellen Terry, who had gone on ahead, left Southampton on Saturday on one of the new line of steamships, and at the time I am writing they ought to be nearing New York. They number about 75 in all, as Mr. Irving has arranged to have his full staff with him. Even the Lyceum callboy has gone, so that there is little prospect of a hitch in the American performances in the smallest details. As usual on these occasions, there was a great gathering of friends to see the company off, and a farewell luncheon was served in the saloon of the steamer. The gong for departure, however, sounded just as healths were about to be drunk, and the cry of "God bless everybody" brought the proceedings to a hurried close. Mr. Irving begins in San Francisco and works eastward. The tour will take about six months. Most of the theatres in London of course continue inactive. "Charley's Aunt" at the Globe, however, continues to draw crowded audiences, and I should think that by this time nearly all our bored and belated legislators must have seen it. I counted between 20 and 30 members of Parliament, including one or two members of the Government, in the theatre the other night.

NORFOLK ISLAND.

ITS PEOPLE, LAWS, AND CONDITION.

BY T. D. E.

We dropped anchor off Sydney Bay at half-past 4 on Wednesday afternoon, 23rd August, having left Lord Howe Island at the same hour on the previous Sunday. Our ship was the Government steamer Thetis; her kind and competent master, Captain Hutton; our object, to rescue from Norfolk Island the 21 shipwrecked officers and crew of the ill-fated Girvan, which foundered in a gale last June while on voyage from Newcastle to San Francisco. Situated in the South Pacific, latitude 29·3·45 S. and longitude 167·58·6 E., this lonely isle is 420 miles from Noumea, 500 miles from Lord Howe Island, 600 miles from Auckland, and more than 900 miles north-east from Sydney. The geographical measurements of the island are—length, a little more than five miles; greatest breadth, three miles; and circumference, 20 miles, with a total superficial area of about 9000 acres. Passing in rapid review the early history of this noted settlement, the mind reverts at once to its discovery by Captain Cook in 1774; next followed the action of Lieutenant P. Gidley King, who took possession in 1788, and landed on its shores 24 persons, 15 of whom were convicts transferred from Botany Bay. An order to evacuate the island was signed by the Imperial authorities in 1803, but four years elapsed before it was fully and finally obeyed. Thence, till 1826, desolation reigned supreme; but on 15th August of that year the island was constituted a place for the reception of offenders convicted in New South Wales while under sentence of transportation, and from that date it remained a penal settlement, until 1853, when, after persistent remonstrances from Australasia, the transportation system ceased to be applied to the Australasian group, and for a time the island, being no longer used for penal purposes, became again almost deserted. The annals of Norfolk Island during these dark days may be well relegated to oblivion. Prior to the termination of penal punishment, however, Norfolk Island (in 1844) was severed from New South Wales and the Diocese of Australia, and annexed to the Government and colony of Van Diemen's Land and Diocese of Tasmania. Following close on the abandonment came the question—What shall be done with the farms, the houses, and the prisons? Co-existent with the demand for banishing the convict system was a unanimous request by the British press for an amelioration of the conditions of the Pitcairn Islanders—the descendants of Fletcher Christian and his fellow mutineers of H.M.S. Bounty—"an English-speaking and religious community," nearly 200 in number, existing through a succession of bad seasons, and threatened with famine on Pitcairn's Isle, situated seven degrees further east. The demand was effectual. Norfolk Island was offered to the Pitcairners by the British Government, and the offer was accepted in public meeting by 153, as against 34 votes. On 2nd May, 1856, the ship Morayshire, 850 tons, chartered in Sydney, left Pitcairn with all the inhabitants and their belongings—the accumulation of 70 years—and arrived at Norfolk on Sunday, 8th June, 1856. At that time the community numbered 40 men, 47 women, 54 boys, and 52 girls, making a total of 193. Considering themselves harassed by exactions, that their dearest right of complete independence had been infringed, that their communal rights were circumscribed, a section of the Pitcairners speedily became dissatisfied, formed a party of seceders, and as many as 60 of the 193 determined to return to their former home. Government interference frustrated so large an exodus, and only two families of the Youngs—two men, their wives, 10 girls, and three boys—returned to that solitary island, which is described as being "a single peak, hung with an arras of green creeping plants, passion flowers, and trumpet vines." Seven families voyaged from Pitcairn to Norfolk—the Christians, the Quintals, the Adamses, the Youngs, the Nobbses, the Buffetts, and the M'Coys, and from these progenitors have sprung—with the exception of say one-twelfth, called by the true Pitcairners "interlopers"—the six hundred and odd persons, independent of the Melanesian missioners, now inhabiting Norfolk Island. Here, then, is a community of blood relations, knowing and recognising each other better by prenomens than by surnames, an inevitable but by far the least significant result of intermarrying from generation to generation without the infusion of new blood. The same year the Pitcairners took up their abode at Norfolk an Imperial order in council declared the island to be separated from Van Diemen's Land and transformed into a distinct and separate settlement to be ruled by a governor exercising plenary powers; also that until further ordered the new colony should be under the jurisdiction of the Governor for the time being of New South Wales; that it should have a great seal of its own; and that for the better management of the island the governor should have power to make all appointments, to make laws subject to Imperial orders and regulations; to make grants of land; and that all existing laws, ordinances, and regulations, civil and ecclesiastical, applicable to the island, should continue in force, subject to any alterations that might be rendered necessary by change of Government. So, then, Norfolk Island is a separate dependency under the British Crown, locally governed by its own people, with laws made by their forefathers on Pitcairn Island, and revised by Governor Denison, with an executive in the Governor of New South Wales administering the affairs of the island in the terms of a distinct commission.

Of volcanic origin, and consisting of a series of hills and valleys, clothed with noble pines for which it is so celebrated, and tablelands free from trees and green as English meadows in May, Norfolk Island rises as an emerald gem from "mighty waters rolling ever more." It is a little England with a gentler climate, in appearance not unlike sections of Devonshire and the Isle of Wight. The dominating point is Mount Pitt, 1050ft. high, wooded almost to the summit, and vestured on its sides with pines, palms, tree ferns, and olives. Although almost in the centre of the Pacific, and in the same latitude as Lord Howe, Norfolk Island is the least tropical in the whole Pacific group. The climate is exceptionally mild, the range of the thermometer being between 42· and 82·, with a mean temperature of 70·, and an average rainfall of 48in. per annum. In form the island is an irregular ellipsis, and except on the south-west face it presents to the ocean imposing and inaccessible cliffs, on whose breasts in places grow magnificent pines, whose spreading branches and gigantic heights are discernible 18 miles at sea. The three landing-places, all more or less dangerous to any but the most experienced whalers, are at Sydney Bay, Anson Bay, and the Cascades. Unlike most people in the later stages of civilisation, the Norfolkers are deserting the town—the old penal settlement—and making their homes in substantial houses amongst the lovely hills further back. The old gaol, with all its hideous appurtenances, on the flat between the ocean and the rising ground, is rapidly crumbling to decay, and some of the stonework has been used in building houses on the freehold over the hills. The commissariat buildings of convict days are now, although in a state of utter disrepair, used as courthouse and school; and Government House, the former home of Captain Robert Hunt, of Captain Maconochie, of Mayor Anderson, and of the murdered Captain Price is so dilapidated that only a portion of the building is habitable. The stirring scenes of penal settlement days have been succeeded by undisturbed tranquillity, the gaol yard now is abandoned to stray horses and dogs, and the remaining cells and hospital wards are turned into hen-roosts.

Sitting in Council in June, 1856, her Majesty Queen Victoria empowered the Governor of Norfolk Island to make laws for the order, peace, and good government of the territory. Sir W. T. Denison, K.C.B., then Governor-General of the Australian colonies, Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief of New South Wales and its Dependencies, and Governor of Norfolk Island, a year later repealed and annulled all "laws, ordinances, and regulations" which had been and were in force, and enacted an entirely new code, embracing the fundamental principles of government observed at Pitcairn, but modified to suit the changed circumstances of the Pitcairners. Executive government of Norfolk Island during the absence of the Governor was vested in a chief magistrate and two councillors, to be elected annually by the community. The qualifications of the Chief Magistrate for holding office were, and are, residence on the island, possession of a landed estate therein, and being at least 28 years of age; those of his two councillors, residence on the island, and to be at least 25 years of age. The elections take place on the 26th of December, or the following Monday, and the elected assume office on the succeeding New Year's Day. Six months' residence, the age of 20 years, and the ability to read and write are the terms of suffrage. The island chaplain presides at the elections, and opens the proceedings with prayer. As president he possesses a casting vote; he is ineligible for magisterial office, but he administers the oath of office, which is the customary declaration of true allegiance to the Queen and the promise to perform magisterial duties to the best ability. Any change made in the Constitution must be sanctioned by a public meeting, and no repeal of or addition to a law or regulation will be valid until confirmed by the Governor. The Chief Magistrate has primary jurisdiction in all matters of dispute, whether between the islanders themselves or between them and visitors to the island, but should his efforts prove unavailing, he with his councillors rehears the case, and the decision given by the triumvirate is final in all cases where the property at issue does not exceed 50s in value, or in cases of common assault, when their punitive powers do not exceed the infliction of a 10s fine. In more serious cases, where contending parties object to the adjudication of the magistrates, a jury, consisting of seven "elders"—males having arrived at the age of 25 years, selected by lot, the tickets being drawn from the bag by the chief magistrate—makes the final award. These juries and witnesses are entitled to an hourly allowance, during the time they are engaged, an hour being considered equivalent to one-eighth of a day's work. The Governor and he alone can remit fines. When an offence committed is of a public character the guilty party pays all costs in addition to fines or punishment; but, on the contrary, if the accused be declared innocent costs are paid out of the public funds. In cases of wilful damage of property the jury may, in addition to awarding payment for damage done, inflict a fine not exceeding 40s, and the whole of this is paid into the public chest. The education of children between the ages of six and 14 years is compulsory under a penalty of 6d per diem for default, and the chaplain's certificate is alone accepted as an exemption. Beer, wine, or spirituous liquors of any kind are only admitted on the island medicinally, and when landed are placed among the other medical stores issued on certificate, and all issues are noted in a register. Should any spirituous or fermented liquor be landed or found in possession of any person on the island, whether inhabitant or visitor, the vessels containing the same may be seized and smashed, the contents run to waste, and the offending person is liable to a fine of 40s. Obscene or profane language, bearing false witness, and slander are offences carrying a penalty not exceeding 40s nor less than 5s. The foregoing, then, are the main features in the code of the 39 articles enacted by Governor Denison. Towards the close of 1860, however, his Excellency made several verbal alterations in the Constitution. For instance: he qualified his power to repeal the laws as they existed before the independence of the island: he withdrew from adjudication by the Courts of Justice in Sydney and reserved for final decision by the Governor all cases affecting life or limb, or being of an otherwise serious character; and he declared that all cases beyond the bounds of Norfolk Island laws should be dealt with in accordance with the laws "in force in New South Wales, so far as the same may be applicable." At the same time Governor Denison regulated the transfer of and other dealings in land at Norfolk Island. A Registrar was appointed and his duties defined, but the most stringent and absolute article in the 15 issued was "that it shall not be lawful for any inhabitant of Norfolk Island to sell or alienate in any way the land of which he may become possessed to a person or persons who have not received permission from the Governor to reside in the said island."

Heads of families, on their arrival from Pitcairn, received a grant of 50 acres of land each, chosen at will and unfettered by conditions. Specific in its terms, the deed of grant donates to its rightful holder the acreage named "for us, our heirs and successors for ever, yielding and paying therefor the quit rent of one peppercorn if demanded." In subsequent years the prevailing practice was for every couple on marriage to receive a grant of 12½ acres each, and in the event of an island bride marrying a "stranger," her marriage portion was 12½ acres from the public estate. From a steadfast observance of this custom came the alienation of about two thirds of the available land, most of which, however, remains fallow to this day. Lord Loftus, when he visited the island in 1884, fully recognised the evil brought into existence by this practice, strongly deprecated the callousness of the owners in allowing their land to go to ruin, and announced his intention not to issue further grants without additional instructions from the Imperial Government. Alienation ceased from that day, some kind of tentative promise of lease was made later on, nothing has been done, and now the one burning question exercising the minds of the most thoughtful amongst the Norfolkers is the future land laws and regulations of the colony. The general laws summarised above, with regulations of minor import, are in themselves, if firmly and fearlessly administered, suitable for the good government of the community. The all-pervading feeling of social equality, and the universal family relationship, however, render a strict and just enforcement of these laws next to impossible. Punishable crimes are not common on the island. Drunkenness is unknown; assaults and violence are of exceeding rare occurrence, and the petty thieving of fruit and provisions—confined to a certain clique—form the most serious offences against the statutes. Supposing a man commits an offence, and is fined, he cannot pay, for he has no money. In default he is ordered to "take it out" in work on the public roads. This may entail a minimum amount of labour, but it is not a punishment. Proof of guilt is difficult as it is foreign to human nature for men to convict their brothers or prove an offence against their uncles or their uncles' sons. As a consequence the position of the chief magistrate and his councillors is not a happy one. Indeed, on the contrary, no matter how fair, how just, or how honest in his desire to fully and faithfully discharge his duties the chief magistrate may be, his position, by sheer force of circumstances, is one of extreme difficulty. The exclusion of fermented and spirituous liquors is one of the few regulations strictly enforced, and over this there has been more heartburnings and bickerings than in connection with any other ordinance. A few of the community would remove the restriction, but wiser counsels prevail with the great majority. The money received for the medicinal quantities of alcohol sold and the fines paid into the public chest are the only revenue sources of which the island can boast; and for years past the sum total has not exceeded from £3 to £4 per annum. The cash capital of the islanders is £8000, more than half of which was received from the sale of the thousand acres purchased by the Melanesian Missionary Society, the remainder being the surplus of the Pitcairn fund. The whole is now called the Norfolk Island Fund, invested in Sydney, and the interest received pays the chaplain, the medical officer (£150 a year), the chief magistrate (£25), and purchases the drugs. Public works are confined to the maintenance of the three main roads made by the convicts in the early days. The system followed in this road-work is that all able-bodied men between the ages of 18 and 60 years must give their labour on four and a half days in the first week of the first six months in each year. No excuse except illness exempts the male populace from this contribution. Absentees, or those on the island, having at these particular times more important affairs in hand, are mulcted in a levy of 4s per day in lieu of labour.

Decomposed basaltic rock, the soil in places is deep and magnificent in quality, while in others it is shallow and poor. It is capable of growing almost anything in the fruit and vegetable kingdoms. Oranges and lemons grow wild on the roadside, the fruit valueless and blight-smitten for want of culture and attention. Indeed, the island abounds in blights, not one known to the Southern Hemisphere having neglected to find an abiding home on this small piece of territory. The worst of all is the Icerya purchasi, which is to be found almost everywhere. Onions are killed by a black fungus, and the ravages of black and brown beetles are disastrous. Cultivation is not a passion with this people, for of the whole of the land alienated it is questionable whether more than 200 acres are crop-bearing, while, as a contrast, it is on record that in 1793 the population of the island was 1008 and the produce 2000 bushels of wheat and 50 tons of potatoes. Nowadays sufficient food is raised for home consumption and very little more, as the islanders have grown heartsick in their endeavours to establish a constant export trade. True, cargoes of produce have been sent to Auckland and Noumea, spoiled in transit, and rarely realised the smallest return to the producers. Freights absorb the total value of shipments, and, lacking more frequent communication, the islanders are at the mercy of the traders, whose transactions hitherto have been mainly on barter, with all the advantage on one side. The imports are few—flour, tea, sugar, tobacco, and clothing. Possessing but a small amount of money, and knowing less of its true value, the majority of the consumers are in their trading relations forced into debt or barter, and the barter has been much on the lines of "one tun of whale oil, one ton of flour." There are no industries other than whaling and farming. The young and middle-aged men, having the Norse blood in them, turn to the sea as eagerly as did their ancestors, rather than till the ground, hence there is more whaling than farming. This year four companies are working with eight boats. At the time of my visit the half-season's work had yielded eight humphbacks, from whose blubber perhaps 36 tons of oil had been extracted. The boiling-house is on the bank of Cascade Bay, where, too, the boats used to be stored in a dry cave at the base of a precipitous cliff. Recently a landslip occurred here, carried three boats into the ocean, and the incoming breakers dashed and smashed them on the rocks. The island is overstocked with horses and cattle, for which no outlet can be found, trading with New Caledonia having long since come to an end.

Foremost amongst the good qualities of this unique community, where there is neither bank nor brewery, shop nor inn, railway nor telegraph, newspaper nor printing-press, is their unbounded generosity. "The glory of hospitality," which Camden considered was dying, is of a certainty not dead here, for on the arrival of visitors the islanders dispute over the privilege of becoming hosts. They, too, are brave where valour is absolutely indispensable. Without the indomitable courage they possess, as whalers none would be proficient and few secure. Many are the heroic rescues from watery graves while on whaling expeditions, and never is a second call necessary to enlist the services of gallant volunteers when danger from stress of weather is at hand. Kindness to each other in times of sickness and death is a marked characteristic; the greatest respect is shown for old age, and a quaintly old-time reverence for father and mother exists. Their religion is that of the Anglican Church, and the Public school with an average attendance of 120 scholars, is under the spiritual guidance of the Anglican chaplain. A few Wesleyans, without a minister, meet for worship in accordance with Methodist forms, and American missionaries from the Seventh Day Adventists, who called at the island in 1891 and 1892, succeeded in attracting a small body of followers. For recreation and amusement, dancing, singing, tennis, and cricket claim their votaries, and the one particular festival of Norfolkers is the observance of the anniversary of the day on which their fathers and grandfathers took possession of Norfolk Island. The death rate is about 7 per 1000, and the births average 18 per annum in the population of 600. The prevailing and predominant idea of the Norfolkers is to keep everything and everybody on the outside. The island laws prevent strangers making a home on the island without the sanction of the New South Wales Governor, or the vote of a two-thirds majority at a quarterly meeting of the local Parliament. The rigour with which this law is enforced has hitherto kept desirable settlers away, and, saving one or two exceptions, the 50 "interlopers" on the island now are either runaways from calling vessels or shipwrecked sailors, who subsequently have wooed and won island brides. Candid friends of this community are not slow in expressing the opinion that the best change for the present and the alteration absolutely necessary for the welfare of future generations of Norfolkers will be the appointment of a firm, just, and impartial administrator of the laws—a man not of their kith or kin.

BANK ROBBERIES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The terrible tragedy at the City Bank, Carcoar, coupled with the strange gagging affair at Wickham, and others of a similar nature of recent occurrence, should surely direct the attention of bank directors to the better protection of their property, and of the lives of their servants. When we consider, on the one hand, the large amount of property often stowed away in the safes of up-country banks; and, on the other, the almost entire absence of prevential provisions for its safe keeping, the wonder is that many more cases of attacks on banks do not take place. It has occurred to me that a few simple precautions might be sufficient to render such attempts all but hopeless. With your permission, I will mention one or two of these, in the hope that public attention may be directed to the subject and better means be suggested and adopted.

First, the keys of the bank safe should never be on the premises, nor should it be known that the teller (who may live away from the bank) holds them. Where there are two or three banks in a town, each manager might hold and secrete the keys of the safe of a neighbouring bank—if there are three or more changing about, so that none but the managers themselves, or their trusted servants, might know where the keys were on any given night.

Secondly, where the means exist, a telephone might be arranged to communicate both from the office, the manager's bedroom, and even from the servant's bedroom, with the police station. Where electrical communication is not possible, a simple wire connection with a neighbour's house might be contrived to sound a gong or alarm bell when pulled. Handles to this appliance might be disposed in several convenient parts of the walls of the house.

Thirdly, every adult inmate of the house should be armed with a first-class revolver and taught how to employ it in case of need.

Had such precautions been adopted in the case of the Carcoar bank the cowardly ruffians who brutally murdered Mr. Phillips and Miss Cavanagh might have reaped on the spot the just punishment of their diabolical schemes. Hoping that some abler methods of protecting our worthy bank managers from cruel fears and still worse assaults may be devised,

I am, &c.,
September 25. C. GRIFFIN.

THE JARGON OF LAND VALUES.

Is it as a result of super-refinement or of "more abundant caution" that a sharp distinction is drawn between "the taxation of land" and "the taxation of land values"? It is not quite easy for the uninitiated to discern any substantial difference between the two. Neither the land nor the value will pay the tax; the money must come from the pocket of the man who owns the one or the other. Why, then, is it held to be so important that he should be described as paying the tax not upon the land but upon its value? There must be some reason in the background. Is it this, that the land is something fixed and tangible, and that the "value" is something intangible and uncertain? When there is a distant object in view, towards the attainment of which every effort is to be directed, but the true character of which is better kept out sight in the earlier stages of the movement, it is convenient to use terms characterised by some degree of uncertainty. The talk about taxing values means little or much in accordance with the significance attached to the term, or attachable. The value of the land may be taken as nominal, and the smallest fractional percentage may be levied upon it. It may be expected that, under such conditions, the fortunate owner would appreciate the new impost as a source of mild excitement, and pay over the money with a glowing sense of patriotism. But a value may be assigned exceeding the actual worth of the land, and a tax may be levied up to the point of absorbing this value. The unhappy owner would then feel that he was the victim of legalised robbery. But that is the ultimate end of the gospel of "land-value taxation." The full meaning of the phrase is at present held in reserve. So much is dictated by prudence. The more convenient thing is to say, "We do not want to tax your land or to take it; we only want to tax its value." But the shadow projected by that form of words, when a light is placed behind it, is in the figure of an appropriation of the land by demanding a tax equivalent to its full value. Nothing is said about "the nationalisation of the land" now. This was the watchword a few years ago. The term now preferred, as more suitable to the present stage of the movement, and less likely to disturb the fears of those who have land, and do not wish to be robbed of it, is "land reform." "Land reform" carries a definite meaning to the minds of most men. Nine out of ten would understand it as covering such changes in the land law as would facilitate bona-fide settlement, give additional security to legitimate interests, check abuses, and, amidst all this, provide for both leasehold and freehold tenures. No ordinary person would imagine that land reform meant the nationalisation of the land, but the initiated use the words in description of a system of taxation pointing towards that conclusion. So far as the public is concerned the terminology adopted by the new lights is misleading.

Apparently for the sake of greater clearness the phrase "taxation of land values" is sometimes extended to the "taxation of unimproved land values." But does this show of a definition define? It is only by the exercise of imagination, stimulated by goodwill, that it can be supposed to do so. To go no further than the unimproved value is to leave out of account the when, the where, and many other conditions. It is necessary to go back to the days before Captain Cook, or at least before the arrival of the first fleet, to find our land absolutely unimproved as to its value. An improvement in the direction of value was effected as soon as Great Britain founded the colony. Since then at divers times the State has fixed varying prices per acre at which the land, still in a state of nature, might be sold; but these prices were fixed arbitrarily, and were not an accurate test of value. How, then, is the unimproved value to be ascertained? If unimproved value means simply the value of the land irrespective of improvements upon it, the range of variation will be almost infinite, in accordance with varying conditions of time and place, capability of improvement, the purposes to which it may be applied, the purposes for which it may be required, the condition and character of neighbouring land, accessibility, the demand for land, the supply, the state of the market, &c. Land may be unimproved under all these different conditions, but its value, though unimproved, will vary with them. There are three leading elements entering into the settlement of this question of unimproved value: the value to the seller, the value to the buyer, the state of the market at the time. The absence or presence of improvements may have comparatively little influence. The value in times of inflation is no test of the value in times of collapse. Under some conditions land may be worth less because it has a costly building upon it than it would be if bare. A volunteer land grant of 40 acres represented at one time the statutory value of £40. For purposes of actual use the land represented by it may have been, at the same time, to the holder of the order, of no appreciable value, because, living in the city whilst the land was far away in the country, he could not make any personal use of it. But, for the purposes of sale to a pastoral lessee who wanted to block out or hem in a blackmailing selector, it was worth more than £100. Under these varying conditions what is the unimproved value of the land? In the early days of the great land scramble, lessees in the Northern districts were said to have "picked out the eyes of the country," partly to protect themselves, and partly to retain security for their creditors. In the Central and Southern districts the advice of their agents, frequently acted upon, was that they should purchase under the easy terms then available the greater portion if not the whole of their runs. But what determined the value of these purchases—the unimproved condition of the land, the price the State charged for it, or the strategic importance of the purchased land in the war with the blackmailers? And what is the value of some of these lands to the owners now, after they have paid perhaps over and over again the amount of the purchase money in the shape of interest on the money borrowed for their purchase?

The phrase "unimproved value" does not remove the complexities of the problem; it passes them by, leaving the solution as far off as before—that is to say, if the distribution of the burden of the tax upon an equitable basis is the end to be kept in view. Thousands of acres of land, purchased for legitimate purposes and in a legitimate manner, may have been at the time, for the purposes in question, worth the £1 per acre paid for them, or more. But is that value to be fixed upon them now that changes in the law have materially altered the situation? If, to avoid the pressure of taxation in addition to that of the interest on borrowed money, they were all forced upon the market under actual conditions, there would be a wide discrepancy between the price at which they were bought and the price at which they could be sold, subject to a tax that might be raised to the rate of a ruinous rent-charge. It is easy to talk about unimproved value upon the platform of a city meeting; but it is not easy for the parties concerned to see how this vague and indefinitely elastic phrase can be accepted as defining an equitable basis of taxation in connection with a tax which is intended to serve not merely the purpose of fairly raising a moderate revenue along with other taxes, but to recover land purchased from the State from the hands of those who purchased it, and to do so without compensation.

But proposals with this end in view are defended by conjuring up the spectre of the "unearned increment." "That blessed word," with the flavour of science and profundity attaching to it, has supplied the place of many arguments. But in thousands of the more recent purchases this increment has been paid for by the actual owners—in some cases more than paid for. If they have paid for it, that is equivalent to earning it so far as they are concerned, and the State, having been silently acquiescent in these transactions, and ready at all times to enforce the fulfilment of the contracts under which they took place, cannot now rightly call upon the purchasers of the increment to pay for it again. Why is the owner of a city property, purchased during the prevalence of the late land mania, to be taxed and taxed again at ever-increasing rates (for that is part of the vision) until all the increment, dating back to the arrival of the first fleet, has been wrung out of him, when the fact may be that within an interval of less than half a dozen years from his purchase, the value, with or without improvements, has undergone a heavy decrease, so that it would be impossible for him at a forced sale to recover the money he had invested? The flippant answer to this question is that the State cannot be held responsible when people make foolish purchases. But that is the answer of the man who has nothing to lose in this way, but may possibly be hoping, when the flood sets in, to be floated to a better position. Whether the purchase was foolish or wise, the State could not divest itself of responsibility for ruining people who had relied upon good faith and common honesty in the conduct of public affairs, and had not supposed it to be necessary to guard themselves against the consequences of reckless action or direct robbery at the hands of the State. Many people have made foolish purchases of land, and are as a consequence in trouble; but that does not justify the State in forcing them to surrender their land by the process of taxing its "unimproved value" on the plea of carrying out "land reform."

FUGITIVE NOTES.

This is the season of flower shows, when gaily-dressed folk go out by train and tram and steamer to pretty rural suburbs to see collections of the floral beauties of our Australian bush, and to listen while other folk talk about them. The cult of the Australian flowers is a growing one, and it is a fashionable and "correct" thing now to admire them and see a charm in native blooms that for a long while it was in like manner the custom to deny the very existence of, or at least to ignore. It is easy for the proper people to make the fashion in any given direction; and as an instance of this we all know how Lady Carrington set the fashion in the matter of what is known by the exceedingly unimaginative name of the flannel-flower. It is worth while noticing that the fashion has also been set in another and even more desirable direction. It used to be the custom when the season for these flower shows came round for hordes of men and youths, sent by people who should have known better, to go out in carts to wreck wholesale destruction among our native flowers, tearing the plants up by the roots, ruthlessly breaking off branches, and otherwise exterminating whole species for the purpose of furnishing a single show. Fortunately for our flowers public opinion has been partly educated on this point, and there is a healthy prejudice growing against this reign of destruction. We have discovered that it is possible to deck out a show without impoverishing the future, and it has even been recognised in some quarters that it is better to leave a flower like the rock-lily out of the collection altogether than to exterminate the species, as some of us were on the point of doing. This is as it should be. When leaders of society like Lady Duff and the Admiral find something to admire in our native flora, and when our artists begin to use them fearlessly in painting and decoration, it is time to think seriously of encouraging such steps as will tend to preserve our flowers, and not leave them a mere memory and regret within the metropolitan suburbs for those who will come after us.

The organisation known to the outside world by the cabalistic formula "W.C.T.U." has been holding a representative gathering this week, and the reports show it to be in a flourishing and active condition. That is well, for the organisation has good and public-spirited aims, and the object of its institution is nothing if not a noble and philanthropic one. But there is not much of the wisdom of the serpent about its methods, but rather a beautiful candour and ingenuousness which its well-wishers will not fail to recognise to be such as should be characteristic of an enterprise in which good and well-meaning women are the workers. But the critics will say they show their hand too plainly when they publish statements of the modus operandi to be followed as openly as they have done in their meeting as reported. One reads with thrills how these ladies, conscious of their strength and persuasiveness, have openly appointed one of their number to "influence the pulpit," and another—O marvel of wonders!—to "influence the press!" The case of the pulpit is not so bad. When a lady takes it into her head to influence her favourite clergyman to lift up his eloquent voice against an abuse or in special favour of any one particular virtue, it is not hard to predict what the result will or should be. It was all very well for a celibate apostle to inveigh against the voice of woman being heard in the churches; but the W.C.T.U. was unknown in his day, and in any case why should she so lift up her silvery voice when she can "influence the pulpit" to do it for her? But it is this influencing of the press that gives us pause. For there are W.C.T.U. "Y's" as well, and if anyone who knows what this mysterious alphabetical array means does not understand the full meaning of this threat to "influence the press," we hardly know whether to compliment or condole on his lack of experience. It is not as if the press had not fair warning, either. Here we have an openly-avowed plan to influence the press, and a lady told off specially to accomplish the purpose, with a whole organised battalion of "Y's" behind her back to support her. However, the vacation season is at hand. The press has no holiday, it is true; but even the W.C.T.U. must be off duty sometimes, and the "Y's" go occasionally out of town during the hot weather.

Mr. Gladstone is on the warpath about the House of Lords. That Excellent Old Gentleman has been liberating his noble soul in fiery words on the subject of bringing the recalcitrant Peers to their senses, and if he means half he says and hints, we may shortly expect such a flare-up as has not been seen in the English political world since Old Noll directed someone to take away the bauble. For this old man eloquent has no reverence for the Lords as an existing institution if they persist in standing in the way of his schemes; and whatever opinion may be as to the merits of his side of the general question, there is no doubt that he has raised a very pretty point of constitutional procedure. The old gentleman has guilefully shifted the question at issue from one as to whether Home Rule shall be granted to Ireland or not, to one as to whether the Parliament at Westminster is to be dissolved by the action of the House of Lords. It looks like a new phase of the old question as to what would be likely to happen if an immovable body came into contact with an irresistible force, and if the existing House passes its long-promised social legislation it is not hard to predict how that question will be answered. The temper of the proletariat is such that it has always delighted in a conflict with the Lords, and the comparative modern strength of the Peers, and of Conservatism itself, has lain in the politic recognition of this fact. They have bought place and power and peace by timely concessions—by "stealing the Whigs' clothes when they were bathing," to use the good old phrase once more. It would be interesting to read a return of all the reforms, now recognised as such, won directly from the Conservatives in this way, and how many times and in what instances Mr. Gladstone has forced their hand, as he is threatening to do now. It may or may not be a matter for regret that Home Rule is the bone of contention in the present case, according to the party views of the individual called upon to form an opinion. But there can be no doubt whatever as to the popularity of the method.

The generosity of the Chicago judges in the matter of awards is a little perplexing—judging, at least, by the experiences of our own exhibitors. We have seen so many lists of awards to people in this colony who have exhibited there, that what the public is now yearning for is to see a list of those exhibitors who have not received awards. There is an old and, it is to be feared, apocryphal legend of the Creation which says that after the "first families" of that early period were duly named, the remaining bulk of humanity was lumped together under the names of Brown, Jones, Smith, and Robinson. Something like this seems to have been the case at Chicago, if the prevailing impression here can go for anything. We did hear at first of some considerable dissatisfaction on the part of the exhibitors in general at some intended action of the judges, and it may be that this has driven them to the other extreme and decided them to give everyone a prize. Or perhaps our New South Wales exhibitors have been the objects of special favour, because being the only State in this part of the world that sent official representatives to the Great Columbian World's Fair, the authorities thought that the least they could do would be to give every exhibitor a little souvenir of so interesting an occasion. Like the little philosopher in the late Mr. Wordsworth's artless poem, we know not how this may be. It seems at least certain that our exhibitors have no reason to complain of the want of cordiality with which they have been treated, and the only regret this consideration of the circumstances inspires is that we all did not send some exhibit to Chicago. It really does not seem to have mattered much what the exhibit was. We might have sent the report of a politician's speech, or the platform of the defunct labour party, or a letter about local option, or the Governor's speech with the large "G" left out, or anything else. But these oversights will occur. We shall know better in 1900.

It is impossible not to be struck once more at the number of murders and crimes of violence, amounting almost to an epidemic, which have been chronicled during the past month or two. The Camoar tragedy is the crowning horror of the list, but it is only one of a kind. Only the other day a boy of thirteen years of age was sentenced to death for murder of the most cold-blooded character, and though, to say the least, it is extremely doubtful if the capital sentence would ever be carried into effect in such a case, the fact remains that the murder was committed, and that sentence of death was passed. Then we had the Pert case in Sydney, and there are several capital cases reported from Melbourne. These are types of a class of crimes of this character, and though, of course, the average of such offences in a population like ours is by no means disproportionately high, it remains true that they are frequent enough to offer a certain amount of colour to what our critics say about us. That there is some moral element of restraint wanting in the life of the lower classes in Australia—meaning by that phrase the ill-educated and untrained section which is allowed to grow up as best it may, not in these communities alone—is a deduction that is evident on the face of it. It is a remarkable thing that crimes of violence in the country are all more or less marked by the same characteristics, which, if analysed as they have been on a previous occasion in these columns, will be seen to take their rise in certain ascertainable and verifiable causes. The life of our country towns is dull and uninteresting, as a rule, and there is little to employ the mind or exercise the intelligence. The bush hotel is the centre of interest in many places. The habits of life and daily diet are enough to drive most young Australians to desperate courses, and if they sometimes take to them, it is, as it appears, owing largely to the want of some restraining moral or social influence.

There seems to be dissatisfaction brewing about the question of the new flagship for the Australian station, which is to take the place of the Orlando. We are a touchy little people on this subject, and with a War Department and a fleet of cruisers of our own it would not take much to encourage us to give ourselves airs on this flagship question. It is not a question of mere size or appearance, it seems, for the proposed new ship, the Bonaventure, though a thousand tons less than the Orlando, is 25ft. longer. Then it appears she has a greater speed of about two knots per hour, which for the special class of service war-ships in these waters are wanted for is more than a compensating advantage. The Admiral on the station, if he may be allowed to have an opinion on this question, thinks the Bonaventure likely to prove suitable to the purpose for which she is required, and it may be that, in the judgment of a modest-minded class of persons, this opinion will settle the question. It may be a falling-off in dignity to have a less valuable ship than the Orlando carrying the flag of the station, but it is not likely we shall lose very much in naval prestige on that account. After all, now that we have a fleet of cruisers, we do not absolutely require so large a flagship as heretofore, though of course it would never do to give that as a reason for replacing the Orlando by a smaller or a weaker vessel. The first requirement in our naval protectors, efficiency in other respects having been ensured, is unquestionably speed and alertness in moving about. We should have very little use for an unwieldy ironclad in Sydney Harbour or about our coasts, seeing that ships over a certain tonnage are not likely to attack us. Under the circumstances an armoured cruiser of the class of the Bonaventure ought to fill the bill very nicely. A. B. C.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC NOTES.

The English magazines for August continue the discussion upon the amazing subtlety and overwhelming force of "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," begun the previous month. The Fortnightly Review observes that "were it not for Pinero's play against a whole regiment of foreign masterpieces we should have had nothing of our own worth bringing into the field," and on the strength of this "single swallow" of the dramatic summer marks 1893 as an annus mirabilis. Some idea of the place which "Mrs. Tanqueray" occupies in the public mind may be gauged from the fact that in a review of the whole year the Fortnightly devotes eight pages to the one original English drama, two to the visit of the French company, space to the talent of Duse and the plays of Ibsen, and not one single line to the scores of new pieces performed during the same period. This may be a just estimate of the relative values of things dramatic in London; but if so, what a wretched record of downright failure or meretricious success it forms. For this reason it is impossible to avoid thinking that Mr. Pinero's new play is being overrated in the same way as his "Profligate" of four years ago. In 1889 there was not a dissentient voice amongst the London critics as to the supreme merits of that "masterpiece." Playgoers here who saw "The Profligate" well represented by the Nethersole-Cartwright Company two years ago, recognised it simply as a clever piece. In these columns ample justice was done to the drama, with the reservation—"We must decline to call Mr. A. W. Pinero's new drama 'a noble play,' since to deserve the epithet thus applied to it by a leading London journal a simpler and less stilted treatment would become necessary. The dialogue is too generally suffused with sentiment, and the chief characters, who pose and attitudinise at every turn, too frequently miss the honest ring of human nature to allow the classification of 'The Profligate' as a great artistic work."

And now, after a lapse of only four years, the original criticisms on "The Profligate" appear more intensely local and out of focus than ever. A "stupendous artistic success" was the verdict of one London daily; "places Mr. Pinero in the forefront of English dramatists," said another; and Mr. Wm. Archer, the most reserved of the English critics, referred to the success of "The Profligate" as "full of significance for the future of the English drama." It is only possible to smile at language of this kind concerning a piece which is now practically shelved, and which was estimated at its true value in other parts of the world than that which gave it birth. Stranger still is it to read in Mr. Archer's latest dictum on the subject that "it is hard to conceive that the public which has risen so eagerly to 'Mrs. Tanqueray' will be content to fall back without protest upon 'The Profligates' and the 'Dancing Girls' of the past." Sic tempora mutantur et nos mutamur in illis—the hackneyed proverb will come uppermost on such an occasion. Then arises the question, How can we accept without reserve the place accorded Mr. Pinero's new piece in English literature by the hands that now take "The Profligate" from the pedestal on which they had placed it and lay it down in the dust with such melodramatic trash as "The Dancing Girl"? Taking this into consideration with another we are inclined to think that Australian playgoers need not pant for the production of "Mrs. Tanqueray" by Messrs. Brough and Boucicault, who already hold the manuscript of the drama. The theme of this drama is more repellent than any that Ibsen has chosen, and the majority of the Norwegian poet's plays do not touch the sexual question at all, though the few of the series that do have been perversely chosen for representation in London. Even Mr. Pinero's friends in the "inner ring fence" of London theatrical circles admit that the theme of "Mrs. Tanqueray" is repulsive, and in Mr. George Moore is found a writer who does not hesitate to assert that it is unredeemed by vivid characterisation. He finds in Mr. Tanqueray "merely a lot of little speeches clipped at haphazard from Mr. Pinero's literary mind;" and he considers the woman just as unsatisfactory. "She has a bad temper; further than that the author has vouchsafed no scrap of information." What an indictment! It makes the wary, because often disappointed, playgoer wonder whether, three years hence, the London critics will rank this latest "glorious masterpiece of the English stage" with the unsighed-for past of all these later days.

Mr. Charles Arnold arrived here by the Austral on Monday last, when he finally arranged with Mr. Alex. Mayne, of the Criterion Theatre, for a 10 weeks' lease of that house, dating from next Christmas. Mr. Arnold returned to Melbourne the following day, to prepare for the initiation of his enterprise with Mr. Frank Thornton. The new partners will probably remain six months in Australia, and will open their first season with "Hans the Boatman" at the Bijou Theatre next Saturday. Mr. Arnold, during his brief stay in Sydney, gave the following interesting account of his plans:—"Mr. Thornton and myself have hitherto toured independently, and the present arrangement arose indirectly through my business transactions with Mr. Brandon Thomas. As you know, he is the author of 'Charley's Aunt,' the great success of the present year, still running to prodigious houses at the Globe Theatre. He was engaged in writing a comedy for me, and with his aid I secured 'Charley's Aunt' from Mr. Penley. Then, naturally, I made terms with Mr. Thornton, who can play a Penley part probably as well as any comedian on the English stage, and so we sailed for Australia together. Our company will consist of Miss Agnes Knights, an actress who originally created the part of Gladys in 'Hans' at the Strand Theatre; Miss Dot Frederics, who has repeated the impersonation of Jeffie, which she first appeared in at the Sydney Theatre Royal, in all the chief cities of the old country; little Jessie Meade, a very clever child actress; and Baby Edna Blanche, one of the most valued members of our company. Mr. A. E. Matthews is our juvenile leading man; Mr. Percy Brough, son of Mr. Lionel Brough, and cousin of Mr. Robert Brough, will play the light comedy parts; Mr. E. W. Thomas has come out with us as old man, and Mr. F. W. Leonard as character actor and assistant stage manager. I must not forget to mention that old favourite, Lion. The great St. Bernard has now been touring the world for eight years, but jealousy of his 'under-study,' Carlo, keeps him comparatively young and frisky. Carlo is a magnificent Newfoundland. That is the company with which we left London, having made our last appearance only a week earlier at Margate. But we intend to strengthen our forces on this side, and have already engaged Mr. H. R. Harwood and Mrs. Walter Hill. Yes, the former will resume his old part as Cattermole in the "Private Secretary," and our repertoire will also include "Captain Fritz," a romantic comedy by H. H. Hamilton, author of "Moths," "Harvest," "Our Regiment," and other plays; "Mamma," and "Charley's Aunt." The latter is a very comical piece, full of innocent fun, and is sure to prove popular.

News from London states that Miss Elsie Stanley Hall had been for a week the guest of Mrs. Benecke at her magnificent home, Norfolk Lodge, Barnet. Mrs. Benecke is a daughter of the great master, Mendelssohn, and so Miss Hall has, as it were, touched hands with that wonderful musician, using the very piano which he bought and upon which he enchanted his friends with his music. Upon this same instrument Mme. Schumann (to whom Miss Hall is shortly to be introduced) has played, beside all the other great players of this age. Mrs. Benecke, in private letters, writes:—"We are delighted with Elsie; her playing is so perfectly musical—not in the least mechanical. Her sight reading is most remarkable. It is the entire absence of consciousness of her power which makes her playing so attractive, and also her very great musical feeling."

Miss Bessie Doyle returned from Melbourne in time to appear last night at Miss Paige's benefit concert, and 10 days hence will again leave Sydney on an extended tour. Miss Doyle has joined Signor de Beaupuis, the Melbourne pianist, and with the aid of two or three vocalists, of whom it is just possible Miss Ada Crossley may be one, a strong concert party will be formed. The De Beaupuis-Doyle Company will open at Ballarat, will appear at several of the larger Victorian cities, and after enjoying a short season in Adelaide will sail for New Zealand. The tour will probably last until the end of the year.

The Johannesberg Star records the début there of Signor Foli, which took place on the 10th July at the Globe Theatre. The house was crowded, and at the second concert three days later "the stalls were filled far behind the gangway, and extra chairs had to be put in to meet the demands." The famous basso sang "She alone charmeth my sadness," "I'm a Roamer," and "Father O'Flynn," with encores after each. He opened the second concert with "Qui Sdegno," and during the evening was encored four times. Mr. Charles Santley is also touring in South Africa under Messrs. R. S. Smythe and Son's management, but returns to England early next month.

One of Mr. Toole's little jokes has borne fruit. Years ago he strolled into Stamcliffe House, a fine old-fashioned residence at Seaton Carew-on-Tees, affected to mistake it for an inn, and demanded refreshment. "Mine host" enjoyed the prank, and the affair ended in an invitation to dinner, at which Mr. Toole made more (and let us hope better) jokes. Now Stamcliffe House has been sold, and refurbished as an inn with the sign Toole's Hotel.

On three or four occasions Mrs. Langtry has broken off engagements nearly completed with managers here for an Australian tour. The actress apparently still largely enjoys the prerogative of her sex. The Era states that "Mrs. Langtry's American agent, Mr. Joseph Reynolds, states that he has received a cable despatch from that lady cancelling for the second time her American engagements."

Miss Eloise Juno is making her farewell appearance in Melbourne to-night in "The Heart of Midlothian." That veteran actor, Mr. Richard Stewart, senior, is in the company, thus returning to the Australian stage after a long retirement.

The Vie Parisienne has a severe article upon the (bad) morals of the English stage. It is, firstly and foremostly, the excessive realism of our "stage embrace" that has brought the rose to the Parisian cheek—more "cheek" than rose, some say.

Mr. F. R. Benson has produced "Coriolanus" at the Memorial Theatre, Stratford-on-Avon, with scenes and costumes from designs by Mr. Alma-Tadema. The play was given in five acts, but the text was considerably condensed.

Mr. Pinero's fame has at last reached Paris, and his first play is shortly to be staged there. A new association headed by M. Lugné Poë proposes to give, during the season, eight performances "des œuvres d'Ibsen ('Rosmersholm,' 'L'Ennemi du Peuple'), Bjornsen ('Sur la Force'), de Marco Praga, Pisemski, Dostoiewsky, Pinero, &c."

Mascagni evidently does not fear the perils of over-production, and within the next six or eight months he will give to the world no fewer than three operas. "Ratcliffe" is even now in rehearsal at Berlin, and "Romano" is to be given at Vienna next winter.

Herr Victor Hausmann, a German composer, has written an opera, the libretto of which is based on Tennyson's "Enoch Arden." It will be produced this winter at Weimar.

Mr. Ben Davies, the Welsh tenor, has sailed from London for Chicago in order to take part in the Welsh Eisteddfod, which ought to be held in that city this month.

Madame Patti's contract for 40 concerts in America is for £40,000. Miss Loie Fuller, of Serpentine fame, earns £300 a week.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—One would think that Mr. W. E. Abbott, who was not less courteously than effectively corrected by the Railway Commissioners in his erroneous statement of the railway charges of this colony and those of America, would have realised that he personally illustrated Pope's assertion that and consequently abstained from further dealing with a subject of which he has but scant knowledge. In a letter dated the 20th instant, which appears in your issue of to-day, Mr. Abbott comments upon the recent statement of the Commissioners for Railways that the railway revenue would derive £3140 per annum from the carriage of the produce of 10,000 acres of cultivated land, and only £90 if a like area remained in pastoral occupation—and seeks to disprove its truth by pointing out that while there are 1,500,000 acres under cultivation, which should, at £3140 for every 10,000 acres, give a railway revenue of £450,000, only £96,000 was so derived.

Now, without going into the question whether there are really 1,500,000 acres under cultivation (of course the statement is a gross exaggeration), nor if there were whether the railway revenue, upon the accepted basis, would be £450,000, it is quite clear that Mr. Abbott's conclusions or deductions are erroneous. His initial error is in supposing that the produce of the 1,500,000 acres said to be under cultivation is carried by railway. First let me point out that while the area under cultivation includes lands in all parts of the colony a great portion of the produce is seaborne. There are the coast lands and the cultivated land in the Clarence and Richmond districts. Then, again, a large portion of the produce is consumed locally, requiring only common road carriage.

Mr. Abbott, moreover, does not discriminate between the produce of the land which the Commissioners evidently had in view when estimating its value for railway freight and the produce carried for short distances. Now the average distance agricultural produce is at present carried does not exceed 118 miles, while the land which the Commissioners were referring to, the produce of which would be carried by rail, is situated probably from 250 to 300 miles from its market.

It would be really a waste of time to follow Mr. Abbott through all his mis-statements. He compares the railway revenue derived from agriculture and mining with the revenue derived from pastoral produce, and boldly asserts that the carriage of the latter is 12 times as profitable as the former. He forgets—at all events he omits—to state, intentionally or otherwise, the relative cost of carriage and the distance conveyed. Coal and shale are carried on our railways an average distance of 17 miles, while wool is carried 281 miles, and live stock 220 miles. If the cost be calculated of carrying a ton of coal 17 miles and the cost of carrying a ton of wool 281, it will be seen that the profit is certainly not 12 times as great, though the gross revenue is. Mr. Abbott would probably be surprised to learn that the cost of carrying a ton of coal 17 miles—including empty running—is only 1s 3d, while the cost of carrying a ton of wool 281 miles is quite 25 times as much.

I am, &c.,
A CRITIC UNCONNECTED WITH THE RAILWAYS.

REVIEWS.

Back to the Land. By Harold E. Moore. London: Methuen and Co.

This is the new volume of the series called "Social Questions of To-day." Mr. Moore is a land agent in England, and the author of several studies of the agricultural situation in the mother country. In the present book he makes a detailed examination of how idle hands may be employed upon idle lands, and this inquiry is not without interest in this colony. Sir Robert Duff, speaking at Singleton a week or two ago, said that he feared the success of recent legislation in this direction in England was not commensurate with anticipations. Mr. Moore says as much. That the problem is not insoluble the author is sanguine, but he makes a number of stipulations about the persons who are to be brought back to the land which materially reduce the proportion of success. The first of these conclusions is that no man without the requisite knowledge and some money can obtain a comfortable living from the land. This is what has been said in regard to Mr. Copeland's labour settlements; and if true of England, where so many markets exist, communication is so easy and cheap, and the agrarian interest is one of the mainstays of the country, how much more so here! Mr. Moore bases all his argument on this, and part of his scheme consists of a training farm, where the real unemployed of the cities might be drafted, and supported by their own exertions, meanwhile getting such experience as should qualify them for employment at home or abroad, funds being provided to assist such as were approved. In regard to these emigrants, Canada is recommended, afterwards New Zealand, then Queensland. Much of the book is occupied with matter such as estimates of expenditure and profits, which could not apply in Australia, but the volume is not without an interest for those among us who attach importance to the profitable occupation of the land under small settlement and high cultivation. Mr. Moore has a decided bent towards training emigrants for the colonies, the advantages of which he fully recognises.

Mr. Frederick Wicks, the author of a book, "The Veiled Hand," which made some sensation when it appeared, now publishes through Messrs. Remington, and Co., two stories, The Broadmoor Patient, and The Poor Clerk. The first is a study of a series of crimes committed for the sake of money, and the tale is told by the actor with a careful regard to his own point of view. The other tale concerns itself with a man of great probity, who carries his honesty of purpose to the length of suffering for it. As a contrast to one another the stories are good, and in themselves they are well told. The volume comes to us from Messrs. Remington and Co., Sydney.

Messrs Longmans, Green and Co., issue in their Colonial Library the new romance by Dr. Conan Doyle, which has been running in an American magazine, The Refugees, a Tale of Two Continents. Dr. Doyle returns to that historical school of which his Micah Clark, and White Company were creditable representations, and beginning with the Court of Louis the Great at the time of the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, the story passes with the refugees, who are Huguenots, over to the Puritan colonies of America. At that time Canada was French, but British agencies had begun to shake the Roman Catholic power, and among the painful activities of the time were the Indian wars. Into this lurid subject Dr. Doyle plunges his readers, and without under-estimating the brilliancy of the picture which, with no faltering hand, he paints for us from the court of the great French King, many readers of The Refugees will consider that the author has put his best work into the description of the march through the woods of the French soldier and his bride, his Puritan friends, and his French coureur-des-bois. Some of the sketches are very powerful, as for instance that of the almost martyred Jesuit.

The third edition of Mr. Rider Haggard's novel, Eric Brighteyes, reaches us in Longmans' Colonial Library (Longmans, Green, and Co.). The book reads like a long Saga, with its names and its complacent story of battle, murder, and sudden death. Mr. Haggard has a notable gift in this direction, and in a new field we recognise the old hand. The two latter books are sent to this office by Messrs. George Robertson and Co., Melbourne.

Among the reprints just to hand are a few of exceptional interest. Such is the new edition of Dr. Buchheim's Balladen und Romanzen, a selection of the best German ballads and romances in verse, published by Messrs. Macmillan and Co. in their new Golden Treasury series. In the Deutsche Lyrik Dr. Buchheim gathered together an admirable selection of poems dealing with the softer aspects of poetry, but in Balladen und Romanzen we have represented the sterner side of the Teutonic people. Nor of the Teutons only, for several of these poems deal with England, France, and Switzerland. Not a few of them have been translated, and no poem of the first importance in the class chosen seems to have been missed. The second edition of Mr. W. Outram Tristram's Coaching Days and Coaching Ways comes likewise from Macmillan, in the same beautiful form as that publisher's edition of the "Vicar of Wakefield," "Cranford," "Sir Roger de Coverley," and Irving. The subject is one that is reminiscent of all that is delightful in the romance of the roads of England in the era before railways. The illustrations, by Mr. Hugh Thomson and Mr. Herbert Railton, are charming altogether. The volume is an ideal gift-book. Part 23 of the illustrated edition of Green's Short History of the English People is sent by Macmillan. It brings the book down to the fifth section, "Puritan England," and covers the episode of the Puritan emigration to New England. The illustrations and printing are admirable. Messrs. Macmillan and Co. also issue the second volume of Annual Summaries reprinted from the Times, covering the period 1876-92, brief abstracts of the history of our time. As the volume is furnished with a fairly full index, is well printed, and sells at a low price, it should be useful and popular. Dr. Dutton's little handbook on Indigestion, Gout, Corpulency, and Constipation Clearly Explained, Treated, and Dieted, comes to us in its third edition, enlarged and revised (Henry Kimpton and Hirschfeld Brothers, London). The popularity of this little treatise may be taken to indicate the prevalence of the complaints dealt with in its pages and the appreciation by sufferers of a simply-written and straightforward description of their ills, and how to remedy them. As the author's method lies mainly in the regulation of diet there is not as much exception to be taken to the use of his book on the ground of the mischief of self-medication as to some treatises of popular medicine. Also belonging to the class of reprints is Selections from the Writings of John Ruskin, second series, 1860-1888, with a portrait (George Allen). These selections cover the author's publications of a minor character, including the ethical books, such as the "Sesame and Lilies," "Crown of Wild Olive," and others. The subjects illustrated in this volume from Mr. Ruskin's books are art, education, ethics, economy, and religion, and the work of selection has been so well done that no important passage of small compass can at first reading be noticed as having been omitted from the present volume, which completes the work.

From Messrs. Chapman and Hall comes A Modern Layman's Faith (Nova Religio Laici), the sub-title of which is "Concerning the Creed and Breed of the 'Thoroughbred Man,'" by Mr. W. B. Woodgate, M.A. Oxon., barrister of Oxford circuit. This large volume belongs to the group of attempts at recasting the canon of Scripture into individual moulds of theological theory. Mr. Woodgate's thesis is that there were pre-Adamite men, but that the Caucasian (or the Hebrew, the "thoroughbred man") established the fabric of primitive Judaism in order to safeguard race purity as a means to the Messianic mission. For a believer in the Scripture, as Mr. Woodgate professes to be, he can deal like an iconoclast with the miracles. Thus he maintains that Joshua mined the walls of Jericho, and dammed Jordan so as to allow the dryshod passage. The destruction of the Cities of the Plain may have been due to their lying upon a stratum of petroleum, like Baku. Sinai was an eruptive volcano, and Daniel knew of the properties of phosphorus, as well to scare Belshazzar as to overawe the lions. All this is interesting in its due place, but taken together with the flippancy of the style, as in pages 139 or 368 and others, it does not conduce to a respectful attention to the author's argument.

The first volume of Dr. P. W. Joyce's Short History of Ireland, down to 1608, comes from Messrs. Longmans, Green, and Co. It is divided into four parts, the first treating of the Ancient Irish, the second of Christian and Pagan Ireland under native rulers, the third of the English invasion, and the fourth of the period of insurrection, confiscation, and plantation. There is a great deal in this volume to repay reading, and Dr. Joyce's learning and fairness seem competent to his task. The explanation of the Breton laws is full, and the fourth division of the book suggests some of the causes of the perpetual conflicts in Ireland. Incidentally mention is made of the researches of Cardinal Moran in the history and archæology of his country, and he is quoted as an authority.

Among minor publications are Mixed Humanity, by J. K. Cowper (W. H. Allen and Co.), a story of camp life in South Africa; A Complete Surrender, which forms the summer number of the Magazine of Fiction (William Stevens); Chips by an Old Chum; or, Australia in the Fifties (Cassell and Co.); Transfer of Land by Registration of Title, by Mr. T. R. C. Dill, a Cobden Club publication (Cassell and Co.); and a Descriptive Catalogue of the gifts to the Duke of York and Princess May, published by the Imperial Institute.

LITERARY GOSSIP.

"Anything new of interest?" was the query put a few days ago to a leading Sydney bookseller. "No. Mostly weak stuff," was his frank reply. He added, however, that the English book trade would revive during September and October, and so the readers' outlook was promising. To novel-readers it is distinctly pleasing intelligence, for instance, to learn that Mr. W. E. Norris has finished a new story—"an unconventional love story of sustained interest," the publisher dubs it—called "St. Ann's." Messrs. Tillotson will issue the story in October for serial publication. Nowadays readers like to know something about their author. Mr. W. E. Norris is a little over 40. He originally intended to enter the diplomatic service. Having been educated at Eton, he went abroad to study languages with that object in view, but he afterwards changed his mind and began to read for the Bar. He was called in due course, but never practised. He had previously found employment for his pen, and determined to devote himself to literature. It is 15 years since his first novel—"Heaps of Money"—made its appearance, and in recent years he has produced "Matrimony," "No New Thing," "Thirlby Hall," "Adrian Vidal," "A Bachelor's Blunder," "My Friend Jim," "Major and Minor," "Chris," "The Rogue," and "Misadventure."

Many readers of the delightful little Pseudonym Library series know "John Oliver Hobbes," and while in the domain of autobiographical details something may be said of her. Mrs. Craigie, who, under the nom de plume of "John Oliver Hobbes" has written "The Sinner's Comedy" and other works, when only 16 years of age went to Paris to study music at the Conservatoire. She had marked talent as a pianist, a gift inherited from her mother's family. When she returned to England (says a writer in the Gentlewoman) she studied under Professor Macfarren at the Royal Academy of Music, and had she chosen to go on in that genre would assuredly have made her mark in the musical world. At 19, however, she married, and three years later her only child, a son, was born. It was after her marriage that Mrs. Craigie became a student at the London University, and formed that friendship with Professor Goodwin which only ended with his death a year or two ago. She was reading then for a B.A. degree, but under his wise advice gave up classical study for literary work.

At the risk of quoting (continues the writer in the Gentlewoman) I give her own words regarding her position at this stage of her career:—"I had asked him one day to read the first chapter of 'Some Emotions,' and having done so he strongly advised me to give writing the first place in my life, my University work the second. Study and writing he naturally considered inseparable, that is, that while study did not necessitate writing, to write necessitated study. Acting on his advice, I abandoned the idea of reading for the London B.A., and I went on sedulously with 'Some Emotions.'" Mrs. Craigie is not a rapid writer. "The Sinner's Comedy" was begun only a week after the publication of "Some Emotions and a Moral," but it was not fully finished under a twelvemonth; and a "Study in Temptations" took an equally long period of incubation. In personal appearance Mrs. Craigie is peculiarly sympathetic. She is of medium height, very slight, with dark, speaking eyes, and dark hair drawn up carelessly from a wide, low forehead. In conversation she constantly reminds one of her books, and in character she is strong, nervous, and ambitious, with a deep under-current of reserve force and human sympathy. Ever ready to do a kind action, and always putting self and self-interests in the background, she is indeed—and it is not too much to say—"A noble woman nobly planned," one who carries out to the full the fundamental traits of her somewhat peculiar temperament.

Mr. Oscar Wilde is once more about to prove his audacity by publishing a book entitled "The Incomparable and Ingenious History of Mr. W. H., being the true secret of Shakespeare's sonnets, now for the first time here fully set forth." Only 550 copies will be printed—50 large paper and 500 ordinary—and the publishers will be Messrs. Mathews and Lane. The same firm has also a new poem by Mr. Wilde, called "The Sphinx," in preparation.

The English Illustrated Magazine, which has been purchased from Mr. Edward Arnold, the publisher, by Sir William Ingram, of the Illustrated London News, will appear under the new management in October. It has not yet been decided who will be its next editor, but it is understood that Sir William Ingram has some intention of assuming the post himself. Sir William is now largely interested in a number of periodicals. The English Illustrated, which was started by Messrs. Macmillan, passed into the hands of Mr. Arnold only a few months ago.

The new volume of Heinemann's International Library is "The Jew," by Kraszewski, the Polish novelist. Kraszewski, who lived in Germany, was one of those unfortunate persons who incurred the displeasure of Prince Bismarck. He was twice arrested on a charge of high treason, and the second time was sent to prison. Protests against this treatment were received from many parts of Europe, and after three and a half years Bismarck released him, and he was conducted over the German frontier. His health, however, was completely undermined, and he died not very long afterwards. Kraszewski was a most prolific writer, having produced altogether some 450 volumes. "The Jew" is the first book of his that has been published in England.

Mrs. Oliphant has completed a new novel, entitled "A House in Bloomsbury," which will run through the new volume of the Young Woman, commencing with the October number. The serial story for the Young Man next year will be written by the Rev. Silas K. Hocking, and will be entitled "Doctor Dick: A Story of the Cornish Mines."

Mr. J. M. Barrie's new novel will (writes a correspondent) have the Clyde and Clyde scenery for a background. Mr. Barrie is at present staying at Thrums, where he has made his first public appearance in his native village at the opening of a church bazaar in aid of a new original secession—otherwise "auld licht"—church which has been erected there. The natives of Thrums, as Mr. Barrie's readers know, are a curiously unsophisticated people, and although they are "vera proud" of James Matthew, they do not credit him with any remarkable knowledge of their ways. His stories and anecdotes, they declare, are acquired from a local worthy to whom Mr. Barrie goes, taking down his stories in his notebook. Returning to London, Mr. Barrie sends "fair copies" of his notes to the publishers—lo! "another novel by Barrie."

The correspondent of the Daily Chronicle at Lucerne forwards an account of a lecture delivered at that town by Dr. Conan Doyle, in connection with the Reunion Conference organised by Dr. Henry S. Lunn. Over 400 persons listened to the lecture, which was delivered from the reading-desk of Christ Church, the building having been placed at the disposal of Dr. Lunn. Dr. Doyle (says the correspondent) came down heavily on the critics who whine forth pessimistic lamentations over the decay of literature. The proneness of the critic, the Doctor held, was always to depreciate the literary talent of the days in which he lived; but as a fact he maintained that the fiction of the present century was the most certain and permanent part of England's glory, and would last in the memory and appreciation of the people after the labours of the statesman and the soldier had crumbled away. One very striking feature in regard to the present-century fiction was its breadth of view. The novelist was growing ever more cosmopolitan, and in this sense literary federation was preceding the federation of the Empire. He hoped the present-day talent would develop as the tropical tree whose branches curve downward, till, reaching the ground, they take fresh root and unite the parent stem with many others as strong and as thick as itself. The lecturer held that the present generation of authors is largely tinged with Robert Louis Stevenson—a man who ranked high among the few English writers who possessed the dual capacity of writing a book and a taking short story. These arts the Doctor held to be quite distinct—Thackeray, Scott, Reade, and George Eliot, to wit, none of whom had made any mark with the short story order of literature. And while so many writers were thus tinged with Stevenson, Stevenson himself was, in the genesis of his authorship, largely influenced by George Meredith. George Meredith and Thomas Hardy were both instances of men possessed of great powers, who, notwithstanding, had failed to hold the public like some of their predecessors. Olive Schreiner, J. M. Barrie (whom Dr. Doyle thought was destined to live in the memories of Scotsmen like Robert Burns), "Q," and other authors, were all given their meed of panegyric, and then Dr. Doyle came down to Rudyard Kipling—a man whose faults it would be easy for any one to enumerate, who evidently lacked the faculty of judging his own work, but who, notwithstanding all this, stood out as a vivid Indian orchid amongst English roses; who had made himself a great political power, whose literary imagination had done more to unite England and India than the Suez Canal, and whose literary triumphs so early in life were equal to those of Scott, Thackeray, and others at nearly double his age.

Mr. Julian Ralph, in an article in Scribner's describing the life of the newspaper correspondent in the United States, remarks that nothing about the profession is more remarkable than the change that has come over the relationship between the correspondent and the so-called "great man." The correspondents call upon the officials upon terms of equality and get from them what they want—to publish or not to publish, as the two agree. The best Washington correspondents work upon a friendly basis with Cabinet officers and Senators—all of them that they care to know—and are recognised as men pursuing an honourable calling. As a contrast to this free-and-easy method, the writer states that he once congratulated an English reporter, who had reported Gladstone's speeches for nearly 20 years, upon knowing that statesman so well. "God bless you," ejaculated the reporter, "I don't know him at all. I was once unable to escape from his car without passing him when he came in unexpectedly, and a mutual friend introduced me to him. But I never presumed upon that, you know." A noble personage was once asked by an American what he could say to the reporters about something that concerned them both, and which had been discussed in the American press. "Tell the reporters to go to the devil!" replied the exalted foreigner. "Oh, but I can't," said the American. "Our American way is to help each other along. I like to read about other men in our papers, and I must contribute my share to the fund of news. I will have to tell them whatever will do no harm for the public to know."

THE FISH TRADE.

In the course of some inquiries recently made into the fishing trade of Sydney certain opinions were elicited from persons competent to form them, which it may be serviceable to commence by stating. It is considered that the supply of wholesome fish is insufficient to meet the demand, while other fish is over-abundant for the market. The distribution of fish is not satisfactory, neither is the demand for fish general. The industry is at a low ebb, and those engaged in it are not adequately remunerated by market prices. The great quantities of vendible seafish alleged to exist upon the coasts of New South Wales are not apparent, while some contend they are non-existent. Nevertheless a larger demand than the present can be met, to the gain of fishermen, and this demand can be fostered by better distribution at cheap prices in and around Sydney, and by the opening of new markets inland. The increased use of cold storage facilities opens the way to an improvement of the trade. For these statements I claim the authority of fishermen or vendors, or persons whose daily business brings them into contact with such.

First, as to our supply and our resources. Nearly everyone spoken to points out that New Zealand is specially favoured in her fisheries, and that any comparison between our coast and that of the island colony for fish is erroneous. Immense quantities of sea mullet do visit this coast yearly, but they are not considered one of the better quality of fish, while other fish are not found in great numbers. Schnapper, garfish, whiting, and black bream are not abundant, while mullet and black fish are. The manager of the Fresh Food and Ice Company agreed with two parties to take all the superior fish they could catch, and great expectations were entertained of success, but neither expedition resulted satisfactorily. The reason is stated to be that the fish sought were not found in sufficient quantity. Mr. Seymour, the municipal inspector, under whose charge the Woolloomooloo Markets are, says that a party of six trawlers, with boats and gear, came out hither from England, and after a few months' work returned home, saying that they could not pursue their occupation profitably here owing to the rocky bottom along the coast and to the depredations of sharks among the fish and the nets. Our whole present local fish supply is derived from inshore waters. Men in the trade express the opinion that a survey of the deep sea along the coast of the colony with a view to trawling is advisable, but they are not sanguine of the result. If the fish were there, say their spokesmen, we could have had it. Very little fish comes from the harbour; nearly all that reaches the Woolloomooloo Market is caught at Botany, Broken Bay, Lakes Macquarie and Illawarra, Cape Hawke, and along the northern coast, and of the total quantity about half is brought by sea and half by rail. There is a daily market at Woolloomooloo and Redfern, except on Sunday and Monday. Fishermen bring their take direct to the market, where, from about 5.30 to 7.30 a.m., it is offered lot by lot of small fish, larger fish separately, by public auction, all transactions being cash, and 10 per cent. deducted for auction and market fees. Prices vary with the supply and demand, and the market is particularly active during religious fasts.

The next question is that of distribution. The Fresh Food and Ice Company has for four years made a special study of this trade, but without that complete success which was hoped for. The manager said: We have 80 carts visiting all parts of the city daily, and we are prepared to supply fish just as we supply milk, but the demand is not there to the extent we had anticipated. Meat is a formidable competitor with fish, and people in Sydney are sparing fish-eaters but large consumers of meat. But this company has a somewhat exceptional trade, and it will be fairer to take the experience of other vendors. However, even at the Fresh Food and Ice Company it is admitted that if fish could be cheapened in price the consumption would probably be much greater. At the Eastern Market all classes of buyers may be seen, well-to-do persons who come to choose their own fish, stewards, housekeepers, and managers of restaurants, fish shops, and other establishments, and the large class of dealers. This class includes the urchin with a working capital of about half a crown, and a stock-in-trade of cheapest fish sufficient to fill a hand-basket, the man who keeps a cart going, and the man who takes his stock to a shop. It is just here that the fault of the system, or want of system, appears. The hawker buys often cheaply enough, and he would sell cheaply; but his range is restricted to the thickly populated and poorer suburbs, his losses are considerable, and the market is often bad, and always precarious, hence the trade is a poor one. In some suburbs it is difficult to get fish delivered at the door unless it has been ordered. It seems to me that the competition of meat with fish as food is overstated, and that were fish cheaply and regularly vended the business would soon stand on a better footing, to the benefit of the fishermen, the salesmen, and the public. It so happens that our best fishing season opens with the warm weather, and everyone knows how primitive are the accessories of the average hawker, a wet sack in an open cart exposed to a noonday sunshine. The damage is considerable, the prices asked must cover these avoidable losses, and thus the cost of a fish meal to an average family is such that the diet becomes a luxury. Whereas, if the supply could be reasonably equalised, so that cost should become settled, it is hard to see why dealers should not find a profitable and increasing trade by selling fish early in the day throughout the principal suburbs, using vehicles as adapted to the perishable commodity as a baker's, or a butcher's, or a milkman's cart is to his.

Any such result must benefit the fisherman, who at present suffers more from the badness of the market than does his middleman, the dealer. The fisherman's is a precarious industry; his take may one day be so large as to bring down the price of his goods, and another day the catch may be poor or bad. Next, the loss of so delicate an article as fish is considerable. He may miss a market and have all his fish condemned, though under arrangements to be presently adverted to this risk is lessened. He has to pay freight when he uses the railway, cartage to market, auctioneer's commission, and market fees. All these expenses and deductions would be harassing if the demand were brisk and regular; when the demand is languid, it is not to be wondered at if the fisherman finds his hard toil poorly rewarded. The remedy for much of this is to improve the demand. Some features of the case must remain to the end of the chapter, for no art has yet been found to enable the fisher to pursue his craft in fine weather, or to ensure a good haul every working day. Only let it be, for families of moderate means, as easy to get fish as flesh meat, and at a charge not wholly disproportionate, then a change would be witnessed by which the first to benefit would be the fisherman.

One factor in this problem is likely to receive more and more attention. This is the provision of cool storage. The Eastern market was equipped with a plant for securing low temperature, and the cold stores were declared open in July last by the Mayor, having since been used, when necessary, to an increasing extent. The Fresh Food and Ice Company has similar accommodation, but as a private corporation its business falls less under public discussion than the like undertaking of the Municipal Council. Cold storage of surplus fish from the Redfern market is provided at Darling Harbour. As soon as the fish season begins the Woolloomooloo market will be able to store, at a trifling charge, the surplus of one day, which will be carried forward to the next, to the manifest benefit of the fishermen. The development of freezing in our meat, butter, and fruit trade is suggestive of the next step in the fish trade, which opens to view not only the control of the demand in Sydney but the increase of markets inland. It must be felt that in the larger railway towns of the country, where a local fish supply is either too costly or not procurable, there ought to be a larger demand for fresh fish, and this demand can be readily met by utilising the cold-storage vans on the railways. These vans bring down meat; let them (or some of them) take back fish to each of the chief towns touched at. Mr. Hudson thinks that it would be remunerative to attach a small refrigerating car to the principal daily train on the Northern, Western, and Southern lines, so that fish might be distributed in the country towns. There is a good deal of fish sent inland by dealers and private agencies, but the process is not satisfactory; ice is packed in an ordinary case with the fish, and the cases are sent forward in the ordinary manner; the result is often that the ice melts and the fish arrives in a soft condition. With cold storage, chilling not freezing the fish, the goods should reach all parts of the country accessible by rail in a sound and inviting condition. Those who are interested in this industry can do much for it by systematising the supply of Sydney and the country. Next should be to thoroughly test the adjacent deep waters for fish in quantity—something more is wanted than Mr. Deloitte has outlined—and this ascertained, the preserving suggested by Captain Armstrong might be undertaken. But not until the supply of the metropolis is put on a better footing. H.

DEPUTATIONS.

THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BILL.

Yesterday morning a large deputation from the Municipal Association waited on the Premier to urge him to pass the first and second parts of the Local Government Bill during the present session. The deputation was received in the Executive Council Chamber. There were about 60 delegates present, as well as Messrs. Cann and Barbour, Ms.L.A., and Mr. George Lewis, the Local Government officer.

Mr. W. A. Hutchinson, one of the vice-presidents of the association, said the deputation consisted of mayors and aldermen from the various municipalities throughout the colony. The object of the deputation was to ask the Premier whether it was not possible to introduce during this session of Parliament parts one and two of the Local Government Bill introduced by the Government on the 21st November, 1892. The reason for asking the Premier to adopt that course was that parts 1 and 2 of the Local Government Bill included the dividing of the colony into municipal districts, and the establishment of the machinery for working the Act. Parts 1 and 2 did not contain debatable matter, and it would save time to have the machinery of the bill ready when that bill became law. He knew Sir George Dibbs' sympathies were with them in their desire to see the Local Government Bill passed into law, and they trusted he would see his way clear to adopt this course. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. F. G. Crouch, of Casino, said that if the Premier would introduce parts 1 and 2 the measure would be initiated, and an earnest would be given of the desire of the Government to give the country local self-government. After dwelling on the advantages of local government, he said he hoped the Premier would yet find time this session to initiate the scheme which he professed to be so anxious to see passed into law.

Mr. J. J. Miller, Mayor of Cootamundra, said they were quite willing to take the bill in instalments. The matter had been hanging fire for so many years that this seemed to be the only way of getting the bill at all.

Mr. E. Howard, Mayor of Goulburn, said he thought it would be a wise thing if the bill as a whole could be passed this session. Most of the matters originally debatable were now pretty well settled, and there was very little that was debatable in the measure. They might at least pass parts 1 and 2.

Sir George Dibbs, in reply, said he was delighted to meet so large a number of representative men from all parts of the country taking so warm an interest in local government. It augured well for the early fulfilment of the promises which had been made from time to time by the various Governments. There was one thing which would compel it to be the first measure dealt with by the new Parliament, and that was the financial necessities of the country. (Hear, hear.) There would have have to be a Local Self-Government Bill if they were ever to live reasonably within their income, and the passing of that bill would go a long way to settle all the little unevennesses and little difficulties which had been cropping up during the last few years, and especially during the last few months. The single-taxers and land-taxers would have land taxation to their heart's content under local government, and then there would be peace for the rest of the session. (Laughter.) He was perfectly in earnest with regard to the Local Government Bill; but he could not see his way to comply with what the deputation asked, for they had no right to take two bites at a cherry. If the House would pass the first and second parts of the without debate these parts would pass just as rapidly when the whole bill came to be dealt with. But so soon as Mr. Lewis, the local Government officer was free from his labours in connection with the Electoral Bill then he would give him instructions and would make the necessary provision to help him to get all the detail work done in advance ready for the passage of the Local Government Bill. That would pave the way to a great saving of time. (Hear, hear.) The Government was quite alive to the necessity of passing the measure, and, indeed, there would be no peace or good financial administration until the bill was law. (Hear, hear.) He hoped that during the coming election from one end of the country to the other the question of local government will be made a cardinal point in the political "cries" to the people. At present they were paying 30s, where 20s should do, and they were getting the work badly done, because no one was looking after it. The Government offices were invaded day by day by a body of men who were simply imposed upon by progress committees to worry the Ministers out of their lives, almost to do things which people should do for themselves. (Hear, hear.) Local Government was imperative. It stood up head and shoulders over everything else, and must be passed into law. But the Government was under a pledge to Parliament not to introduce new measures. The Government was now only clearing up the table preparatory to making a clean sheet for the new Parliament. In that new Parliament there would be fewer members, and therefore he hoped more work and less talk. There was now a wall standing in their way with "financial necessity" marked on it in large letters, so they would have to pass the bill. He would give Mr. Lewis instructions to get everything ready precisely as had been done with the Electoral Bill.

LAND AT HAMILTON.

Messrs. Fegan and Grahame, Ms.L.A., introduced a deputation from the municipal councils of Hamilton and Wickham at the Department of Lands yesterday, relative to setting apart a piece of land for a cricket ground for the Hamilton municipality, and the dedication of the 100ft. reservation fronting Islington Park for an approach to the bridge. It was promised that the matters would be inquired into and receive early attention.

THE SINGLETON COMMON.

A deputation from the municipal council of Singleton, introduced by Mr. A. J. Gould, M.L.A., waited upon the Department of Lands yesterday, urging that the Singleton Common, which it is proposed to subdivide and sell, was not suitable for cultivation, and, if sold, that purchasers of allotments should not be allowed under the conditions of sale to impound stock until they had fenced in their allotments; also asking that at least 100 acres be set apart for a quarry, rubbish and nightsoil depôt. It was promised that their representations should receive early consideration.

Consumers of Wax Vestas must be careful to see that they get Bryant and May's only, which are the very best in quality and twenty per cent. more in quantity than the foreign-made wax vestas. Bryant and May's Plaid Wax Vestas are made only in London, and have been awarded 19 Prize Medals for excellence of quality. Every box of Bryant and May's Wax Vestas bears their name on a white ribbon inside the well-known red, black, and blue star trade mark. "ELEVEN MEN FROZEN TO DEATH."

"They had wandered round and round in that blinding snowstorm hopelessly lost, in a place only a hundred yards square; and when cold and fatigue vanquished them at last, they scooped out a cave in the snow and lay down and died, not knowing that five steps more would have brought them into the true path."

Thus eleven precious lives were lost in making the descent from Mont Blanc in September, 1870. They suffered the bitterest death recorded in the history of those mountains, full as that history is with dreadful tragedies. Sad to think that they were so near safety, and yet through ignorance so far from it. Alas! how many die under different conditions, but for a like reason.

Here is a man who says, "All my friends thought I was doomed, and I did not care whether I lived or died."

He explains as follows: "Up to October, 1886," he says, "I was a strong, healthy man, and equal to any kind of work. At this time I was taken with a pain that seemed to shoot straight through my heart. I felt as if something was squeezing my heart, and I was in dreadful agony. I had to abandon work and lie up. Then I fell into a low, weak way. I had no appetite, and every morsel I ate gave me a great pain at the chest and a tight, uncomfortable feeling as if all my food turned to wind and did not pass my stomach. I had a great pain at my back and sides, and was never free from pain night or day. Such food as I was able to take lay like a load on my stomach, and my heart would thump so badly I could get no sleep, and night after night I would lie awake.

"I became that weak I dare not lift the lightest article, and so nervous that the slightest sound startled me. Even the children's noise at play upset me. When I ventured out of doors I had to often stand and rest, and my legs were so unsteady I could not walk straight. All this told on my spirits, for before my attack I scarcely knew my strength. I could lift a sack of flour with ease.

"I went to our doctor, who said mine was a bad case. He gave me medicines, but I got no relief from them. Now better, now worse, but never well, I remained in this state for over twelve months, and was under the doctor all that time. At last the doctor recommended me to go to Norwich Hospital and put myself under a celebrated physician there as an indoor patient. I did so in November, 1887. The physician said, 'Your heart is strained and very weak.'

"Whilst in the hospital I was examined by three doctors, and after being under treatment five weeks my case was pronounced incurable. The doctors said I would never be able to do hard work again, and would never get any stronger. I was now anxious to get home, so I left the hospital, but kept on receiving medicine as an outdoor patient for three months longer. Getting weaker and weaker, I gave up taking their medicine and tried different medicines my friends told me of; but nothing did any good, and I lingered on month after month. Now, indeed, I began to despair, for, from a strong, powerful man I was reduced almost to a shadow, and did not care whether I lived or died.

"In June, 1887, a book was left at my house which described a preparation called Mother Seigel's Syrup, and I read of one case like mine being cured by it. I said to my wife, 'Here is a case that exactly corresponds with my case.'

"I had lost all faith in medicines, but as a last resource sent to Mr. Edgerley, Supply Stores, Bungay, for a bottle, and had not taken more than half the contents before I felt better. 'Wife,' I said, 'I believe this Seigel's Syrup is going to cure me.'

"I began to eat, and the food did me good, and I grew stronger and stronger. After taking three bottles I got back to my work strong and healthy, and since then I have never looked behind me. By taking an occasional dose I keep in good health. I can now eat anything and do any kind of work, and went through harvesting as well as anyone, and can lift a peg with ease. I thank God that Seigel's Syrup was ever made known to me, and feel that I owe my life to it. You are at liberty to publish this statement, as I am willing to tell anyone of the benefit I have derived from the medicine.

"Yours truly,
"(Signed) Mr. Robert Wright,
"Earsham, Bungay, Norfolk.
"Witness—(Signed) Isaac Wright,
"Grocer and Tea Dealer, Earsham."

Mr. Wright's complaint was indigestion and dyspepsia, and the heart disturbance which so alarmed him was the result of the mechanical pressure of the stomach against the heart, when the latter was inflated with the gases created by undigested and fermenting food. Many are misled thus to mistake indigestion for some other malady. We can only say we are glad our friend found the true path (the right medicine) before his disease left him no [illegible] to blow into a flame.

SOCIAL.

After the gaiety of last week the past few days have been comparatively quiet, although dinners, theatre parties, water picnics, and other minor entertainments have been given. His Excellency the Governor has almost recovered from his late indisposition, and was well enough to attend the races last Saturday and to perform the ceremony of opening Parliament on Tuesday. The Earl and Countess of Hopetoun left Sydney last Monday afternoon, Lord Hopetoun returning by the express to Melbourne. Lady Hopetoun has been spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Osborne at Currandooley, and was met at Bungendore by Mr. Osborne and driven to his residence. Nearly all our Victorian visitors have returned, and Sydney is resuming its usual quiet. Lady Duff, accompanied by Miss Duff, lunched on board H.M.S. Orlando on Wednesday, and in the evening attended the Liedertafel concert.

Last Tuesday evening Mrs. Bowden-Smith held a large "at home" at Admiralty House, and, as the evening was beautifully fine, the guests much enjoyed the little trip across the harbour from Man-o'-war Steps. The garden was illuminated with the electric light and Chinese lanterns, making a beautiful effect. Easy chairs were placed about the lawn in cosy nooks, and the verandah ornamented with flags and carpeted, chairs and lounges being arranged all round. Inside the house the decorations were charmingly arranged with large palms, choice ferns, and pot plants, whilst the mantelpieces were adorned with white flowers and greenery. The two drawing-rooms were thrown open for dancing. The Orlando band was stationed on the lawn and played an excellent programme of dance music. Refreshments were served in the dining-room and billiard-room during the evening, and all the arrangements that could aid pleasure to the guests were thoughtfully carried out. His Excellency the Admiral and Mrs. Bowden-Smith received their visitors in the drawing-room, and soon after 9 o'clock Lady Duff arrived, accompanied by the Misses Duff, Miss Freemantle, Captain the Hon. Rupert Leigh, Captain Baird, and Captain Fielding. His Excellency the Governor was unable to be present, which was a matter of much regret to the host and hostess. In the opening set of lancers his Excellency the Admiral danced with Lady Duff, Captain St. Clair with Lady Darley, the Hon. F. B. Suttor with Mrs. Bowden-Smith, Colonel Roberts with Lady Windeyer, the Mayor with Mrs. F. B. Suttor, Captain Gibson, R.N., with Mrs. Hixson, Captain Arbuthnot, R.N., with Miss Duff, and Captain Hixson with the Mayoress. The hostess wore a handsome dress of pale amethyst brocade, with jet trimming on the bodice and round the edge of the skirt; diamond ornaments. Lady Duff was in black satin, with pink sleeves and bertha; diamond ornaments, and pink feathers in the hair. Miss Duff also wore black satin, trimmed with jet, and Miss Heather Duff white satin. Miss Bowden-Smith was in black, and Miss Mildred Bowden-Smith wore white; the Admiral's youngest daughter, Miss Winifred, being simply dressed in white muslin. Miss Freemantle wore black satin, with gold embroidery and ficelle-coloured lace on the bodice. Lady Darley's handsome pale pink brocade opened over a panel of pearl embroidery, and diamond ornaments were worn in the hair and on the corsage. Miss Darley was in pink silk, and Miss K. Darley's white silk was trimmed with pale blue gauze. Lady Windeyer wore pale pink silk with white lace jupon. Mrs. C. J. Roberts wore a handsome heliotrope brocaded satin, with rich lace on the corsage. Miss Roberts was in white. The Mayoress was in black silk, with steel trimming, and diamond ornaments. Mrs. Prendergast wore a beautiful dress of heliotrope silk, with velvet sleeves to match, and diamond ornaments. Mrs. F. B. Suttor, black. Mrs. Turnbull, rich white satin, with silver galon on bodice and edge of skirt. Mrs. Verdon, pale blue satin and brocaded bodice, with deep lace bertha. Mrs. Consett Stephen, pale blue silk, striped with fine black lines, and stylishly trimmed with black satin bows and cream guipure lace. Miss Edith Walker, white satin brocade relieved with pale blue sleeves, and diamond ornaments. Mrs. Tickle, handsome white brocade, with lace on the corsage. Mrs. G. B. Simpson, black satin, trimmed with green velvet and cream lace. Miss Simpson, white silk, with deep lace flounces and magnificent diamond ornaments. Mrs. M'Millan, white silk. Miss Clarke (Melbourne), black satin, with ficelle-coloured lace bertha. Miss M. Clarke, white silk, with pink roses round edge of skirt. Mrs. Hervey, handsome pale blue and gold brocade. Mrs. Hatchard, pale pink silk, trimmed with green. The Misses Becker, in pale pink, trimmed with gauze. The naval uniforms worn by the officers from the several ships now in harbour lent an additional brilliancy to the ballroom, and the dance was in every way most enjoyable. The company included, amongst others, the Mayor and Mayoress of Sydney and Miss Manning, Lady Darley and the Misses Darley, the Hon. F. B. Suttor, Mrs. and Miss Suttor, Colonel and Mrs. Roberts, Lady Windeyer and the Misses Windeyer, Captain and Mrs. Hixson and Miss Hixson, Mr. and Mrs. M'Millan, Mr. H. A. Hatchard, Lieutenant and Mrs. Hervey, Mr. and Mrs. Verdon, Mr. and Mrs. Consett Stephen, Brigade-Surgeon and Mrs. Campbell Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Montgomerie Severn, Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Wise, Mr. Bayley and Miss Macarthur, Messrs. J. Allison, G. Cruickshank, Digby Smith, D. D. Baynes, G. B. Michie, H. Dangar, Consul Peldram, Mr. Featherston, Mr. de Little.

At the opening of Parliament on Tuesday morning last by his Excellency the Governor, the Council Chamber was filled with a large gathering of ladies, who occupied seats down either side of the Chamber, many waiting patiently for over an hour to witness a ceremony which only lasted five or six minutes. But the time passed quickly enough watching the different ticket-holders arrive and take their seats. A little before noon Lady Duff entered accompanied by Miss Duff, Miss Heather Duff, and Captain Baird, A.D.C. Amongst others were Mrs. Bowden Smith and Miss M. Bowden Smith, Mrs. F. B. Suttor, Miss Suttor, Lady Abbott, Mrs. Barton, Mrs. Edly, Lady Miklouho-Maclay, Mrs. and Miss Faithfull, Mrs. Campbell Williams, Miss Jennings, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. G. Lee, and Mrs. Bartlett.

A pleasant water-party was given last Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. T. Buckland and Mrs. A. J. Brodie, who entertained about 60 guests. Fortunately the weather (which is always an important element in any kind of outdoor festivity) was beautifully fine. The guests, who assembled at Man-of-war Steps, were taken down Middle Harbour in a large steam launch. The trip passed quickly and pleasantly, tea, coffee, and light refreshments being served soon after starting. A band of music added still further enjoyment to those on board. The party landed at Fig Tree Point, where some danced in the pavilion while others preferred walking about the picturesque spot until it was time to return to the launch. On the homeward trip, ices, tea, and coffee were again handed round, everyone thoroughly enjoying the picnic. Amongst the guests were Mrs. and Miss Burdekin, Mrs. Macnamara, Miss Nellie Hill, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Simpson, Miss Simpson, Mrs. Laurence Impey, Mrs. S. Lainsley, Mrs. Hotham, Mrs. W. Orr, Mrs. Schwarzbach, Miss Robertson, Miss B. Airey, Miss Mary Suttor, Miss Marks, Mr. and Mrs. Elton, Mr. and Mrs. Severn, Miss Throckmorton, Miss Birney, Miss Weston, Mrs. Verdon, Mr. G. Austin, Mr. MacHardy, Mr. C. Cropper, Mr. Frank Evans, Captain the Hon. Rupert Leigh, Captain Arbuthnot, Captain Goodrich, and other well-known members of Sydney society.

A bread-and-butter dance was given in the Paddington Town Hall last Thursday evening in aid of the Sir Joseph Montefiore Jewish Home, which, like many other charitable institutions, has suffered considerably by the recent financial depression. To procure funds for this Home (which was established about five years ago for the relief of the aged and infirm Jewish poor) a week of self-denial was held a short time ago. In order to augment that fund a dance was organised on the same economical plan as the many bread-and-butter dances given for various charities during the past winter, and with the most successful results. The gathering numbered over 300 ladies and gentlemen, the committee having worked hard to make the dance thoroughly enjoyable. A very substantial cheque will, it is hoped, be handed over for the Home.

Miss Ada Bell was "at home" at her studio, 279 George-street, on Thursday afternoon, and entertained a number of her friends with music at afternoon tea. The gathering was held to give Mrs. Lempriere (Miss Bell's sister) an opportunity of saying "good-bye" to her many Sydney friends. Dr. and Mrs. Lempriere returned to Melbourne yesterday.

Mrs. Clibborn gave an enjoyable little dance at her residence, Elizabeth Bay, on Thursday evening, and entertained a number of her young friends.

Quite a large afternoon tea party was given by Mrs. Foster (Tasmania) and Miss Docker, on Monday afternoon, at Jean and Co.'s tea rooms. About 30 guests were entertained with strawberries and cream, ices, tea, coffee, and cakes, the room set apart for the party being prettily decorated with palms, ferns, and flowers.

A cricket match is to be played on the Rushcutter Bay Oval this afternoon between the I Zingari and the Union Club cricket teams, to which a large number of ladies and gentlemen have been invited.

A pleasant evening was spent at the Oddfellows' Hall, Castlereagh-street, Sydney, on Friday, the 22nd instant, when a complimentary plain and fancy dress ball was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Jones, of Keira House, Darlington-road, Golden Grove, by their pupils and friends. Dancing commenced at about 8.30, and continued till 3.30 a.m. The programme of dances was good, and the catering and other arrangements were excellent, largely assisting in making matters pleasant and comfortable for all present. The various coloured dresses worn by the ladies had a pretty and pleasing effect, as did also the fancy costumes of a number of the gentlemen. Mr. Norton presided at the piano, and Misses Chadwick and Johnson and Mr. Tremain supplied the music for extra dances.

We have received from Messrs. David Jones and Co. an admirably illustrated catalogue of their spring and summer fashions. This house has always been noted for the excellent quality of goods which can be obtained there, and just now a visit to their establishment will give any lady a very good idea of what the coming fashions are to be. The catalogue with which we have been favoured is of a larger size than usual, and the prints are in excellent taste. The fashion plates show the prevailing styles for the summer season, and country patrons would find it invaluable, as thereby they could do their shopping by post, each plate having a descriptive note, together with the price list. The materials which promise to be most worn this season are short corded fabrics, such as repp changeant, dentelle ombre, and diagonale soie, silk and wool matalassé cloths, and silk and wool grenadines, the latter material built on bright colours, and forming charming toilettes. Crepons maintain a prominent place, and are to be had in great variety, as well as closely woven shot canvas cloths in new colour blendings are pretty and simple, and especially suitable for young people. Shot poplinettes, bengalines, and whipcords can also be highly recommended. Washing gowns are indispensable in our long summer season, and there is a great variety to choose from, ranging from the lowest possible prices, and therefore, suitable to everyone. A new linen grass zephyr in checked design on holland-coloured grounds is sure to meet with approbation, and several costumes of this material were seen on the Randwick Racecourse during the last meeting. Hollands, drills, and ducks, are made up into jackets and skirts, and can be obtained at a reasonable figure. The shot merv. silks and surahs are one of the novelties at Messrs. David Jones and Co., and the newest designs can be procured at moderate prices. In millinery, this firm are advertising a speciality in their bonnets.

The millinery showroom has just been largely extended, and is perfectly lighted, and in it are to be seen some of the latest Parisian and London bonnets and hats. A very large picture hat was stylishly trimmed with black satin ribbon and flowers. Another was in fancy straw, with the new shot ribbon with flowers and grasses. There was a becoming little jet bonnet trimmed with ribbon and flowers, with an osprey and velvet strings. Sailor hats, always such favourites, and so suitable for mourning wear, are to be had in endless variety. The newest are the Panama. The "blouse" forms an important part in every lady's wardrobe, and is indispensable for summer wear. With a cotton blouse in the morning, a silk or crêpe one in the afternoon worn with black or blue serge skirt and jacket, one can always be neatly and fashionably dressed. There is an endless variety of blouses to choose from at Messrs. David Jones and Co., and when required, can be made to order of any material. The evening blouse is made in India muslin, and trimmed with lace and ribbon, or of pongee silk, trimmed in the same way. Jackets and mantles also receive special attention from this firm, and a list of ready-made jackets, cloaks, mantles, ulsters, &c., will be forwarded on application free of post to any customers in the country. All the little knick-knacks so essential to the finishing off of a lady's toilette can be bought at this well-regulated establishment, where there is a large stock of the newest ribbons, laces, gloves, &c., &c.

The Waverley Concordia held their annual plain and fancy dress ball last night, in the Paddington Town Hall, the ballroom and stage being beautifully decorated with floral designs, flags, &c. About 70 couples took part. The catering was carried out by Mr. T. W. Helmore. Messrs. M'Donald, Griffiths, Heinz, and Levy acted as M.C. Messrs. E. T. H. Bloomfield and E. S. Bethell, hon. secretaries, and Messrs. G. Wallis, D. Haig, S. Beynell as members of committee.

A bread and butter dance in aid of the Montefiore Jewish Home Self-denial Fund was held on Wednesday evening at the residence of Mrs. Elliott Meyer, Potts Point. Invitations were accepted by over 200 persons, and, as a result of the gathering, a substantial amount was placed to the credit of the fund. Mrs. Meyer's house and grounds had been tastefully decorated, and the garlands strung across the ceiling of the ballroom lent a very attractive appearance to the gathering. Among those who were present may be mentioned:—The Hon. H. E. Cohen and Mrs. Cohen, the Rev. Rabbi Davis, Miss Davis, and the Messrs. Davis, the Rev. J. H. Landau and Mrs. Landau, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Levy, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Cohen and Miss Cohen, Dr. and Mrs. Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Mitchell and Miss Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Levy, Mr. and Mrs. Carl and Miss Card, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cohen and Miss Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Montagu Marks, Drs. Jamieson, Mooney, and O'Neill, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Benjamin, Mr. and Miss Nelson, Mr. and Miss Frankel, Mr. E. R. Cohen and Miss Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Salomon and Miss Newton (Brisbane), Miss Daisy Cohen (Melbourne), Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Levy, the Misses Gotheil, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Isaacs, Mr. and Mrs. David Nathan, the Misses Hollander, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Jacobs, Mrs. Drew, and Miss Mosely. Mr. De Groen's band provided excellent music.

FIVE DOCK TRAM SERVICE.

The following is a copy of a letter which has been sent by the Five Dock Council to the general manager of tramways:—"Sir,—At a late meeting of the council of this municipality it was decided to make certain applications and suggestions in connection with the running of the Five Dock tramway. The council consider the present sections inconvenient, rendering the tram unpopular, consequently they recommend the following alterations, viz.:—That the first section extend from Norton-street to Dalhousie-street; that the second section extend from Dalhousie-street to Five Dock Bay-road; and the third section from Five Dock Bay-road to the terminus. In support of this application we would point out that the people living in the neighbourhood of Drummoyne Church, the position of which is shown on the maps of the tram route, prefer to walk the short distance over which it is proposed to extend the section, or travel by omnibus. The alteration of the second section to Five Dock-road is urged so that people living in Hailey-street, Five Dock Bay-road, and the neighbourhood, may use this portion of the line instead of, as at present, walking to Lyons-road. It is submitted the proposed alteration can cause no depreciation in the revenue, but it is likely to cause many more people to use the trams to go into town. The council also respectfully request that all trams in future may run to the terminus at Abbotsford. This alteration is urged, even if necessary to make fewer trips; but it is submitted that fewer trips are not necessary, for on reference to the time-table it will be seen that one hour and eight minutes is the time allowed to elapse between the starting of the first and second trips from Abbotsford in the morning, and that the average service throughout the day is about 36 minutes. In any proposed alteration it is particularly desired that there shall be no alteration in the 7.30 a.m. trip from Abbotsford and 5.8 p.m. trip from Bent-street; and that in consideration of the very long journey for the Five Dock people, extending over one hour and eight minutes, this council respectfully apply that the 5.8 tram from Bent-street be made a through tram, and its being converted into a through tram instead of the following one at 5.20, if such an alteration is necessary, would not cause any inconvenience commensurate with the benefit extended to the ratepayers of the municipality. The council, in view of a recent accident on the late extension, has to propose that the following street intersection shall be fixed as a stopping-place for all trams after leaving Lyons-street, viz., Five Dock Bay-road, Emily-street, and Blackwattle Point-road." At the last council meeting Alderman M'Lean moved that a letter of the Ratepayers' Association to the council on the matter be forwarded to the Railway Commissioners. The Mayor said he had seen the Commissioners on the subject, and had brought all the facts under their notice. Alderman West seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

A meeting of the newly-formed Leichhardt branch of the Labour Electoral League was held at the Spiritualists' Hall, Marlborough-street, on Thursday evening. A large number of names was enrolled, and officers were elected to serve till the end of present year—treasurer, Mr. J. Wilson; secretary, Mr. E. Corbett. A committee was formed, and a canvass of the whole electorate was decided on.

At a meeting of the Annandale Citizens' Committee, held at Newman's Hotel, Johnstone-street, on Thursday evening, Mr. Skelton in the chair, Mr. J. T. Finlay moved, and Mr. T. Schumann seconded,—"That the members for the district be asked to take steps in the Assembly to secure the alteration of the names of the proposed Glebe East and Glebe West electorates to Glebe, Lexteth Division; and Glebe, Annandale Division." Carried unanimously. Mr. R. Hooke moved, and Mr. A. E. Horton seconded,—"That the Glebe Municipal Council be asked to join with the committee in their endeavours to have the names altered as above." Carried unanimously.

A PROMINENT SCIENTIST.

By the death of Dr. George Bennett Australia has lost one of her most distinguished contributors to the scientific knowledge of the world. Though toiling quietly, and but seldom appearing in any public capacity, Dr. Bennett, by his work, obtained world-wide recognition, and practically formed a link between the past and the present generation of scientists. An intimate friend and college companion of Professor Owen's, he carried on for fifty years a correspondence with this distinguished scientist, giving him many valuable hints with regard to the distinctive characteristics of the Australian fauna and flora. The celebrated Charles Darwin was also included among the doctor's friends, and, indeed, the deceased gentleman's investigations followed very closely on the lines adopted by the author of "The Origin of Species." Those who knew Dr. Bennett intimately state that, as a general scientist, he was without compeer in Australia. To him we owe much of our knowledge concerning the Ornithorhynchidæ, the information which he gathered during his youthful travels in Australia having been given to the world in his published works. His investigations covered a wide scope: he was an enthusiastic zoologist, and few could be found to equal him in botanical knowledge. From the time of his first arrival in Sydney he took an active interest in our Botanical Gardens, and by his sympathetic advice did much to raise them to their state of perfection.

The present generation, perhaps, knew but little of Dr. Bennett, for old age had already come upon him when most of us were young. He was born at Plymouth in 1804, and had thus reached the extreme age of 89 when death overtook him. For some time past he had been troubled with a complaint to which the old are particularly susceptible, bronchitis, and about a week ago he fell into an unconscious condition, so that his passing away was peaceful and untroubled. He died yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, at his residence, 167 William-street, and his funeral is to take place this afternoon, the Camperdown Cemetery, Newtown, having been selected as the burial place. Dr. Bennett's connection with Australia dates back for nearly 70 years. In the springtime of his life, when his youthful blood was warm with ambition, he was a great traveller, and at the early age of 15 made a voyage to Ceylon. On returning to England he entered earnestly into study for the medical profession, the result being that he took the high degree of M.R.C.S. (England). Later on in life he added to these qualifications, becoming, in 1859, an F.R.C.S. and M.D. Soon after leaving college he availed himself of a further opportunity of seeing the world, and embarked as surgeon of a vessel engaged on an exploring expedition. The name of the vessel is not ascertainable, but it is stated that the doctor visited Australia during the voyage, and commenced his inquiries into the peculiar mammalia of this ancient continent. In any case, the visitor found the land pleasing to his eye, for in 1832 he re-visited the colony in order to investigate anew the manners, habits, and anatomy of the monotremata, as well as other features of our natural history. His journeyings on this occasion extended to Java, Singapore, and China, and on his return to England he published the results of his researches in a volume entitled "Wanderings in New South Wales, Batavia, Pedir Coast, Singapore, and China, being the journal of a naturalist in these countries during 1832-4." This volume was issued in London in 1834, and during the same year "Notes on the Natural History and Habits of the Ornithorhynchus Paradoxus" saw the light. Amongst the other works written by Dr. Bennett may be mentioned "Gatherings of a Naturalist in Australasia," 1860; "Acclimatisation: Its Eminent Adaptation to Australia," 1862; "A Trip to Queensland in Search of Fossils," 1871; and a pamphlet on "The Introduction, Cultivation, and Economic Uses of the Orange and Others of the Citron Tribe," published in Sydney in 1871.

One of the greatest of the scientific achievements which have to be placed to the credit of the doctor is the fact that he was the first to discover the nautilus in a living state, Professor Owen being the recipient of the specimen. The observations of his latter life, after many years' residence in this colony, were embodied in the volume already mentioned, "Gatherings of a Naturalist." In 1836 he made up his mind to finally settle here, and entered into practice as a medical man. As a doctor he achieved great success, and had at one time a very large clientelé, the kind yet skilful nature of his treatment winning general recognition at a period when the profession was but poorly represented in the colony. Despite his medical duties he still found time to devote attention to scientific research, and he was one of the chief founders of the Australian Museum. For some time after its establishment he acted as secretary for the institution, and later on, when trustees were appointed, became a member of the board of management. The now defunct Acclimatisation Society owed much to his friendly aid, and he was also one of the vice-presidents of the Zoological Society. During the whole of his residence in the colony he kept up an active and learned correspondence with friends at home, and particularly with the Linnean Society, of which he was one of the oldest members. In the course of his researches he gathered together one of the finest scientific libraries in Australia, and it is said that he intended to bequeath the collection to the University, though, until the will is opened, nothing definite can be ascertained. The doctor married three times, and leaves behind him a widow and three sons.

ABORIGINES' PROTECTION ASSOCIATION.

The council of the Aborigines' Protection Association held a special meeting at their offices, Temperance Hall, Pitt-street, yesterday morning, to consider a letter from the Aborigines' Protection Board, having reference to the local committee of advice at Brewarrina. There were present—Mr. U. W. Carpenter, J.P. (in the chair), Rev. J. Bennett Anderson, Rev. Robert Dey, Rev. J. Hargrave, Mr. W. Lawson Dash, J.P., Mr. C. Lovely, Mr. J. G. Treseder, and Mr. G. E. Ardill, general secretary. It was decided that a sub-committee be appointed to prepare a reply to the board's letter, setting forth the position of the council, who appointed the local committee, and stating the determination of the council to insist that all communications from the local committee should be forwarded by them to the council. The meeting was then adjourned, and afterwards met to consider the draft letter of the sub-committee, which was adopted with a few verbal amendments. It was decided that the secretary (Mr. G. E. Ardill) be requested to attend the meeting of the A. P. Board and present the letter from the council, which pointed out that the local committee was appointed by the council, and should be prepared to render their reports to the council, and if this were done the council would have no objection to their continuance in office as a local committee.

BALMAIN UNITED FRIENDLY AND TRADE SOCIETIES' PARADE.

The final meeting of the delegates representing about 5000 members of the various friendly and trade societies in connection with the late hospital parade was held in the Dispensary Hall, Beattie-street, Balmain, last night. Mr. Thomas Davidson occupied the chair. Correspondence was read from Mr. Richard Wand (hon. sec. of the Balmain Cottage Hospital), Rev. W. A. Charlton (St. John's Church, Balmain North), and Mr. P. Wallace (Balmain West Superior Public School) enclosing various amounts which had been collected since the parade; and from Rev. W. Taylor, Marrickville, apologising for his absence at the parade. A long discussion ensued as to the manner in which the money collected should be paid, and it was decided, after several resolutions and amendments had been moved, that the money be paid over to the board of management of the Cottage Hospital by the hon. treasurers of the parade committee. It was also resolved that a deputation consisting of the executive officers of the parade wait upon the board of management of the hospital and submit the following resolution:—"That, in the opinion of this meeting, the time has arrived when the scope of the hospital should be extended." The auditors, Messrs. R. Campbell and C. Walker gave a verbal report to the effect that owing to the absence of certain information they would not sign the balance-sheet, but so far as they could make out the sum of £130 8s 9d would be the amount available to pay over to the hospital. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. R. Campbell for his services as auditor. Mr. Thomas Worsley was awarded the walking-stick presented by Alderman Chidgey to the one who collected the largest amount during the parade, and it was unanimously decided that the stick be inscribed before being handed over.

Lodge Friendship, No. 156, Independent Order of Good Templars, held a meeting in the Oddfellows' Hall, Liverpool-road, Ashfield, on Thursday night. Bro. Thomas Dean, Chief Templar, presided. Harmony was contributed by Misses Kirchen, Boons, Fluke, and Muleman, and Messrs. Seake and E. Kirchen. During the evening it was unanimously resolved to petition Parliament to pass a bill providing for the taking of a plebiscite vote on the distinct issue of prohibition. It was likewise decided that the secretary send a letter to the Women's Christian Temperance Union congratulating it on the activity it was displaying in urging onward the temperance cause.

FREETRADE AND LAND REFORM ELECTORAL COMMITTEE.

MEETING AT BALMAIN.

A meeting of supporters of freetrade was held yesterday evening, in the Balmain Town Hall, for the purpose of forming a branch of the Freetrade and Land Reform Electoral Committee. The Mayor of Balmain, Mr. J. J. Wheeler, occupied the chair. There was a large attendance.

Mr. B. R. Wise, M.L.A., who was received with loud cheers, said that six years ago, when he last delivered an address in that hall, he had called attention to the conservative reaction which was then setting in. His forecast had been correct, and they were now in the shadow of a great darkness. In all political societies men had always been divided into two opposing camps. The first consisted of those who were convinced of the duty of individual independence, and believed in the possibility of human progress. They were the Liberal party. (Applause.) It was true that progress had been slow, but there were signs that the pace was quickening, and there was reason to believe that reforms which would once have taken generations would now be accomplished in a few years. (Hear, hear.) The opponents of Liberalism, like their opponents of to-day, had always been composed of those who mistrusted the power of individual effort, and relying on tradition and authority, had no faith in human progress. The mistrust of the people was only tempered by fear, and their policy had always been to keep to themselves all benefits they possessed. They might depend upon it that whenever they saw in any section of the people a disinclination to give fair consideration to the rights of others—whether they found this symptom among employers or trade-unionists, plutocrats or anarchists—there they had the ancient and undying mark of the "political beast"—the visible expression of that evil spirit against which Liberalism offered perpetual protest. (Applause.) Applying what he had just said to the present political crisis, a few weeks ago the leading members of the Liberal party, with one exception, declared themselves in favour of a tax upon unimproved land values. The result of that bold declaration was both amusing and instructive. There was a great crackling of thorns under the pot in every part of the Tory camp, and, while one section of their enemies denounced them because they did not at once propose to destroy all private ownership in land, another section dubbed them anarchists and featherheads because they urged that the man who grew rich by the labour of others while he himself was sleeping ought to contribute something to the national revenue. First, it was said that they proposed a tax of 4d in the £ upon the unimproved value of land; and, although the secretary of the league immediately wrote to deny that statement, his letter was kept back from publication for a week, and the statement itself had never been withdrawn. Now he took that opportunity, as president of the Freetrade and Land Reform League, and with the concurrence of the committee, of saying that it had never been proposed by them to place a tax of that amount upon the present unimproved value of land. What the proper amount ought to be he did not at present undertake to say, although he thought that the amount of one penny in the £, which had been suggested by Mr. Reid, was not at all unreasonable. Still he would be the last to ignore that regard must be paid to their past land legislation; and though he was opposed to any exemptions, he recognised that land had changed hands so frequently of late years, and the law had so long allowed the appropriation of the State-earned increment by private individuals, that it would be unjust and impossible by any form of taxation to recover any but the fractional part of the value which the State had already added to private holdings. The utmost they could hope for was to secure to the State in the future a fair share of all future increments. (Applause.) Next it was said that that league was a league of single-taxers. They were not a league of single-taxers, nor were they likely to be. (Hear, hear.) Sir George Dibbs had said that a tax of 1d in the £ on land values was a tax on country producers for the profit of persons living in town. As a matter of fact, the principal increase in the value of land had occurred in Sydney and other towns, and not in the country. Land in Sydney had been sold at £1500 a foot. Was there any land in the country worth £1500 per acre? Almost every penny of the value of the country farms was due to the labour and intelligence and industry of those who owned them. As the law now stood the speculator who held land idly till the increase in population enhanced its price escaped taxation, while the farmer, the squatter, the miner, and every one else who put his hand to a productive purpose paid taxes upon his clothing, his house, his improvements, the very instruments of husbandry, and even on his food. To remove these burdens from the producer, and to place them on the shoulders of the non-producer was the object of that league, and he ventured to think was the will of that meeting. (Cheers.) The plain truth was that the effect of a tax upon the unimproved value of land would be to shift the burden of taxation from the producer in the country to the non-producer in town. (Applause.) How could such a tax be called confiscation. It was not a tax in the ordinary acceptation of the term. It was simply a resumption by the State of a fractional part of the value which the State had itself created. (Hear, hear.) In his opinion the confiscator was he who appropriated the proceeds of other people's labour, and not he who asked that the State should get back a portion of the value which the State created. The fundamental maxim of land taxation was that every man should be secured in the undisturbed possession of the fruits of his own industry, but that he should not be allowed to take to himself the fruits of other persons' industry. (Applause). There was nothing new in the proposal to tax land values, and he believed the explanation of all the frenzied outburst of opposition and disparagement was that it was now recognised for the first time that those who advocated a land tax meant to have it. (Cheers.) The vehemence of the Opposition was a proof of the strength of the movement. (Hear, hear.) But the Opposition was now going to take another form. It would profess approval of land taxation, but would try to couple with it some impossible condition. They had lately heard a very prominent member of the freetrade party enunciate an irresponsible programme, in which he declared that the freetrade party must, immediately upon the assembling of the new Parliament, introduce four bills—one to repeal the ad valorem duties of the present tariff, another to repeal the specific duties, another to impose an income tax, and a fourth to introduce a local government bill. These four bills, said that gentleman, must go up together to the Upper House, and must all stand or fall as one measure. Now, he wanted to say a very few words about this irresponsible programme; but they would be very plain ones. Such a programme, no matter with what intention it was introduced, simply meant the shelving of the land tax. (Hear, hear.) And this for two reasons. First, because it imposed an amount of work upon the Assembly which could not be got through before the end of next year; and, secondly, because it coupled taxation with other proposals of doubtful value and uncertain popularity. (Applause.) The great majority of the Liberal party, and, as he believed, the great majority of the electors, were determined to have a tax on land values, that there should be no longer any paltering with that great reform. (Cheers.) They would refuse to be put off even for another year by any politician's pretexts for delay. They wanted the land tax not only as a measure of finance and an equitable means of raising revenue, but also a measure of social reform, and is an act of justice to the producing classes. (Applause.) Retrenchment or no retrenchment, income tax or no income tax, local government or no local government, Upper House or no Upper House, they intended to have a land tax. (Loud cheers.) It might be that an income tax would be needed, but that would be a temporary expedient, while a land tax would be permanent. If an income tax was necessary, he hoped it would be levied upon professional incomes and incomes derived from investments, and that the struggling tradesman and squatter and producer would be exempt. (Hear, hear.) One reason why it was not necessary to introduce an income tax in this country was because the conditions were such that it was impossible for a man to invest his savings without putting a portion of them directly or indirectly into land. If any one doubted that he would ask him to read two most admirable articles in the Sydney Morning Herald by Mr. Edward Pulsford. (Hear, hear.) These articles, written nominally against land tax, formed a most conclusive demonstration of what he was now putting forward, for Mr. Pulsford demonstrated that the bulk of the investments of this country were upon mortgages. No one proposed in any land tax to exempt mortgagees. On the contrary, the strictest care would be taken to prevent mortgagees contracting themselves out of it. Therefore, as Mr. Pulsford had demonstrated, a land tax would get at nine-tenths of the people who saved money in this country. It was now slowly dawning on the minds of even the most fanatical that protection offered no assistance to the working classes. It was now perceived that not only was protection no remedy, but that it was a positive obstacle in the path of progress. That was why the fiscal question can never be sunk, and why the proposal to sink it betrayed a childish ignorance of the facts of political life. The fiscal question could not be sunk, because it entered into every measure of importance which was likely to come up for settlement during the next two years. (Hear, hear.) In a young community three parts of politics must be financial. So that any league which instructed its representatives to have no opinion on the fiscal question condemned them to be idle and useless spectators of three parts of the work of Parliament. (Applause.) They must get rid of that tiresome controversy between freetrade and protection, which at present blocked the way to all reforms. If the protectionists were in a majority let them establish a rigidly protective system, and emulate the prosperity of Victoria. (Laughter and applause.) If freetraders were in a majority let them establish true freetrade—the country was sick of mere hybrid and hypocritical tariffs, and demands with a clear voice that one policy or other shall prevail. (Hear, hear.) As a freetrader he had no doubt that the cause of freetrade would triumph. He recognised, however, that there was danger in over-confidence, and multiplicity of candidates, and the uncertainty which must exist as to the nature of the new electoral conditions. He would advise that no elector should pledge himself to any candidate until a week before the polling day. In the meantime, he would urge that associations such as these be formed in every electoral division, and that no pains be spared to bring about unanimity of thought and action, so that at the next election the Liberal party might win a victory over prote[illegible] which would prove a stepping-stone to the triumph of its principles throughout Aust[illegible] (Loud cheers.)

Mr. S. Bradley moved,—"That this meeting is of opinion that the equitable adjustment of taxation requires the immediate imposition of a tax on the unimproved value of land, with a view to the abolition of taxes upon industry and improvements."

Mr. William Harding seconded the motion, and it was carried by a very large majority.

On the motion of Mr. T. Henley, seconded by Mr. R. G. Christie, it was resolved to form a branch of the league in Balmain, to be called the Balmain Branch of the Freetrade and Land Reform Electoral Committee.

A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the meeting.

MEETINGS.

SILK-GROWING INDUSTRY.

Last evening a number of ladies and gentlemen met at the residence of Lady Windeyer, Lulworth, Roslyn Gardens, to discuss the question of silk-growing and women's industries, more especially in regard to the projected Women's Co-operative Silk-growing Association of New South Wales, Limited. Among those who accepted invitations were:—Mrs. Sanger Evans, managing secretary; of the association, Dr. and Mrs. Creed, Mrs. Chamier, Dr. and Mrs. Garran, Mr. F. B. Gipps, the Hon. R. Burdett Smith, C.M.G., and Miss Smith, Madame Beattie, Mrs. Guilett, Miss May Manning, Mrs. Hobbs, Mrs. Armitage, Mrs. Twynam, and Miss Roberts.

Dr. Creed, at the request of Lady Windeyer, explained the objects of the meeting. It was, he said, to place before them a scheme which had been very carefully drawn up, with the object of establishing sericulture in New South Wales, especially in connection with the employment of women. It had been thought that in that way an opening might be found for many ladies at present placed in unfortunate circumstances. The scheme had been drawn up and revised by a board of advice, the members of which had expressed the opinion that it had all the necessaries for financial success.

Mrs. Sanger Evans then explained the provisions of the scheme for the flotation of the proposed association. The prospectus contained the following statements:—"The chief object of this association is to open up avenues of employment on the land for women of all classes, of whom large numbers are now in great distress. For this purpose to establish, on co-operative principles, industries suited to their strength and capacities, and of a profitable nature. Chief among these, and as a staple and permanent one, is extensive silk growing, supplemented for quicker returns by such other industries as bee-keeping, scent-making, and herb and drug growing, all of which employment can be carried on by women. Without going into details, we may assert confidentially from statistics, that silk growing is a most profitable industry in several European countries. These countries are less favourable in climate than New South Wales, both to the trees and to the worms. We have, therefore, every reason to hope that the industry will be even more profitable here than it has been in Italy and France. In the past the chief causes of failure in the production and the sale of Australian silk have arisen—First, from the want of sufficient capital, since the outlay is large, and the returns, though large, are slow. Secondly, the amount produced has been insufficient to create and to supply a constant market. Thirdly, the producers generally have been ignorant of the best methods of growing silk. We hope to raise sufficient capital, and to work on a sufficiently large scale, to obviate the first and second causes of failure. To meet the difficulty that the returns from silk are slow, we propose to cultivate herbs and flowers between the rows of mulberry. These will yield a return at once, and, we need hardly point out, that the returns from scent and honey should be not only quick, but lucrative. It is enough to state that £17,000 worth of scents have been imported into New South Wales in one year. The returns from bee farming in this colony are most encouraging, and the market for honey is practically unlimited, as in confectionery, preserving, &c., honey can be used, and 1lb. of honey is equal to 4lb. of sugar. The association has rented 22 acres at £1 per year, of this seven acres are planted with old mulberry ready for use, and students have already begun work there, learning best methods. It is further proposed to take up or purchase a block of about 1000 acres, and plant about 100 acres of it to be ready for use, as our students are prepared to undertake the management, increasing the acreage under mulberry year by year, as funds will allow." Referring to the question of the employment of women, she said public opinion had greatly changed during the past few years. The state of thought now was well expressed by the Pope in his Encyclical,—"The question of poverty is one that is to be answered, and answered quickly." One had reason to believe now that to allow this miserable state of poverty to continue was a blot upon our civilisation. The state of things in Sydney at present was deplorable, and many of the means taken to alleviate the sufferings of the unemployed only tended to aggravate the evil. The women suffered more than the men. They could not congregate round the Statue, or besiege Parliament House and demand work, or go "fossicking" in the country; they had the children to attend to and could not do anything. This scheme just referred to, however, would go a long way towards absorbing waste labour. The promoters had great hopes that they would be able to commence operations this season: the main difficulty was want of funds.

Lady Windeyer, in thanking Mrs. Evans for her speech, said the enterprise was not only a philanthropic one, but, to a certain extent, it would be patriotic, if it helped in some degree to solve the great problem of labour and capital—shareholders and workers. One great thing which would commend itself to the favour of the public was its co-operative principle. The workers would have a share in the profits as well as the management. Those who could help in this scheme would be aiding a patriotic work.

Mr. Gipps said that the question of co-operation was one of the most important of the day as affecting the great middle class of the country. He explained the principle of co-operation in detail, and said that if the scheme were carried out as laid down in the prospectus it would probably be a great success.

At the conclusion of the meeting several shares were taken up by those present.

THE AUSTRALASIAN FISH, POULTRY, AND FRUIT EXPORTING AND PRESERVING COMPANY.

A meeting in connection with the above company was held on 27th instant at Punch's Hotel. Captain Amora was voted to the chair.

Mr. W. M. Wesslink explained that a number of shares still remained unapplied for.

The objects of the company were explained fully by the chairman, and it was considered advisable to put the company on a co-operative basis. The manager (pro tem.) had drawn attention to the great success of such a company.

A discussion then took place upon the motion,—"That the Socialists were not justified in disturbing Mr. M'Millan's meeting." The motion was carried.

CRICKET.

The draw for matches to be played under the auspices of the New South Wales Cricket Union took place at the Cambridge Club Hotel last night with the following results:—Club Matches: Grosvenor v. Our Boys, Redfern Albert v. Arlington, Glenmore v. Surrey Alfred, Ardburgh v. Centennial, Huntley v. Endeavour, Newtown v. Stedman Imperial, Royal Oak v. Paddington, Surrey United A v. Capulet. Borough Matches: Hurstville v. Woollahra, Randwick v. Camperdown, Paddington v. Ashfield, Rockdale v. Glebe, Petersham v. Waverley, Balmain v. North Sydney, Newtown a bye. The matches will commence next Saturday.

A match was played at Victoria Barracks on Thursday afternoon between a scratch team of the Headquarters Staff and a team representing A Battery, Brigade Division Field Artillery, and, after a pleasant game, a substantial win was recorded for the Battery. The scores were: Headquarters Staff, 74 (Captain Bouverie 26, Sergeant Darby 26); A Battery, 181 (Trumpeter Farrell 39, Bombardier Taylor 51, Gunner Colbourne 18). The Staff team was very much in want of practice, and their fielding was only fair, with the exception of that of Lieut.-Colonel Mackenzie. The bowling was done chiefly by Captain Bouverie, Sergeant Darby, Brigade-major Green, and Mr. Holmes for the Staff; and Bombardier Farrell, Gunner Colbourne, and Trumpeter Farrell for the Battery.

An advertisement elsewhere draws attention to the fact that the time for receiving tenders for the Sheffield Shield has been extended to the 30th November. Tenders must be accompanied by designs, and the shield is to be of the full value of £150. One of the conditions is that it must be manufactured in Australia of colonial silver.

The Waverley Association played the Referee on Waverley Park on Wednesday afternoon, the result being a draw. Scores: Waverley, 134 (Terry 45, Fursey 37, Warren 19); Referee, 88 for seven wickets (Lonnen 32, Davis not out 20, Sea 16). For Waverley Wills took all seven wickets. For their opponents Cope captured six and Merchant three. R. Cooke was the skipper for Waverley, and Cope for the visitors.

A cricket match was played yesterday afternoon on Connolly's Paddock, North Sydney, between the local Police Force C.C., under the captaincy of the C.P.S. (Mr. G. S. Boileau, J.P.), and a team of blue-jackets from H.M.S. Orlando, who were captained by Mr. Biggs. Owing to the rain the turf was very slippery, and the result was that many of the fielders had rather a lively time of it. Orlando went in first, and made 73 (Landon 18). The Police scored 174 (Bennett, jun., 44, Briggs 20, Bryce 18, Emery 18, Gumley 11, Boileau 12, Heas 15). Out of the three matches which have, so far, been played, the police have succeeded in winning two.

CYCLING.

G. E. Osmond and R. G. Merry created a new mile record for tandems at Herne Hill last month. Without pace-makers they rode a quarter of a mile in 32 3-5, half-mile in 62, three-quarters in 1.34 2-5, and the full mile in 2.7 4-5. The previous record was 2.11 2-5.

A special general meeting of the Redfern Bicycle Club was held in the Redfern Town Hall on Thursday evening. Mr. T. C. Newman occupied the chair, about 20 members being present. Mr. A. Jennings was elected a new member. The meeting decided that the money due to the club from profits arising from the combined clubs' sports, held on the 16th, be banked for further use at some future combined clubs' race meeting. The club decided upon holding a 10-mile club road race over the Botany course on Saturday, the 21st of October, the first prize to be a lady's gold bracelet, value £7 7s, presented by Mr. F. Letley, a member of the club; second prize, value £3 3s, presented by Mr. S. Bowen; the third prize an open order, value £1 10s. Messrs. E. E. Rose, W. Jarman, and A. Allen were appointed handicappers. The club having held a very successful road race with sealed handicaps on a previous occasion it was decided to have sealed handicaps for their coming road race. Entries will be received up to Saturday, 14th October. Pace-makers will be allowed. Mr. F. W. C. Crane was elected starter, and Messrs. G. Richardson, F. Rugg, and F. W. C. Crane, as timekeepers, and Mr. T. C. Newman as judge. It was announced that a two-guinea medal would be presented to any of the members of the club breaking the existing 10-mile record in any of the Redfern Club's races during the ensuing 12 months. The road race will start from the Waterloo tram terminus at 3 o'clock.

The members of the League of New South Wales Wheelmen will run to Botany this afternoon, leaving Martin-place at 2.30.

Mr. C. W. Bennett received a telegram yesterday informing him that Mr. P. A. Armstrong had arrived at Albury at midnight, and had gone on to Benalla. He expects to reach Melbourne to-day.

ATHLETICS.

At a meeting held last night at the Queen's Arms Hotel, North Sydney, it was decided to form a harrier club, to be called the North Sydney Harriers. Mr. J. W. Gruse was elected hon. secretary pro tem., and a provisional committee was appointed to draft rules.

PIGEON SHOOTING.

A right-out trophy will be competed for at the New South Wales Gun Club's grounds, Botany, to-day.

SWIMMING.

The international one mile championship swimming race was contested in England last month, at Hollingworth Lake, near Manchester, between J. Nuttall, of England, and M'Cusker, of America. Nuttall won by 200 yards in 26 minutes 8 seconds, the old record being 28 minutes 7¼ seconds, made by Nuttall in the sea at Brighton, when he defeated Finney.

AQUATICS.

ROWING ASSOCIATION REGATTA.

The annual regatta of the New South Wales Rowing Association will be held on the Parramatta River this afternoon. Steamers to follow the races are advertised to leave the old Manly Wharf, Circular Quay, at 2.30 p.m. A large attendance should reward the exertions of the association committee, particularly as the sport is likely to be interesting. Besides, the cost of tickets has been reduced to almost nominal prices. There are five crews for the maiden fours, and this should prove an excellent race. Senior scullers in best boats have entered to the number of seven—Messrs. Lambert, M'Rae, Alberton, Chandler, Aldworth, Whitmore, and Parkinson. Lambert should win, but as to placing second and third men, opinions never differed so much before. The junior fours will bring together four crews, and an exciting race is certain to be witnessed. The race of the day will be the champion eights, for which Sydney, Mercantile, North Shore, and East Sydney have entered splendid crews. North Shore has done such good work under the coaching of Messrs. E. J. Robson and B. Barton, that their chance of repeating the Lane Cove eights victory is considered as excellent. Mercantile has improved so much during the past few days that the chance of this club regaining the position held for so many years is far better than many persons imagine. The East Sydney has done very satisfactory work, and is credited with having rowed a mile in record time. Rather hard luck has fallen on this crew during the past day or two, but the friends of the club are confident that the "blue and white" will row a grand race. Sydney has had less training than the other teams, but is rowing very nicely, and has a considerable advantage in the way of boats. Competitors are warned that the races will be started to time, and no regard will be shown to crews absent at the time set down for starting.

PRINCE ALFRED YACHT CLUB.

A committee meeting of the Prince Alfred Yacht Club, presided over by the commodore (Mr. S. Hordern), was held in the club's rooms, Hotel Australia, on Tuesday evening. The chairman submitted the name of Mr. S. T. Wilson for honorary membership, for past services. This was supported by the vice-commodore (Mr. A. A. Griffiths) and several other gentlemen. The proposition was unanimously agreed to. The hon. secretary was also requested to write the late hon. treasurer (Mr. F. Bredero), conveying the thanks of the club for his zeal in that capacity during the past two seasons. The programme for the coming season was then considered, but owing to the senior club (the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron) not having made its fixtures, the commodore suggested that the various events might be fixed, but that the dates should be left an open question pending an answer from the Royal Club. Before separating, Mr. Ernest Thompson was duly elected to fill the position of official measurer to the club. The commodore (Mr. Hordern) and vice-commodore (Mr. A. A. Griffiths) have donated £15 15s and £10 respectively to be competed for during the season.

PROSPECTS OF THE YACHTING SEASON.

The season of 1893-94, now on the eve of opening, does not promise, so far as the larger yachts are concerned, to be quite so brilliant as the last. This is in a large measure due to the loss of the first-class craft Volunteer, which at present is in New Zealand waters. We look back with pleasure at the races in which this yacht and Mr. Milson's 40-rater Era were rivals, and remember also the difficulty it was to place either, until somehow or other the Volunteer got out of trim, and while in that state the big yacht had it all her own way. Racing among the first-class yachts, under cutter rig, will, it is hardly expected be seen in Sydney Harbour for some time, unless the Magic or Archina don their big canvas. This is not at all likely, hence the racing between the larger boats will of necessity be under their pleasure sails. Among the smaller yachts Thelma stands alone, unless the fleet 10 rater Isca is prepared to try conclusions with her. There is at present, however, some doubt about the latter craft going into commission for a month or so. The 6-tonners Sao, Assegai, and Iolanthe, between whom so much rivalry existed, are not yet in racing trim, with the exception of Assegai, which has been under her cruising sails during the past week. She appears to be the only one of the trio that is likely to carry a racing flag this season. In that case the contests will be shorn of much of the interest which was always attached to the meeting of these yachts. "Class racing" under the circumstances will be a thing of the past, and in its stead handicap racing should prove an attraction to many of the yachts which at present go in for cruising pure and simple. Could the various owners of the latter be induced to come to the scratch, some fairly good contests would no doubt result. Such yachts as Magic, Jess, Othona, Electra, Sirocco, Violet, Sapphire, Guinevere, and others can make very good pace when under decent-sized canvas, and their advent again under these conditions would tend to give yachting a fillip, which it appears to be very much in want of. The original two and a half raters, or model yachts, will be heard of again this season. The Prince Alfred Yacht Club have a race on their programme for this class (handicapped); this club has also eight or nine other events to decide during the season (not including regattas). This with the fixtures (not yet made) of the Royal Sydney Yacht Squadron should give plenty of racing, provided the yacht-owners can see their way clear to enter their yachts for each and every event for which they are eligible. The Era was out under the yawl rig last week, and as usual looked very well. So far there have been two additions to the yachting fleet this year, one of which was a small craft of about two rating, built at Drummoyne for Dr. Sinclair. The other, although not yet launched, is fast approaching completion, and should prove a very comfortable cruiser. She is being built to the order of Mr. A. Oliver at North Shore.

Of the clubs admitting the smaller class of sailing craft all (with the exception of the East Sydney Club) have held their annual meetings and elected office-bearers for the ensuing season. It is noticeable that, with one or two exceptions each club has re-elected last year's officers to similar positions. The Sydney Amateurs, Port Jackson, and Johnstone's Bay clubs have issued their programmes for the season, whilst the Neutral Bay Club will fix its dates next week. Notwithstanding the prevailing bad times the committees of the various clubs anticipate a very fair season. The Sydney Amateurs—the oldest of the sailing clubs—open its season on the 14th of next month with a hurry scurry race, finishing in Neutral Bay, after which light refreshments will be partaken of. In addition to the opening event there are nine other items, which include a champion race, to be sailed in two heats, also limited crews' races, and best-and-best events, which will occupy the members until the 24th March next. Whilst referring to this club a hint might be thrown out as to the want of life generally manifested in its doings compared with those of the Johnstone's Bay and Port Jackson Clubs. If a champion race, open to all boats of the harbour, was added to the programme, it would be the means of increasing the interest of the public in the club, in addition to helping the sport along generally, it is to be hoped that the committee will take the hint. The next club, in order of birth, is the Port Jackson Club, which celebrates its opening by a general handicap race on the 28th ultimo; then follow eight other events, which will include championship races. The committee has already received good support, and expect to show a good report at the end of the season. Several new craft will appear on the club register this season. This club is working on somewhat different lines this year. Instead of enforcing membership to all competing crews of boats, non-members may now be carried. The alteration has necessitated an increased fee for registering boats and entering in races. The Neutral Bay Club has not yet fixed its programme. This will be done during next week. The opening event will be celebrated most likely conjointly with the Sydney Amateurs. With the class of membership as appears on this club's roll there ought to be no lack of sport during the season. Last, but by no means least, is the youngest club, the Johnstone's Bay Sailing Club. This club is at present the most lively and successful of the harbour, and the senior club might take pattern in its management. The programme will be started next Saturday with a race for all boats. There are 20 events in all on this year's programme, and in addition to handicap races for all class of sailing there are champion races for 24-footers, 22-footers, 20-footers, 18-footers, 16-footers, and 10-footers. It is expected that the prizes to be offered during the coming season will fall little short of £200. A number of new craft will be found competing in many of the club events. With reference to public regattas, it is improbable that Double Bay will be first underway, as is usual. Nothing has yet been done towards carrying it out. It is rumoured that the committee are of opinion that the date usually selected is inopportune, as most sporting men are absent at the Melbourne races, and probably a later date will be chosen. Balmain Regatta is well underway, and as both rowing and sailing men are working in harmony the regatta to be held on the 9th November next should rank amongst the most successful held. It is rather early to predict what the Anniversary Regatta will prove, but if taken up in the same manner as last year there should be no second opinion as to its success. The coming season will be noted for the appearance of a number of new craft. There are the Lady Loch, owned by Mr. Langford, and built by Reid; the Lady Duff, built by Donnelly for Mr. H. Pearce; and the Willis, built by Messenger Bros., all 24-footers; likewise 18-footers built by Golding, Hubbard, and Stephens, which will don racing colours for the first time in next Saturday's race of the Johnstone's Bay Club.

The quarterly meeting of the Cumberland District Lodge, M.U., I.O.O.F., was held at the district-chambers, Granville, on Wednesday. Three district officers were present, also delegates from the whole of the lodges in the district, and Bro. W. S. Farquhar, P.G.M., presided. A satisfactory balance-sheet presented by the treasurer was adopted, and the report of the auditors was also adopted. The statement of lodge returns showed that there were eight lodges in the district, with a total membership of 431, as against 392 for the last quarter, the increase being 44 members. The funds had been increased by £19 1s 10d during the quarter, making a total of £639 10s 9d. The nomination of officers for the next year resulted as follows:—P.G.M., Bro. A. M'Gill; D.P.G.M., Bro. Charles Morely, P.G.; P.C.S., Bro. J. Scarborough; P.P.G.M., Bro. J. G. Fyall.

The "Ceylon Independent" says:—"The history of the famous Haputale Group of Tea Estates, which has passed into Mr. Lipton's hands, is known to us since the date of the formation of the estates. The extensive plantations are at the front for Tea. The unrivalled climate of the Haputale Group, like that of Southern Europe, and the splendid soil of the estates, with first-class general treatment and manufacture, give the tea produced in them a delicacy and strength of flavour which, in Mr. Lipton's hands, will only confirm beyond dispute the name of 'Ceylon' as the country which grows the finest Tea in the World."

The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1893.

The inquest on the victims of the Carcoar tragedy was concluded yesterday, when the jury returned a verdict of wilful murder against Edwin Herbert Glasson. In their verdict the jurymen further found that Glasson entered the bank with some other person or persons unknown.

Glasson was committed to take his trial at the Bathurst Assizes on 11th October next. Owing to the state of public feeling the police feared to send the prisoner to Bathurst by train, and he was therefore driven to that place in a buggy.

The New South Wales 4 per cent. loan of £2,500,000 is to be placed on the London market to-day.

Sir George Dibbs stated yesterday that the loan was needed to pay off £1,250,000 worth of Treasury bills falling due at the beginning of next year, and that the remainder would be utilised to pay for certain public works which are now in progress.

Yesterday the Premier emphasised the fact that the loan was not being put on the market to provide the interest on previous loans.

London financial authorities speak in high terms of praise regarding Sir George Dibbs's financial proposals. It is believed that the New South Wales loan will be favourably received.

By a majority of 30,000 the Yorkshire coal-miners have expressed themselves in favour of resuming work at the old rate of wages.

In reply to a deputation from the Municipal Association, Sir George Dibbs stated yesterday that he would be unable to pass the first and second parts of the Local Government Bill during the present session.

The Premier admitted that local government was imperative, that it stood head and shoulders over everything else, and that it must be passed into law, but the Government was under a pledge to Parliament not to introduce new measures during this session.

In Mashonaland the Matabele impis are approaching Tati. Should they make an attack, Commander Raaf's column will march to Bulawayo, the King's kraal.

During the voyage of an Italian mail steamer from Brazil to Sardinia 144 passengers died from cholera.

Sir George Dibbs intends to give effect to the motion passed by the Legislative Assembly in favour of abolishing Parliamentary trams.

Yesterday the Municipal Association of New South Wales brought its eleventh annual session to a close.

The proposal to increase the capital of the Bank of New South Wales has proved a great success. The British shareholders are applying for the full complement of new shares, and applications have been received from many outsiders.

Professor Jowett, of the Oxford University, is reported to be dying.

At the Quarter Sessions yesterday the following sentences were passed:—William Gleeson, larceny and horse-stealing, five years' penal servitude; John Watson, receiving stolen property, three years' hard labour; Angus M'Leod, receiving stolen property, breaking and entering, stealing from a dwelling, and stealing from the person, 10 years' penal servitude; Ada Mallon, uttering counterfeit coin, six months' light labour.

The annual report of James M'Ewan and Co., Limited, shows a loss owing to trading depreciation of £23,000, and states that £7000 has been written off for contingent losses. The gross profit made was £25,000.

The hares shipped to London by the steamer Marmares, from Lyttelton, New Zealand, are unsaleable.

During a voyage from Picton, New Zealand, to London, the ship Wellington came into collision with an iceberg off the Falkland Islands. The vessel was considerably damaged, and two seamen were killed in their bunks.

By 27 votes to 22, the Queensland Legislative Assembly yesterday passed a motion in favour of a bill to amend the Payment of Members Act by increasing the salary of members to £300 a year.

Speaking at a meeting held at Balmain last night to form a branch of the Freetrade and Land Reform Electoral Committee, Mr. B. R. Wise declared that the effect of a tax on the unimproved value of land would be to shift the burden of taxation from the producer in the country to the non-producer in town.

Business in the Stock and Share market yesterday was small, and uneventful in character. Sales of bank deposits were made at previous rates, and bank shares generally were unaltered.

In the Import market the supply orders already in hand for next month indicate that October will not be quite so bad as its predecessor.

In the Mining market yesterday Broken Hill Proprietary shares hardened to 48s. The other companies dealt in were Central, Peak Hill, Ophir Amalgamated, and Sunlight.

Yesterday the Customs receipts amounted to £6903. Towards this the 10 per cent. ad valorem duty contributed £1574, and the 15 per cent. £166.

Novelties in Millinery are very numerous at W. T. Waters and Co., of King-street. They are making an extensive show of many distinctly new styles in Sailor Hats, which are most attractive and ladylike.—[Advt.]

The omission of the name of the Deity from the Governor's Speech at the opening of Parliament has not passed without notice. The thing was an innovation to begin with, and a departure from established custom, and so far the circumstance was as noteworthy as any other departure from precedent might be in connection with a matter so much ruled by precedent as the re-assembling of the Parliament of the country for the despatch of legislative business. Most of the forms attaching to this public function have an historic origin, and all of them have a significance of some kind or other. It is true enough that some of these observances are effete, but inasmuch as they are traditionary and historical, we perpetuate them in a spirit of conservatism which refers things as they exist back to their first principles. Then, again, some of the formalities observed are archaic and quaint in themselves, and even so incongruous with their surroundings at times as to suggest to a person with an eye for the humorous reflections the reverse of respectful. Still, we do not expect the Premier or Ministry of the moment to change these things at his or its own capricious will, merely because this or that observance happens to be out of harmony with any particular set of views. This is what appears to have been done in regard to the customary mention of the name of the Deity in the Governor's address. There is no occasion to make a mountain of a molehill or to accuse the Governor's advisers of any sinister object in this omission. We are quite prepared to be told that the omission was an oversight—though how that could be will appear strange to those who know the circumstances under which those efforts of original genius called Governors' Speeches are usually composed. Or we may be left to infer that, the object of those who drew the document up being brevity, all mere redundant verbiage was expunged. The question is, however, are the expressions in which the references to the Almighty usually occur nothing more than so much redundant verbiage?

There has always appeared a touch of insincerity about these stereotyped prayers for the benediction of Heaven which successive Ministers put into the mouth of his Excellency the Governor. Persons of sarcastic mind and sardonic humour have even sought to draw contrasts between these phrases of prayer and the forms of speech characteristic of the conversational habits of particular Ministers in their hours of ease. Some grotesquely quaint effects are to be obtained by the curious in this way, it may be freely admitted. It is also quite true that custom in this matter may at times call upon a Minister to set forth these forms of words for official use, while it is well known that his own religious opinions are of the vaguest, or even of a rankly unorthodox character. Other observers, again, have been struck by the contrast between the prayerful way the session opens and the somewhat different manner in which it often closes, to say nothing of the very indifferent conduct of parties and individuals while the session is in progress. The author of the "Biglow Papers" expressed this side of the popular sentiment on the subject when he wrote about that much-quoted political person whose attention was invited to the contrast between the professions of some politicians and their practices. The early apostles, he was picturesquely reminded, did not

Go swoopin' around in swaller-tailed coats,
Gittin' some on 'em places, and some on 'em votes.

But probably the answer in both cases is that the exigencies of practical politics, to express the thing euphemistically, hardly allow of the manners or morals of the conventicle; or as the political person just referred to more tersely put it, "They didn't know everything down in Judee!" But these are merely the obiter dicta of the subject as they are thrown off in conversation, and no one seriously argues that they cover the whole subject. If the words of the individual do not square with his practice, or if the claims of public duty or custom call upon a man to set forth a form of words in which he does not believe, that is a question for the consideration of the individual. The public aspect of a question like this is another matter altogether, and the more seriously it is looked at the graver it is seen to be.

The fact of the matter is that the form of words now for the first time expunged from the Governor's Speech is as significant as the reference to Her Majesty the Queen at the end of a proclamation. It was adopted in the first instance to express the popular and prevailing sense of the Divine government of the universe, and the scriptural idea of the source whence all law and order proceed. Inasmuch as the moral law is the foundation of that conventional moral and social code by which society holds itself together, the reference to the Almighty was originally intended as a recognition of this fact on the part of those whose duty it is to make the laws. It is true that all these original postulates have since been questioned, as well as the existence of an Almighty at all. Writers like Buckle have analysed history to show to their own satisfaction that the theory of the Divine government of the world is a myth. But the Parliament of New South Wales, among its other multifarious duties, has not yet been called upon to decide this controversy, and in the meantime it might do worse than help to revive popular faith in its own possibilities of usefulness by not too recklessly removing the burden of responsibility from the shoulders of Divine Providence. It may be conceded, perhaps, if in the absence of any prescriptive custom on the subject a proposal were made to adopt some such form of words in the Governor's Speech as has now been omitted, that the question would then be a fairly arguable one. But in the present instance it is the omission which is the innovation, and Ministers seem to have gone out of their way to make a new departure which can only be passed over as of no consequence on consideration of the quarter whence the innovation comes. When Dr. Pearson expunged the name of the Saviour from the schoolbooks of Victoria, his action was understood to have a certain significance. Both the friends and the enemies of Sir George Dibbs will probably be slow to saddle that gentleman with a responsibility like this. But, on the whole, it is possible that his Excellency's advisers may see, whatever the views they hold, that it would have been better to have followed Matthew Arnold's example in a matter of this kind, and conformed to established custom out of respect for the sentiment it embodies, and by reason of the fact that in this particular instance it recognises a steadying force of society without which good government would be at least difficult, and which it would be impossible to replace.

The Congress of the Australasian Association for the Advancement of Science began at Adelaide on Monday, and has continued its meetings during the week with a large amount of scientific and popular interest. Formed on the model of the British association, the local organisation follows the practice of its great original in holding its annual congresses at various centres. When next year Brisbane shall have entertained the men of science in their yearly parliament, each of the older colonies of Australasia will have received a visit, and in 1895 Sydney, where the association was founded, and its headquarters, will be the scene of the gathering. Nor is it only in sectional divisions of work and in its yearly progresses from centre to centre of the national life that our federation of science resembles that of Great Britain. Young as it is the local body already includes nearly every man of science in the colonies, and we may be permitted to remind ourselves that the roll of science contains not a few distinguished names from Australia; that among the papers read at the various congresses of Sydney, Melbourne, Christchurch, Hobart, and Adelaide are some which have been contributed by men of European reputation, and that many of those essays are worthy of any scientific assembly. The names and services of men like Sir James Hector and Professor Tate in geology, of Professor Stirling in biology, of Sir Ferdinand von Mueller in botany, and of Mr. H. C. Russell in sidereal photography and other departments of astronomy, would be respectable in any census of science, and there are other men working in Australia in these and other paths of research whose names will readily suggest themselves as sustaining the credit of natural science here. Of course in settling for some years ahead the itinerary of the Congress no provision can be made for the course of investigation in the colony the capital of which is selected, but it is a happy coincidence that the meeting of the Parliament of Science should take place this year in Adelaide, seeing that the most important event of the year in a scientific sense is the discovery of ancient animal remains in South Australia. A cordial spirit has marked the reception of the Congress in Adelaide, and neither do the meetings of the sections lack public interest, nor the members of them resist public hospitalities. These latter attentions are inevitable, but if there should be heard a complaint that men of science know how to enjoy themselves as much as common folks, an answer is ready in the quantity of work involved in the preparation and discussion of the learned papers read.

But it is not likely that in any large review of our circumstances an observer will grudge to the members of the Congress the interest and applause of the public or the hospitalities of the leaders in the community at Adelaide. The gathering of scientific men makes a notable incident in the year, and there is something stimulating in the number of men who are found devoting their lives to the advancement of science, pure or applied. In Australia there is no lack of subjects for research, some of them peculiarly valuable in the development of our resources, others interesting as contributions to the life-history of the planet. Among the former may be named the geological problems of artesian waters, among the latter the past and present fauna of this region or the ethnology of our vanishing aborigines. It is sometimes declared that the civilisation of Australian communities is narrowly utilitarian, that our discoveries are only appreciated in as far as they may swell our exports, and that we survey our dominions chiefly in order the better to exploit it. This criticism is less even than a half-truth, because it ignores the large amount of work done in Australia for the pure love of knowledge, and because it equally ignores the long period of development by which our natural resources now stand revealed. To take away whatever true reproach may lie against us in this respect is the province of such bodies as that now assembled in Adelaide. If we are sometimes inclined to look with discouragement on the results so far attained, it is just to remember that while mental labour in Australia cannot escape the effect of remoteness from Europe and a certain coldness in the public, the standards of all intellectual work, being now cosmopolitan are, more than ever stringent. What we attempt in science or art or literature has at once to take its place beside whatever is being, or has been, done in the like field throughout the world. Nevertheless, the scientific record for the colonies is not undistinguished, and gives ground for hope of future progress. What is essential is to obtain the co-operation of a greater number of students, for now almost all branches of research are undermanned, and some neglected. The Association will do good towards calling out these recruits. Whatever augments the prestige of the man of science must attract workers. The applied sciences, mining, chemistry, agriculture, can take care of themselves; but in the pure sciences, State or private endowment of research being the exception, there will for the present be need for the stimulus supplied in the work of the Association. Further service it does by forming a kind of intellectual centre for men of science here, who cannot but miss the aids and encouragements to learning which the Societies and Universities of Europe provide.

Perhaps the fascination of work in this province will be its own inducement. Besides our special problems, Australian men and women of science have the world-wide problems to attack. And science is, after all, the field in which nothing final has yet been reached. A few years ago Professor Balfour Stewart, addressing the British Association, said that we were on the verge of some momentous discovery in science; and that feeling of expectation still exists. There are no more continents for the Stanleys of the twentieth century to explore; but who can set a limit to the revelations in even the applied sciences? The experiments with electricity of Tesla, the American savant, give a new sense of the wonders of that power, and the more recent work of Professor Dewar in the chemistry of the atmosphere certainly does not exhaust conjecture, remarkable as was his success. The splendid energy of the French and German bacteriologists points to a revolution in pathology, and in the more recondite studies of man's dim borderland the school of such men as the late Dr. Charcot in obscure mental processes must have new achievements to announce. Such are the fields in which, with equal patience, learning, and skill, science is busy. It will not be presumptuous to regard the work represented in the Adelaide Congress as akin to intellectual effort so disciplined and strenuous as that of Europe. The reading of papers, the exhibiting of specimens and apparatus, and the attendance at conversazioni are not the real work at all. That is done by long and silent effort in laboratory or observatory, in the field or in the study. But the congresses have their uses. They supply the public with clearer ideas of scientific methods and aims; they apprise the scientific world of Australasian tendencies in research, and define those problems the solution of which is being sought; and, with the catholicity of science, they offer a platform to all real workers in intellectual pursuits.

The article of our correspondent on Norfolk Island, published in our other columns, describes what might be looked on as a Utopia not far from our own doors. Away in the midst of a vast ocean, with its shores washed by sunny seas, enjoying a balmy climate and a fertile soil, its hills clothed with the umbrageous pines that have made the name of the island famous, this little favoured spot of earth appears to present the conditions that have been often dreamt of but seldom seen by those who have thought that the highest happiness of earth must be realised in a placid lotus-eating existence. Yet the people are not happy. When one thinks by comparison of the worries and the cares that infest life in the whirl of that thing we call civilisation, one inclines to wonder that they are not. They have neither politics nor religious discord; woman suffrage has never disturbed the calm serenity of social life; and the question has not been raised whether marriage is a failure. There the "bloated capitalist" has ceased from troubling, and the weary labour unionist is at rest. The agonies of the land question are an unknown quantity, and nobody clamours for a single tax or the bursting up of big estates. They have land and to spare for the using, and everybody that is married has more given to him as the dot of his bride. The vexations of bills and duns approach them not, for they have no money and do not want any; and the voice of the bum-bailiff is not heard in the land. The milliners' bills that vex the soul of paterfamilias in Sydney do not run in that abode of the blest, for if a lady goes a-shopping she must carry part of a tun of whale oil with her instead of a purse, besides there are no shops to tempt her. No stoppages of banks for reconstruction disturb the quiet flow of life in Norfolk Island, for there is no bank, and the miseries of overdrawn accounts and insufficient funds are to the people there unknown. The very punishment for crimes, if crimes ever are committed, seems to partake of the mildness of the clime, for perjury is punished with a five shillings fine, and we may assume that a manslayer or a murderer might only be detained till the rising of the Court. In the halcyon days of existence passed under such conditions, one would think that nobody can ever raise the question, Is life worth living? And yet we are told the people are not happy.

Even the difficulties incident to their insulated position combine to bring them many of those conditions that are so often regarded as contributing to the happiness of life. They have practically no trade with the outside, and are even protected against the intrusion of strangers; for no one can take up his residence on the island unless he has the sanction of the authorities, or is permitted by the vote of the people in public meeting assembled; and the people observing the strictest principles of social equality must be unvexed by those envies, hatreds, and uncharitablenesses that make such a part in the sentiments that govern society life with us. The protective policy which nature has provided gratuitously to the happy islanders in the vastness of the ocean surrounding them, has made them entirely self-contained, and they are obliged to keep all their wealth to themselves, so that their island is overstocked with sheep and cattle and horses. But even this has not made them happy, for our contributor tells us that the islanders "have grown heart-sick in their endeavours to establish a constant export trade." Even the tendency which we find existing in nearly all civilised lands—the trend of population from country to town, which we know to be among the elements contributing to the growing unhappiness of congested populations, is there reversed; and we learn that the tendency is to pass from town life, if anything of the nature of town life can be supposed to exist among such an unsophisticated community, and to betake themselves to living in scenes of rural simplicity, where oranges and lemons and olives grow wild around them, and seem to invite the inhabitants to come and gather them.

Rarely if ever has a condition of things similar to that existing at Norfolk Island been presented, and it must be admitted that, making allowance for certain drawbacks, it presents many of the features that might be supposed to characterise an ideal existence. There have been scenes of savage life as removed, and even more removed, from the exacting conditions of civilisation. But in this case we see the absence of those cruelties of intertribal warfare, and even of domestic relations, that unclothe savage life of every characteristic of romance. In Norfolk Island there is enough of the refinement of civilisation to soften the relations of life, while there is an unconventional simplicity with an absence of the harassing exactions of civilisation that makes the picture a charming one. To many it might seem that these islanders have all that man should desire to have, and ought to be content with their lot; and the existence of "heart-sickness" of any kind seems out of place amid so congenial surroundings. But isolated as they are, and thrown inward upon themselves, they seem to weary of the monotony of existence, and to yearn for a larger interest in the life of the world beyond them. To minds that are really savage and have never been touched by the interests of the great world of civilisation, life in remoteness and isolation may supply all the wants they know and for which they can possibly long. But it is not difficult to understand how people who have had less or more a taste of what civilisation means, and are living, though in isolation, almost within sound of the rumble of the life of Australia, should feel at times a longing for closer contact with the busy world. For people who have wholly tired of and done with the world Norfolk Island might be a delightful retreat, but to any one in whom interest in life is not wholly dead, such a Utopia would be a weariness.

London Letters.—Mr. Henry Lucy's weekly letter published to-day remarks upon the many parties that are springing up in the House of Commons, among them the Australian party. The public mind is said to bear with equanimity the prospect of losing the Duke of Edinburgh on his accession to the ducal throne of Coburg. With the passing of the heat that has upset London has passed the eccentricities of costume that staggered the great metropolis for a little while. Our correspondent in his "Old World Gossip" reports the unpleasant feeling roused by the cholera scare. Much commotion has been caused in Court circles by the death of the Duke Ernest of Saxe-Coburg. An epidemic of suicide has been experienced in England. Reference is made to the departure for America of Mr. Henry Irving's Lyceum Company.

The Cabinet.—A meeting of the Cabinet was held yesterday evening, when the business to come before the Assembly next week, and matters affecting the new loan, were discussed. The Estimates were also further revised. Great economy, the Premier states, is being exercised, and the Estimates will be much cut down. Each Minister is curtailing his own department.

The Premier.—Sir George Dibbs left last night for his residence at Emu Plains, where he purposes to rest until Tuesday.

Parliamentary Trains and Trams.—Sir George Dibbs states that it is his intention to give effect to the resolution passed by the Legislative Assembly on Thursday in favour of abolishing Parliamentary trams. Further than this, he stated that any resolution from the Assembly in the direction of economy would meet with his approval. His only surprise, he intimated, was that the members did not also at once voluntarily give up their free passes. No action had yet been taken on the matter. He only received the official notification yesterday, and he should send that on to the Railway Commissioners with an intimation that the service was to be immediately discontinued. Probably, now members would have to walk home or pay for cabs, they would talk less and work more. We understand from the Railway Department that the cost of running the special trains and trams amounts to £2500 per annum. There is usually a vote of from £20,000 to £30,000 to the Railway Department annually, but this includes the cost of members' free passes and other departmental expenses.

Registrar-General's Department.—We understand that Judge Murray is unable to accept the position of commissioner to inquire into the working of the Registrar-General's Department, and that the position of commissioner has been offered to Judge Fitzhardinge.

Distress at Greta.—A deputation was to have waited upon the Premier yesterday, to ask him to take steps to relieve the existing distress at Greta. Sir George Dibbs declined to receive the deputation, but ordered that £100 be forwarded for the purpose.

Forestry Department.—Mr. W. S. Campbell, chief clerk in the Forestry Department, is about to pay a visit to Tamworth to inquire into the forest plantations there.

A Twelve-ton Boiler.—On Wednesday a large boiler, which is intended for use as a supplementary one to the two already in the North Sydney tramway engine-house, was successfully delivered at its destination. The boiler was constructed at Messrs. Hudson Bros.' Clyde Works, and was sent by rail via Hornsby Junction to St. Leonards station, where it was transhipped to a trolly, drawn by 12 horses, and drawn to the tramway station. The boiler, which weighs 12 tons, is the third of its kind built by Hudson Brothers, Limited. It is of the multitubular type and is constructed of three ⅝th plates each between 23ft. and 24ft. long; the ends consist of single flanged plates, which weigh between two and three tons each. All the rivet holes were specially bored in position instead of being punched in the ordinary way. Before being placed upon the railway the boiler was tested up to 250lb. in the presence of Mr. Deane, Engineer-in-Chief for Railways.

Trial of Harnett's Milking Machine.—Yesterday afternoon a trial of the "Harnett patented improved milking machine" was made at the establishment of the New South Wales Fresh Food and Ice Company, Limited, Harbour-street. Among those present were:—Messrs. John Broomfield and W. E. Mort, directors, H. Pateson, manager, and J. A. Fotheringham, secretary of the New South Wales Fresh Food and Ice Company; B. Foley, G. A. Porter, manager of the South Coast Company; C. Pratten, manager of the Farmers and Dairymen's Country Milk Company; F. Harvey, N. Griffiths, F. A. Mackenzie, of the Waverley Dairy; M. M. Roche, of the Candelo Agricultural Company; Mr. Mathie, Mayor of Shellharbour; Captain Rounding; and Mr. Harnett, the patentee. The principle upon which the milking is performed is on the vacuum and pulsating system, the vacuum being created in milk-receiving cans by means of a pump or steam jet. The machine is easy of manipulation, and it is claimed for it that there is complete reliability from over-milking, simplicity and reliability of action, and that it reduces the cost of milking to a minimum. The test yesterday was not under the most favourable conditions, for the three cows that were submitted to the experiment had been used to hand-milking, and besides were uneasy at the presence of so many persons. The manner in which the machine worked was, however, satisfactory, and indicated to what a state of perfection milking by such a process may be brought.

Death of Dr. George Bennett.—We have to record the death of Dr. George Bennett, the well-known scientist, which took place yesterday at his residence, 167 William-street. Dr. Bennett, who was born in 1804, passed the last 57 years of his life in the colony. The deceased gentleman married three times, and has left a widow and three sons. An extended account of his life appears in another part of this issue.

Mail Steamers.—On Monday two mail steamers—the Ballaarat and the Monowai—will leave here, the former at noon for London, and the Monowai for San Francisco at 4 p.m. Passenger traffic to Europe is slack, and the Chicago attraction now almost fails to draw, though there are by the Monowai several excursionists bound to the World's Fair. To-day, at 3 p.m., the Parramatta leaves Melbourne for Sydney, and she will probably be timed to come up the harbour about midday on Monday, taking the place of the Ballaarat at the quay after that steamer has cleared. The French mail steamer Polynesien, the holder of the record between Sydney and Marseilles, left Albany for Adelaide on Thursday night. She is due here next Friday morning.

The Weather.—Light showers at a few places on the coast were reported yesterday, and a good deal of cloudy weather prevailed. Though fine inland, the conditions are not assuring for an immunity from rain, particularly south of Sydney. The area of low pressure having its centre off the Australian Bight yesterday will, it seems, be likely to affect this colony within the next day or two. The bad weather conditions which made things so lively in Bass' Strait in the early part of this week were causing severe storms on the New Zealand coast yesterday. Very heavy gales prevailed in Cook Strait and that vicinity. Shipping bound to Australia from any of the New Zealand ports, and especially those of the South Island, would experience heavy gales and rough seas.

Manly Flower Show.—The Manly wildflower show continues to draw numbers of visitors to the Aquarium Hall. On Thursday £30 was netted for the day's drawing, and despite the broken weather yesterday a fairly good sum was realised. In the evening a large number of visitors from Sydney took advantage of the trip down the harbour, and called in to see the floral exhibition. During the day an additional stall, representing a five-pointed star, has been erected opposite the American stall in the rear of the hall.

Sale of Work.—Yesterday afternoon a sale of work in connection with St. Matthew's Church, Manly, was opened in the Church of England schoolroom. There was a large attendance, and good sales were made during the afternoon. The proceeds will be devoted to the church funds.

The Rev. Dr. Steel.—Dr. Steel, who has been seriously ill for some weeks, is in an extremely critical condition. For some days past he has been very weak, and there is no change for the better in his state.

Presentation to Mr. Thomas Walker, M.L.A.—The Temperance Hall, Pitt-street, was well filled on Wednesday evening to listen to a lecture by Mr. Thomas Walker, M.L.A., W.P., on the subject of "Working in the Temperance Field," delivered under the auspices of the Hearts of Oak Division Sons of Temperance. The chair was occupied by Mr. Alderman Crispin, M.W.P. Prior to the lecture musical selections were rendered by the Misses Brown (2), Master Stach, Master and Miss Tatham, and Mr. Davis. The lecturer then went into the history of the temperance movement from ages past up to the present, and said he felt convinced that public opinion was being educated to that degree that the day-dawn of prohibition was at hand. At the conclusion of the lecture Mr. Walker was made the recipient of a handsomely-framed group of photographs of the officers of the division for the present term. At the bottom of the group was the emblem of the Order, the tri-coloured triangle with the words "Love," "Purity," and "Fidelity." Mr. Crispin made the presentation. Mr. Walker, in acknowledging it, stated that about 12 months ago he was without friends, but now, thanks to being a Son of Temperance, he had many; but he never for one moment thought that he would be made the recipient of so handsome a mark of esteem from men he had great pleasure in recognising as brothers, and who had to him proved brothers in the strict sense of the word.

Echo Farm Home.—A pleasant ceremony took place at Echo Farm Home last Saturday afternoon, when the members of that institution presented Mr. and Mrs. Courtenay Smith with an address, to commemorate their silver wedding. The address expressed sincere congratulations, and the heartfelt thanks of those who were being benefited by Mr. and Mrs. Smith's unflagging energy and interest in the home.

Accident to a Cyclist.—A meter-reader named John Barnsley, 27 years of age, who resides in Thomas-street, Five Dock, was admitted to the Sydney Hospital yesterday. He had fallen off a bicycle and injured his lower jaw.

Knocked Down by a Van.—A dealer named Solomon Bendy, of No. 93 Ultimo-road, was knocked down by a delivery van yesterday, and was cut on the left temple. Constable Houston took him to the Sydney Hospital.

Fatal Accident to a Drayman.—The City Coroner held an inquest yesterday, at his court, Chancery-square, on the body of a drayman named Patrick Whelan, who was fatally injured while he was at work on the 14th ultimo on the site of the new George-street Markets. The deceased was 56 years of age. He was, on the day in question, driving a horse and dray down an embankment on the site referred to. As another horse and cart in charge of a youth named James Corry approached, Whelan pulled his own horse on one side. The animal put one foot over the edge of the embankment, and fell, taking the cart and driver with it to the ground below, a distance of about 22ft. The horse and cart escaped uninjured, but Whelan was hurt internally. While under treatment in the hospital he told the police and doctor that the accident resulted from his own fault, as he ought not to have rushed down the embankment. Dr. Maitland gave evidence that the man's death was due to exhaustion, consequent on injuries. A verdict of accidental death was recorded.

Japanese and Sericulture.—On Wednesday Mr. Marks, the Japanese consul, waited on the Minister of Agriculture and stated (says the Melbourne Argus) that he had visited Japan recently and had been commissioned to make inquiries on his return to Melbourne if the Government would give 50 Japanese families a grant of a suitable area of land in the colony for the purpose of establishing sericulture here. It was stated that these families would bring their implements of trade with them and also some capital, so that there would not be anything further for the State to supply them with than the land. It was not proposed that they should be followed by others, but that they should give the farmers of the colony practical lessons in silk culture, which the latter could profitably combine with their other industries. Mr. Marks alluded to the value of the sericulture industry carried on in California, and to the dimensions it had assumed. It was a pleasing and intelligent employment, and could be carried on with the assistance of children, the work not being of a laborious character. He was certain if the industry once obtained a firm footing here its value would soon be recognised, and it would in a few years become a source of great wealth to the colony, as it had done in California. Mr. Webb, in replying, said that the idea was a new one, upon which he would have to consult his colleagues. Personally, he was of opinion from the statements made to him by Mr. Marks that the establishment of sericulture here would be of advantage to the colony. He believed that the soil and climate were well suited for the establishment and growth of such an industry, but if the Government did comply with this request he had no doubt it would have to be on the distinct understanding that the number of Japanese was limited. The policy of the Government and the feeling of the country were rather against Asiatics coming here in large bodies.

Particulars are given in our advertising columns of a new industrial depot to be called the Permanent Mercantile Exhibition and Central Sale Rooms. The site of the depot is in York and Clarence streets. The promoters feel confident that in the manner proposed means of centralising and encouraging trade will be afforded, and a medium provided for the intercourse of vendors and purchasers.

In connection with the protectionist meeting held on Thursday evening in the Protestant Hall we are requested to say that Mr. Alex. Hutchison, M.L.A., did not accompany Alderman Kippax to the platform.

Several cases of measles have broken out among the patients in the Parramatta District Hospital. As a consequence the management has issued an order closing the institution to visitors.

THE MERCANTILE BANK PROSECUTION.

NINTH DAY.

A MAGISTRATE'S RIGHT TO SIT CHALLENGED.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our Correspondent.)

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The hearing of summonses in connection with the Mercantile Bank prosecution entered upon the ninth day this morning. Sir Matthew Davies concluded his cross-examination of Mr. John Adamson, accountant. Subsequently Charles J. Richardson, one of the defendants, stated that owing to the failure of all the financial institutions in which he had money invested, he was without means to employ legal assistance, and would, therefore, have to rely upon the consideration of the Bench. Mr. Gaunson then raised the point that Richardson had been improperly charged. He was charged as an "officer" of the bank. An "officer" meant, he said, a person who could be dismissed by the directors or the manager, and not a person who was appointed by shareholders. Richardson, as an auditor, was no more an officer of the bank than a solicitor was, and should not be charged at all. Mr. Gaunson [illegible] his objection to Mr. Lormer, J.P., sitting on the bench, that gentleman having on [illegible] Nov., as president of the Protection, Liberal and [illegible] League, presided at a meeting [illegible] of the Attorney-General [illegible] to send Sir Matthew Davies and [illegible] for trial. Mr. Gaunson [illegible] the whole of the proceedings were vitiated by Mr. L[illegible]'s presence on the bench. Mr. L[illegible] declined to retire, and went on to say that [illegible] extraordinary announcement, which he must have experienced, in connection with the case. He had good reason for [illegible] that deliberate falsehood and [illegible] were being circulated regarding [illegible]. Just at the present moment he was unable to put [illegible] the parties, but he was awaiting [illegible]. It was possible that he might be able to take action, and the probability was that some of those parties who were [illegible] might ultimately find themselves in gaol. Only that morning the chairman of the Bench had shown him an anonymous letter referring to the Bench generally. Mr. L[illegible] explained that his remarks did not refer in any degree to the defendants, or the legal gentlemen connected with the case. The cross-examination of Mr. John Adamson was then resumed. Mr. Gaunson had not concluded his cross-examination when the Court adjourned till Monday.

BANK OF AUSTRALASIA.

HALF-YEARLY REPORT.

LONDON, Sept. 29.

The report of the Bank of Australasia states that the description of the financial situation given in the March report applies even more forcibly to the half-year of which the account is now presented; and, as every proprietor must be aware, the persistent mistrust and depression eventually grew into a panic, during which a large proportion of the Australian banks were compelled to close their doors. Fortunately the strong position held by this bank through its coin reserve fortified it against general distrust. The sense of general insecurity had, however, rendered it imperative thus to husband the bank's resources to the utmost, with the result that a large amount of capital was practically unemployed, and was therefore unprofitable. Apart from this serious drawback to the half-year's profit, the directors had considered the necessity under existing circumstances of making very considerable provision for contingencies. Owing to these causes the profits of the bank had been reduced considerably below the normal level.

Mr. Nelson, the Treasurer, opposed the resolution. He said that members came down to the House pledged to retrenchment, and yet they desired to double their own salaries. THE NEW LOAN.

FAVOURABLE RECEPTION EXPECTED.

[By Cable.]
(From our Correspondent.)

LONDON, Sept. 29.

The financial proposals of Sir George Dibbs, Premier of New South Wales, are spoken of in high terms of commendation by authorities. It is believed that the New South Wales loan will meet with a favourable reception.

TO PAY FOR PUBLIC WORKS.

STATEMENT BY THE PREMIER.

The Premier, in conversation with a Herald reporter yesterday, stated that the proposed new loan was to be placed upon the London market to-day. No alteration had been made with regard to the amount. It was for £2,500,000 at 4 per cent. The loan was required to meet the general indebtedness of the colony. The minimum had not yet been definitely fixed. The last telegram the Premier had yesterday was uncertain about the matter.

Upon being asked whether the loan was being raised in order to pay off the interest of other loans, Sir George Dibbs at once answered in the negative. It was needed, he said, to pay off £1,250,000 worth of Treasury bills falling due on the 1st January, 1894, and the remainder of the loan would be utilised in paying the cost of certain public works now being carried on. The Premier was positive about the money not being required for the purpose of paying interest with. "Of course," he stated, "a certain part of the money may be allowed to remain in London to meet our obligations in the matter of interest; but we shall debit the consolidated revenue here with that amount, and credit the loan account with the same sum. Instead of sending the money from Sydney to London, we shall pay in London with money belonging to ourselves what we owe there. It will simply be an exchange operation, and by means of that operation we shall save 1½ per cent."

Then the Premier went on to explain that it would be a very serious thing to send a million or more of gold out of the place, and that there was no need to do it, by a simple booking operation, all that was necessary could be done. In reply to the question whether the Government were possessed of the money to pay interest with, Sir George Dibbs replied, "We have the money lying at our credit in the banks here, and the whole matter is simply that of debiting one account with the money and crediting another." The matter was regarded by the Premier as a most important one, and he added: "Let there be no mistake on this point; we are not putting a loan on the market in order to meet the interests of other loans. We have not come to that kind of thing yet."

The necessity for the loan was caused, Sir George Dibbs stated, by the action of the previous Government. "Sir Henry Parkes," the Premier observed, "left us £4,500,000 worth of obligation in the form of public works. Instead of trying to float a loan—when such a thing was impossible—we issued Treasury bills. We are now paying off these Treasury bills with the present loan, as well as providing the wherewithal to pay for other public works now in progress."

Finally, the Premier added, he had received a cable message that afternoon from the Agent-General informing him that a leading article appeared in the Times approving of the proposals with regard to the sinking fund. This, he thought, might be taken as an indication that the new loan would be floated without any difficulty.

By the last mail the Agent-General wrote to the Premier, stating that the Imperial Federation League had invited him to become a member of the special committee to consider the question of the establishment of a commercial union of the British Empire, and asked for instructions as to what course he should pursue. SHIPMASTERS' CERTIFICATES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The question of uniformity in the issue of coastal or home trade certificates for masters of vessels in the various colonies was brought up at a meeting of the Marine Board to-day. Replies were received from the other colonies as to the action taken in regard to the new Board of Trade regulation for screening the sidelights of ships. From these it appeared that in some colonies regulations have been adopted, but in others not. It was resolved to ask the Commissioner of Customs to convene a conference of representatives of the Marine Boards of the colonies, including New Zealand, to discuss the matter, in order to arrive at some uniform decision in these matters, and also in regard to any other upon which a federal decision may be of value.

(From our Correspondent.)

CARCOAR, Friday.

Nothing important transpired yesterday in connection with the inquest on the bodies of Mr. John William Phillips and Miss Letitia Frances Cavanagh, the victims of Sunday morning's terrible tragedy. Sergeant Boyd's evidence as given had been already published days ago.

CLOSE OF THE INQUEST.

This morning the Coroner's Court reopened at half-past 10 o'clock.

Daniel Davidson, labourer, residing at Blayney, in the employment of Mr. Marsden, said: I remember Saturday night last. I was on the Blayney and Carcoar road that night. About half a mile from Blayney, on the Carcoar side, I saw a man travelling on the road, carrying something like a handbag. He had a long coat upon him, and had a hat on similar to the one produced, but I think a little higher. There was only one man. He was travelling towards Carcoar about 7.30 p.m., after the Sydney train had arrived. I spoke to the man and said, "Is that you, George?" He never spoke. I then said, "Good-night; it's a fine night," but got no reply. On the next morning (Sunday) I fancied that the man might have been Bertie Glasson. It was about 8 or 9 o'clock on Sunday morning when I thought of this. I saw no one walking anywhere near him. He was walking quite quickly. I have known Bertie Glasson for 20 years. The man before the Court is Bertie Glasson. I think it was he I saw on Saturday night. Saw no one else travelling on the road that night.

By the foreman: It was moonlight when I saw him. It was on account of hearing about the murder that I thought the man was Bertie Glasson. I thought it was Bertie Glasson when I first saw him. I was 40 yards away from the man, and was not nearer at all. When I heard of the murder first I had not heard Bertie Glasson's name mixed up in it, nor up to the time that I thought it was he.

By Mr. Bassett: I could have mistaken the man named George Hinds at that distance for the man I saw. I will not swear that the man I saw was Bertie Glasson. I have seen the hat produced. The hat that I saw on the man was higher than the hat produced. He was in the middle of the road, opposite Marsden's gate. I would not know the man at that distance. George Hinds would have been going home. He lives about 200 yards from Marsden's gate.

By the Coroner: I did not look to see if the man went into Hinds's place.

Ann Charlston, upon being sworn, stated: I am a married woman, and am the wife of Francis Charlston, residing at Blayney. I was in Sydney last Friday, and got into the train at 10 a.m. on Saturday to come to Blayney. I know a man named Bertie Glasson, and have known him for over 20 years. I saw him get into the train in Sydney. There was no one with him. I saw him carrying a parcel, but cannot say what it was. I saw him carrying something. He travelled to Blayney by the train which arrived at Blayney at 7 p.m. I saw him get out of the train at Blayney. He was carrying the same parcel that I saw him carrying in Sydney. I saw him walking away down the platform from the train. No one walked away with him. I saw no one in his company at all in Blayney. That is all I saw of him that night, and I have not seen him since. He rode in the carriage furthest back from the engine, and was in the carriage next to me. When I looked out of my carriage window I could see him in the next carriage. I never knew him to have anything wrong with his mind in any way. The man before the Court is Bertie Glasson, and is the same man whom I saw coming from Sydney on Saturday last in the same train that I was in.

By the foreman: I did not speak to him on the journey, nor he to me. My daughter was with me, and saw him too. I did not see him with an overcoat or cape. He had light clothes on and a brown felt hat. The hat produced is the one. He had a parcel, and walked up the platform in Sydney, and took it into the train. It may have been an overcoat strapped up, or a small portmanteau. I saw him walking about the platform at Mount Victoria, and he did not go in to have any dinner. This attracted my attention. No one accompanied him, as far as I could see, from Sydney to Blayney. Glasson directed a young gentleman to his carriage that he could not find, but it was not the one Glasson was travelling in. They did not appear to know one another. I never saw the young gentleman again. After he got into the carriage I did not see him at Blayney. I think he got out at Bathurst. He was a very fair young man, boyish-looking. No hair had grown on his face. I should say he was about 19 years old. I knew Mr. Woolley, of Blayney. He came by the same train as far as Lithgow. He is an auctioneer in Blayney. I never saw Glasson and Woolley speaking together.

By Mr. Bassett: I have not seen Bertie Glasson for more than 15 years. I only think that the young man got out at Bathurst.

By a juror: The young man could have stayed at Bathurst, or come on without my knowing him. We changed carriages at Bathurst, and I should have had an opportunity of seeing him if he had got into the train. That is my reason for thinking that he came on no further.

After the evidence was all concluded,

The Coroner, Mr. J. Lithgow Cobb, J.P., summed up, and went carefully through all the principal points of the whole of the evidence, and then addressed the jury as follows:—This case, which you have listened patiently and attentively to for five days, is one of the most painful, dreadful, and shocking ever recorded in this country, or in any other. There could not have been in the annals of history, even amongst the most barbarous and savage tribes, a more diabolical, cruel, bloodthirsty, and brutal, double murder than the one perpetrated in this quiet little town on Sunday morning last, when two valuable lives were launched into eternity by a most cowardly ruffian and fiend. Miss Cavanagh, the beautiful young lady whom we saw lying dead with her throat cut from ear to ear, had just come from Sydney to enjoy herself with her friends, and now is lying in the cold grave instead of being, as she was, full of life and hope. Mr. Phillips, who had been promoted to a much higher branch, and was upon the verge of his departure, was smitten down to death by a dreadful weapon in the shape of a tomahawk, by the hand of a bloodthirsty assassin. Through this dreadful tragedy the whole district, and all Australia, have received a shock through this awful crime, which will be recorded as one of the foulest and blackest ever brought before any coroner or any other court. You, gentlemen, have only one course to take. I have listened to this most important case, and conducted it with the greatest possible care, pains, and attention. I hope and trust that I may never have to hear such another dreadfully horrible case, but thank you for the admirable way in which you have listened to it. Now, do your duty. You know that duty. There is no alternative but for you to bring in a verdict of wilful murder against the man to whom the evidence points all through, and who has been seen by several witnesses who have sworn to him positively as the man whose hands, face, and tomahawk were seen steeped in blood, and who was recognised in the City Bank by several witnesses. Gentlemen of the jury, I leave the case in your hands. You must make your own verdict. Remember the eyes of every civilised country will be upon your verdict, and above all, the all-searching eye of the Great Ruler of the Universe."

The jury retired in charge of Sergeant Boyd and at 1 p.m., having been absent about 40 minutes, returned, having come to their verdict.

Amidst profound silence the Coroner asked if they had agreed upon their verdict, when the foreman replied, "We find that John William Phillips and Letitia Frances Cavanagh came to their deaths at the City Bank, Carcoar, on Sunday morning, the 24th September instant, through having been wilfully murdered by Edwin Hubert Glasson, commonly known as Bertie Glasson, and that he entered the bank with some other person or persons unknown to the jury, with intent to rob the bank."

The Coroner then committed the prisoner to take his trial at the assizes in Bathurst on the 11th of October next, for the wilful murder of John William Phillips and Letitia Frances Cavanagh, at Carcoar, on Sunday morning last.

The prisoner was conveyed to Bathurst in a buggy this afternoon, under the charge of police, as public feeling was so incensed against him that they were afraid to send him by train.

Another finger of Mrs. Phillips's little daughter, who was injured during the tragedy at the City Bank has had to be amputated. Drs. Griffiths and Hawthorne successfully performing the operation.

Last evening a champagne supper was given to Mr. Townsend, engineer in charge of the bore here. The Mayor presided, and the police magistrate occupied the vice-chair. Many country residents were present.

GOULBURN, Friday.

One hundred and ninety-six lots of Crown lands were offered by public auction to-day, but only 14 small lots were sold.

GRETA, Friday.

Moses Jones, who was engaged clearing land on Mr. Ryan's farm, was seriously injured by a tree falling on him to-day. One of his legs was broken, and he also received internal injuries.

Richard Cleaton, aged 66, one of the oldest residents, and a large property-owner, died last night. He was much respected.

The local relief committee has been enabled to supply rations from the funds on hand this week, and the ladies' committee is doing much valuable work.

The concert organised by Mrs. Rudolph Heyes, in aid of the Greta family relief fund, and given at East Maitland, under the patronage of the Mayor and aldermen of that town, was a great success, some performers travelling from Newcastle. The admission was limited to 1s, and the net proceeds amounted to £7 19s.

GUNDAGAI, Friday.

At the Crown lands office to-day, 761¼ acres of country land realised £1518 2s 6d. This makes a total of £3407 7s 6d received from Crown lands sales here this week.

INVERELL, Friday.

The annual ball in aid of the funds of the Inverell Hospital was held on Wednesday night, and a juvenile ball in connection with the same object last night. The balls were a great success, about 60 couples being present the first night, the Masonic Hall being packed last night. It is expected that the net proceeds will amount to about £140.

Mr. W. Borthwick, whilst returning from the races in a buggy with his cousin, Miss Borthwick, met with a serious accident. The horse took fright at a prostrate cyclist and bolted, throwing both occupants of the buggy out. Mr. Borthwick had his head cut open, necessitating seven stitches to close the wounds. The horse with the buggy jumped into the river near the showground, but was eventually captured. The only damage done was that one trace had broken. Miss Borthwick escaped unhurt.

KEMPSEY, Friday.

A few cases of measles have occurred in the district, but none of a startling character.

KIAMA, Friday.

An agreeable change in the weather took place last evening, and during the night there were some heavy showers of rain, which will do immense good throughout the district. For some hours this morning there was a steady rain, but a good deal is required to thoroughly saturate the ground, which had become very dry and hard.

LISMORE, Friday.

The accident which occurred to a man named John Colleran at Riley's Hill yesterday was a serious one. A truck, which went over his thigh, was loaded with stone weighing altogether 6 tons. Only one leg was broken, but that was crushed in a terrible manner. Owing to the condition in which the patient is, amputation cannot be attempted at present.

LITHGOW, Friday.

Several experiments are being made in growing sugar beet in this district. The samples used were obtained from the Department of Agriculture.

At a concert, which was held a few evenings ago, in aid of the Lithgow Relief Fund, upwards of £30 was realised.

Attempts to commit burglary have been rather frequent here during the past two months.

A Masonic installation was held last night, and was numerously attended. Bro. M'Naught was installed W.M. of the local lodge.

The condition of the coal trade is but little more than normal, the miners averaging half-time.

The weather is still dry, and rain is much needed. Water for domestic consumption is growing scarce. A dry summer would severely affect the public health. The old source from which water is obtained is now much polluted by growing settlement.

MUDGEE, Friday.

More people attended the Circuit Court than has been the case for years past. All through the sessions the gallery and body of the room have been full.

The daily milk supply to the Mudgee Butter Factory is over 2500 gallons, and is still on the increase. The directors are replacing an ordinary separator with an Alpha, which will put through twice as much milk as the ordinary. It is thought that even a second will be needed. Suppliers come as far as nine miles.

The Pastures and Stock Board, although paying only 3d for hare and rat scalps, required £148 13s 6d to pay for this month's scalps, which represented 3134 kangaroo rats, 5720 hares, and 13 native dogs. The hare pest is less troublesome in parts, but rabbits are plentiful.

The weather is very fine, giving promise of a warm summer.

Though measles have appeared in town, there are not many cases—nothing like an epidemic.

MUSWELLBROOK, Friday.

A very successful sale of Crown lands was held here to-day. The land comprised 35 lots situated in the eastern portion of the town, and was disposed of at the courthouse by public auction. Mr. W. Clendinning, acting under instructions from the Minister for Lands, conducted the sale, which is said to have been the most successful of the kind yet held in Muswellbrook. The total amount realised was £2945.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

Messrs. H. H. Lang, L. Grant, and D. Williams were entertained yesterday at a picnic to Raymond Terrace, and also presented with testimonials for their unceasing energy in their endeavours to mitigate the distress occasioned by the late disastrous floods.

NOWRA, Friday.

The annual meeting of the Cambewarra Dairy Company was held last night. A satisfactory report was presented, showing, with hardly an exception, the highest market-price got for butter sent to Sydney. During the 10 months the factory has been at work it received 142,416 gallons of milk, for which was paid £1988. The yield of butter was 59,189lb., which was sold for £2363. The directors were re-elected, as also were the officers.

John Bridge and Co., of Sydney, was entertained to-night at a social send-off. Over 60 gentlemen were present, Captain Bernasconi presiding. Mr. Hayes was presented with a gold albert and pendant.

SPRINGWOOD, Friday.

A most welcome rain fell for several hours this morning: in all about three-quarters of an inch was registered. It will be very beneficial, having been the most copious fall we have experienced for over two months.

ST. MARYS, Friday.

Splendid rains are falling throughout the district, registering 56 points up to noon to-day, with every appearance of a continuance. A good spring is assured.

AMUSEMENTS.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

That sterling melodrama "In the Ranks" will be revived at Her Majesty's Theatre to-night, and there will also be a matinée performance on Monday, when the curtain will rise at 2 o'clock. The original scenery and the military effects which have always characterised the production of "In the Ranks" will be reproduced, and Mr. George Rignold will resume his original rôle as Ned Drayton. Miss Kate Bishop will appear for the first time as Mrs. Buzzard, and the other characters will be:—Colonel Wynter, Mr. John F. Forde; Gideon Blake, Mr. Albert Norman; Captain Holcroft, Mr. H. R. Roberts; Farmer Herrick, Mr. J. W. Sweeney; Joe Buzzard; Mr. Joe Tolano; Richard Belton, Mr. Stirling Whyte; Sergeant Searle, Mr. Charles Hall; Mr. Tummins, Mr. H. Hodson; Mr. Lechmere, Mr. Lash Gordon; Ruth Herrick, Miss Hilda Spong; Barbara Herrick, Miss V. Viviennne; Mrs. O'Flannagan, Mrs. Melville; &c.

LYCEUM THEATRE.

Miss Nellie Stewart will reappear with the Royal Comic Opera Company this evening in "Dorothy," of which pretty opera there will be an afternoon performance on Monday, beginning at 2 p.m. The cast on each occasion of the seven announced performances will be:—Dorothy Bantam, Miss Stewart; Lydia Hawthorne, Miss Florence Young; Phillis Tuppit, Miss May Pollard; Mrs. Privett, Miss Clara Thompson; Geoffrey Wilder, Mr. Joseph Tapley (first time in Sydney); Harry Sherwood, Mr. Charles Ryley; Squire Bantam, Mr. Vernon; Lurcher, Mr. Lauri, &c. On Saturday next "The Mikado" will be revived, after which "Ma Mie Rosette" will be performed for the first time here.

CRITERION THEATRE.

"The Bells, or the Polish Jew," which formed the chief success of Mr. Walter Bentley's last season here, will be revived at the Criterion Theatre to-night, when his Excellency Sir Robert Duff, Lady Duff, and suite will witness the performance. Mr. Bentley will, of course, reappear as Mathias, the avaricious burgomaster; Walter and Hans will be played by Messrs. M'Gowan and Berkeley; Mr. A. E. Greenaway will appear as Christian, Mr. Stoneham as the Mesmerist, and Miss Gladys Leigh as the burgomaster's wife, Catherine. "The Bells" will be followed by Shakespeare's comedy of "The Taming of the Shrew," with Mrs. Molyneux and Mr. Greenaway as Katherine and Petruchio; and the interesting double bill thus formed will be played on Monday and Tuesday. The two following nights will be devoted to a revival of "The Lady of Lyons," and on Friday Mr. Bentley will take his farewell benefit in a special programme.

THEATRE ROYAL.

Miss Maggie Moore will open a short season at the Theatre Royal to-night, where she will appear in "Meg, the Castaway." Miss Moore has great scope for her varied talents in this character, in which she will introduce such favourite songs as "A Curl from Baby's Hair," "The Coster's Courtship," and "After the Ball," &c. The chief parts have been thus allotted:—Sam Sloper, Mr. John Cosgrove; Herbert Radcliffe, Mr. A. Rolfe; Bertie Radcliffe, little Ivy Scott; Gus and Fred, the "Spooner" Brothers, Messrs. H. E. Hambro and E. Grey; Spottem, a dog fancier, Mr. J. P. West; Cadger, Mr. Maynott; Mrs. Radcliffe, Miss Gill; Eveline Russell, Miss J. Thyrne; Charlotte Beresford, Miss Annie Sinclair; Mrs. Plummer, Miss Nellie Baynham, &c.

TIVOLI THEATRE.

Mr. Harry Rickards is apparently determined that the interest centred in the weekly change of programme at the Tivoli Theatre shall be maintained, as his announced "bill" for to-morrow night constitutes one of the best variety performances ever laid before Sydney audiences. Judging from the crowded houses that have witnessed and appreciated every performance submitted to the public, it could hardly be imagined that the show could be improved, judged from the better class music-hall standpoint, but to-night several agreeable additions will be placed before patrons. Amongst the new items will be the reappearance of Steve Adson, the clever Irish delineator, and first appearances with the Tivolis, specially company of Miss Blanche Montague and Mr. Edward Toussard. These artists will all appear in the first part, and the other members of the company will submit new items. After the interval Mr. Fred. Davys will give a new specialty exhibition entitled "Irish Punter," and the clever club-swinging exhibition by a number of ladies will be repeated, under the leadership of Miss Katie Rickards. The already popular English comedian, Mr. Arthur Tinsley, is billed to sing "Oh, What a Night we must have had," as an additional attraction, and, besides fresh specialties by other members of the company, the American giant marionettes are announced.

PALMER-BEAUMONT CONCERT COMPANY.

The newly-formed Palmer-Beaumont Concert Company will open their tour of Australia and New Zealand with a grand concert at the Town Hall on Thursday evening next. The principal members of the new concert party are already popular here, though neither Mrs. Palmer, Mr. Armes Beaumont, Mr. A. H. Gee, nor Mr. John Lemmone has lately visited Sydney. Miss Maggie Stirling, a mezzo-soprano who holds a good position in Melbourne, will make her début, and Mr. W. T. Barker will return as harpist. Thursday's programme will include three vocal quartets, Galico's "Romanza" for flute and harp by Messrs. Lemmone and Barker, solos for both instruments, and, amongst others, the following songs:—Mrs. Palmer will sing "Ernani Involami" and Gounod's "Berceuse" (with flute obligato by Mr. Lemmone); Mr. Beaumont will sing Beethoven's "Adelaide" and Blumenthal's "An Evening Song;" Mr. Gee will be heard in "Thou art Passing Hence" (Sullivan) and "O Star of Eve" (from "Tannhauser"); and Miss Maggie Stirling's principal songs will be a Rondo from Rossini's "Cenerentola" and Mattei's "Were I the River." The box plan for this concert will be open at Paling's to-day. On Saturday the concert party will appear at the Victoria Theatre, Newcastle. Mr. Philip Stuart will be manager throughout the tour.

MISS HYAM'S QUINTET CONCERTS.

With the laudable object of promoting the love and cultivation of chamber music, Miss Lottie Hyam has formed a quintet, of which she will herself be the pianiste, with Mr. Rivers Allpress as first violin. The other three artists will be Messrs. Stevenson, Wentzel, and Podenzana ('cello). Already many influential patrons have been secured, and Lady Duff and suite will be present at the first concert, which will take place on Wednesday, 18th October, at the Y.M.C.A. Hall. A capital programme has been prepared, in which the two principals will play the "Kreutzer Sonata," whilst Schumann's quintet for piano and strings will test the ability of all the players. Miss Hyam will play Rubenstein's "Concerto in E Minor," the orchestral part being added on a second piano by Mr. Sydney Moss, while Miss Nellie Young and Mr. Riccardi will be the vocalists of the evening. Subscribers can send in their names at Paling's.

MISS PAIGE'S FAREWELL CONCERT.

Miss Elsie Paige bade farewell to her Sydney friends at a benefit concert given her at the Y.M.C.A. Hall last night. Amateurs are ever ready to feel interested in young singers who have the enterprise to continue their studies in the art centres of Europe, and as this is Miss Paige's praiseworthy intention, she received last night the countenance and encouragement of a considerable audience. Miss Elsie Paige has a taste for music, and a strong soprano voice, and to these natural gifts must be added the quality of ambition, seeing that the young amateur chose "Bel Raggio" for one of her farewell numbers—a cavatina before the difficulties of which many professional artists quake and quail. Miss Paige also joined in a tremendous scena for tenor and soprano, from "Il Guarany" (Gomez), in which a heavy burthen of song and passionate expression was thrown upon her companion, Mr. W. H. Young. Miss Paige sang pleasantly Wekerlin's "Spinning Song," and was, as before, very cordially recalled by the audience. There can be little doubt that many young artistes, who do not take, perhaps, all the advantage they might from the abundance of first-rate teaching available in Sydney, find themselves stimulated to fresh exertion by the new surroundings of a foreign city. In the case more immediately under review, Miss Paige is already provided with a voice of good range and power, and will thus be able to make every use of the high opportunities for hard work, in which big operatic scenas find no place, that now lie before her. Last night's concert should form a pleasant recollection for the singer, as it formed a first-rate send-off. Miss Bessie Doyle was there, playing with unusual fire and vivacity. The young violinist gave a fine rendering of Vieuxtemps's "Rondo and Variations," which captivating concert piece she last played to assist another young Australian now studying at Paris—Miss Emilia Wood. Miss Doyle was encored, when she played brilliantly one of Brahm's Dances; and later in the evening she acknowledged the enthusiasm which followed her interpretation of Lanzvelt's "Mazurka," by adding the andante and finale of Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto. Mr. Straus was heard to much advantage in Fischer's "Largo" and in Dunkler's "Tarantelle," to which his encore was Thome's "Simple Aveu." The 'cellist also played with great feeling a melodious "Andante," and with fine execution a brilliant "Habanera," both from the pen of Mme. Kellermann, who accompanied him. This artiste was encored for Liszt's transcription of "Faust," and Miss Josephine O'Reilly's fine voice gave full expression to Marziali's "My Love is Come." Amongst the amateurs the most conspicuous was Miss Birdie Turner, a promising young pianiste, with a sure and sparkling touch which won her an encore for Mme. Kellermann's pretty "Tarantelle in F Minor." Miss Florrie Mathis, Mr. W. H. Young, and Mr. Donovan also contributed to the programme. Messrs. C. Huenerbein, J. Emblen, and Hawkins were the accompanists of the evening.

GARDEN OF EDEN.

The lovers of the novel and the beautiful can have their curiosity satisfied, and their artistic tastes gratified, by a visit to the pretty little spectacle which Mrs. Allan Hamilton has opened in Pitt-street, opposite the Lyceum Theatre. Denominated "The Garden of Eden" a cleverly designed octagonal arrangement of mirrors multiplies to an indefinite number any visitor, and as the lady or gentleman entering the room is surrounded with artistically draped foliage and bright flowers, the spectacle presented along a series of cheerful avenues is calculated to present the onlooker under the most pleasing circumstances. During the week the "Garden" has been visited by a large number of people.

THE CRYSTAL MAZE.

An attractive exhibition, entitled The Crystal Maze, will be opened on Monday next at the Strand. The exhibition has been erected on the basement floor of the Strand (Pitt-street entrance), and is said to be similar to the one which has recently created so much interest at the Royal Aquarium, London. The visitor, on entering the Crystal Maze, finds himself apparently in the centre of a vast grove, with avenues of shrubs and flowers extending in every direction as far as the eye can reach. This grove is tenanted by thousands of people, among whom each person may with difficulty identify himself repeated from every point of view. The official opening will take place on Monday morning.

BONDI AQUARIUM.

Mr. Wyburd, of the Bondi Aquarium, has arranged for a special entertainment this afternoon. In itself the Aquarium, with its interesting exhibition of fish, is well worth a visit.

ALHAMBRA MUSIC HALL.

The business at the Alhambra Music Hall has been fairly satisfactory during the week. The lessees, who are always on the watch for novelties, have put on the bill for to-night a number of new and entertaining items. Among the artists who will appear are Mr. T. C. Callaghan in his comics, Miss Florrie St. Clair, Crawford and Mooney (acrobats), the Connor Brothers, Miss Millie Herberte, Delrey and Lynne, and the Sisters Sherwood.

The Battle of Gettysburg, as represented at the Cyclorama, continues to attract attention, and although it is long since it first appeared the painting seems an interesting novelty to many. Lectures which are given daily in explanation of the picture add considerably to the exhibition, as do the battle songs, which are contributed by well-known artists.

A concert in aid of the funds of the church was held in the Wesleyan School Hall, Ashfield, on Thursday night. The programme consisted chiefly of solos and choruses. Among the soloists were Misses Connors, Houston, Hegarty, Messrs. Morton and Hegarty; while Misses Beard (2) and Misses Connors and Crease rendered duets. Recitations were contributed by Misses Hargreaves and Hegarty, and among the other items was a quartette by Misses Hargraves and Messrs. Redfern and Hargraves. During the evening a number of bright choruses were rendered by a large combined choir under the conductorship of Mr. Richard Brown.

A children's bazaar was held in St. Joseph's R.C. Church, Rookwood, on Wednesday. There was a large attendance, and the stalls were crowded with toys. The proceeds were devoted to the school-church funds.

An open-air musical fête in aid of the funds of the Yarrandabby Tennis Club, Roslyn Gardens, was held last evening, at the Gardens. The threatening weather during the day militated a good deal against the attendance. The grounds were nicely decorated with Chinese lanterns, and Messrs Truda Brothers' band played lively selections during the evening. A concert platform had been erected within the enclosure, from which musical items were delivered. Mrs H. Lord sang "Leaving, yet Loving," and "An Autumn Evening." Mr. Harry A. Nathan sang "Let Me Love Thee" and the "Bedouin Love Song," as well as playing his new waltz, "Langreath," as a piano solo. Mrs. S. R. Kennedy sang "The Three Fishers" and "When the Tide Flows In," while Mr. S. R. Kennedy sang "The Distant Shore." Mr. C. R. Cass contributed "The Message" and "Nevermore."

The City Organist will give the usual popular recital of music at the Town Hall to-night. The full programme is published in another column.

An assistant marshal will also be stationed at the corner of Park and Elizabeth streets to direct societies proceeding that way. Officers in charge of the various societies are specially requested to obey the instructions of the marshals, and to prevent any break, so that no hitch may occur to mar the effect of the procession. To consolidate and add to the effect, the marshals and members individually are requested to see that a line of six abreast is formed, which will tend to the convenience and general appearance of the processionists. In consequence of the journey to be undertaken after the procession, it behoves each society to exercise the strictest punctuality and adhere firmly to the regulations laid down. The order of procession will be as follows:—1, Wharf Labourers; 2, Progressive Carpenters; 3, Balmain Labourers; 4, Boilermakers; 5, Iron-workers' Assistants; 6, Tinsmiths; 7, Plumbers; 8, Amalgamated Engineers; 9, Ironmoulders; 10, Farriers; 11, Australasian Engineers; 12, Shipwrights; 13, Seamen; 14, United Labourers; 15, Brewery Employees; 16, Quarrymen; 17, Painters; 18, United Furniture Trades; 19, Amalgamated Carpenters; 20, Gas Stokers; 21, Coachmakers; 22, Coopers; 23, Typographical Association; 24, Letter-press Machinists; 25, Amalgamated Bookbinders; 26, Bakers; 27, Confectioners; 28, Butchers; 29, Plasterers; 30, Stonemasons; 31, Bricklayers.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

KATOOMBA, FRIDAY.

A robbery is reported to have taken place on the main road to Bathurst. A man named James M'Keon, a poultry vendor residing at Marrickville, reports that last night he was stuck up on the Bathurst road, at a spot situated about a mile this side of Mount Victoria, and robbed. It appears that M'Keon was returning from Bathurst, where he had been disposing of some poultry, and while he was walking along beside his cart at 6 in the evening, and when at the place indicated, he was suddenly set upon by two men, one of whom struck him a violent blow, while the other caught him round the neck and abstracted from his trousers pocket 16 £1 Commercial Bank notes. The robbers then made off. Constables Illingsworth and Orr, both stationed at Katoomba, have been out searching for the assailants, but so far no traces of them have been found.

THE NEW ELECTORAL BILL.

KEMPSEY, FRIDAY.

Dissatisfaction is expressed on the Macleay at the alteration of the name of the electoral district to Kippara. The previous name of Hastings and Macleay was thought to be a much better one. The alterations made by tacking on the upper river to Hastings and Macleay is approved of, but people below Kempsey, who have been joined to Raleigh, are up in arms against the alteration made in their voting district.

THE STATE OF THE COUNTRY AND THE REMEDIES FOR IT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The old politicians appear to have agreed among themselves that the present Parliament should not do much more work, but should be allowed to pass out of existence in much the same manner that a righteous Buddhist proceeds to Nirvana. Extinction is to be reached by a slow and peaceful progress. With this object in view the Ministry have given us federation, the redistribution of seats, a mining on private property bill, and the ear-marking of supposititious revenue, as the bill of fare for the session.

This, be it remembered, is what is offered to Parliament as the work of a session during which we might do a great deal to relieve the country from the disabilities under which it labours. The country is suffering from an unparalleled depression, the result of which is that there is a stringency in monetary affairs, that hundreds of landowners are in danger of being sold up by the financial institutions, and that thousands of working men, with tens of thousands of women and children depending upon them, are in sore distress, if not suffering from semi-starvation. Does it not look like a satire upon our intelligence to tell us that at so serious a juncture in our national affairs we shall do nothing but pass legislation of a mere formal character, with the exception of the bill to legalise mining on private property? Does it seem a rational proceeding for a Parliament to be guided by the constitutional fad that, in view of the new electoral law, it is moribund, and ought not to undertake any practical legislation? Would we allow ourselves to be guided by such a punctilio if the country was in danger from foreign invasion or from an outbreak of cholera? Undoubtedly not. And if it would be sound and right to legislate under such circumstances, it is certainly sound and right for Parliament to take action to pass remedial measures now.

I, at all events, think so, and I am not going to allow myself to be dictated to in this matter by those who imagine they monopolise the right to occupy "the solar walk and milky way" of public life. A Government, in my opinion, should be the mirror of the people, reflecting back their wishes and aspirations. The people desire some relief at the present juncture, but none is offered by the Government or suggested by the Opposition. The angry feeling shown by the people at the meetings held by Mr. M'Millan and the protectionist country magistrates should teach legislators that something more is wanted just now than formal proposals arrayed in a rich wardrobe of words.

In my remarks on the Address in Reply to the Governor's Speech I outlined what I considered were the remedial measures which should be passed without delay by the existing Parliament, and I intend to persist in my intention of forcing these measures upon the attention of my brother legislators. Party discipline, like a Gesler's cap in the marketplace, seems to cause some members to bow the knee in servitude, and to keep silence when they ought to give voice to the aspirations and desires of the people. It has no terrors for me, however. I am for the State before any party, and I will study neither the convenience of the Government nor the comfort of the Opposition in any proceedings. The easy-going political leaders on both sides seem to be callous to the cries of the people and indifferent to anything but a comfortable occupation of their seats till the death-knell of the present Parliament is sounded. With them it is a highly improper proceeding for a Legislature to do any more work after an electoral law is passed. No matter if the people are in distress, there must be an appeal to the country under the new law before any measures of relief can be accorded. Though that appeal cannot possibly be made before February next, the people must fry in the fat of their misery in the meantime. Such a rigid adherence to a punctilio reminds one of that King of Spain who allowed himself to be burnt to death because the wrong Chamberlain had come to save him, and it has no sympathy from me.

If the Government do not, after a reasonable period of time, take some steps to pass remedial measures, I will create an opportunity for calling attention to the state of the country, and, if necessary, I will divide the Legislative Assembly upon the following motion:—

"That, in the opinion of this House, the critical condition into which the country has drifted demands the immediate and earnest consideration of Parliament.

"This House, therefore, resolves that, in addition to the legislation outlined in the Governor's speech, efforts should be made to legalise the following before the session closes:—

"1. The cessation of public borrowing, and a strict enforcement of economy with regard to the national expenditure.

"2. The establishment of a national bank of issue for the purpose of providing a sound paper currency, and the construction of reproductive public works, in order to find immediate employment for bona-fide residents of New South Wales.

"3. The suspension of mortgages, so that those who have borrowed money from the financial institutions may not have their properties sold up through failure to meet their engagements in a time of distress.

"4. The encouragement of the development of the natural wealth of the country by the Government giving all the assistance in its power to the meat-freezing industry, horticulture, agriculture, grazing, wine production, &c.

"5. The passing of a liberal and equitable land law.

"6. A more equitable distribution of the taxation of the country.

"7. The establishment of a national smelting works for the treatment of metalliferous ores, in order to relieve our mine owners from the domination of the 'ring' of buyers in London.

"8. Labour reforms, and a compulsory attendance of both parties to an industrial dispute in the Court of Conciliation, so that the public may learn the true facts of the dispute."

In making this announcement, I am well aware that I will run the risk of misrepresentation, and be made the object of attack by flippant pressmen or thoughtless partisans in Parliament. These will not trouble me much, however. I have the good of the whole community in view, and I feel assured that unless some measures of relief such as I have outlined are speedily passed into law, a great deal of suffering and distress, and perhaps the ruination of many landowners, will ensue. The prevention or alleviation of these is my aim, and that aim is my justification for the action I propose to take. Once the movement is started it will be continued till something tangible is done, or I cease to hold a seat in the Legislature. When I bite I hold. As retrenchment was forced on, so will these proposals be forced on. In Sydney we are slumbering on a socialistic volcano, and unless some relief is accorded to a distressed people we may look for a "stomach rebellion" long before our political Bourbons are enabled to make their appeal to the country.

I am, &c., E. W. O'SULLIVAN.

THE BEST SYSTEM OF NATIONAL TAXATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—A tax on the unimproved value of land is the most perfect and just system of taxation. No taxation should be levied on anything raised from the earth by the work of man. A tax on any work performed by man is a tax on capital and labour. It is most untrue to assert that labour unions drive capital out of the country in the face of the fact that capitalists have always got non-union men to take the place of unionists at reduced wages. The unionists have had their eyes opened to all this. It is also untrue to say that protection and trades-unionism go hand-in-hand, for the trades-unionists in all protective countries have to work long hours for low wages. Now, the motto of trades-unionists is eight hours a day and high wages. All these truths shine out more clearly the more they are examined, and the single-tax system of taxation will soon be the recognised policy of this colony. I am, &c.,

September 24. THOMAS CAMPBELL.

Among the many rather drastic provisions of the new French Sanitary Code, which has excited considerable opposition, not the least remarkable is that which makes re-vaccination compulsory in the course of the eleventh and twenty-first year. Parents and guardians are held personally responsible for the carrying out of this measure.

THE KILBURN SISTERHOOD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The attempt to establish a branch of this sect in the diocese of Sydney, in direct opposition to the vote of a large majority of the synod in 1885 (I think), which action is fostered by certain clerics, who are constantly preaching to laics to obey the powers that be ordained of God, but are not so apt to follow their own teaching, is my reason for asking you for space on this important subject, which is much exercising members of our Church, who are ignorant of the trend of the erroneous teaching inculcated by these women. Now, the Kilburn Sisterhood is working under the following aliases:—Church Extension Society, Church Sunday School Union, Education Union, &c. From their printing works numerous leaflets, pamphlets, and books are issued. Copies of these have been procured by the Church of England Association. I shall quote from some of them. They deny that they teach transubstantiation under "Tracts on the Teaching of the Church of England, No. 2, the Real Presence"—what else does the title mean?—a pamphlet of 16 pages, which is saturated with this and other "blasphemous fables and dangerous deceits." In their Lesson leaflet No. 36 they teach the infallibility of the Church. In their Mission tract they insist on confession, absolution, and penance, making confession virtually obligatory, which must be followed by penance duly directed by the absolving priest. Then they go in for invocation of saints (leaflet for Sunday-schools, fifth series, No. 16), for in "the office of the Guild of the Church Extension Society" the initiated sing:—

> The glorious Saints for ever blest,
> Who stand before God's throne,
> WILL HEAR amid their endless bliss
> The feeblest infant's moan.
> The nearer that they are to God
> The deeper burns their love;
> How many helpers then we have
> In that bright world above.

Capitals and italics printed as above in their books.

Paul tells us God is no respecter of persons. Who is correct? We are told in Mission tract No. 9, "While the lamb in the Passover only pointed to the Lamb of God, in the Eucharist there is the very Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of the world."

The worship of the wafer is inculcated in a small form, price one halfpenny, "Devotions in Church for those who are present at the celebration of Holy Communion," giving a hymn:—

> Prostrate I adore thee, Deity unseen,
> Who thy glory hidest 'neath these shadows mean.

But this is eclipsed by Hymn 86 for "the Children of the Church":—

> The Lamb of God who once was slain,
> Here on the altar lies;
> Father, for all the quick and dead,
> Accept this sacrifice.

The refrain or chorus being—

> My soul, fall prostrate to adore,
> In lowliest worship bent;
> Each day I life I love Thee more,
> Sweet Sacrament! Sweet Sacrament!

Then Mary worship, in Hymn 52, for the children, is taught thus:—

> Shall we not love Thee, Mother dear,
> Whom Jesus loves so well,
> And in His temple year by year
> The joy and glory tell?

And as the children are warmed up with this subject, more direct worship is given Mary:—

> And as he loves thee, Mother dear,
> We, too, will love thee well;
> And in His temple, year by year
> Thy joy and glory tell.

On the feast of the Presentation, in Hymn 55, is this exclamation:

> Joy! joy! the Mother comes.

Then in the Reasons for Ritual is advocated incense, lights, wafers, vestments, &c. (Italics in their book.)

But why weary your readers with lengthy extracts from their publications? Let me briefly summarise their antagonism to the Protestant reformed religion established by law, which Ritualists are now openly teaching.

1. They declare that the doctrine of Rome and England is the same; they attend the Roman mass and recommend others to do the same, and their prayer is for the union of these churches.

2. They revile Protestantism; they call it heresy, a pest, a cancer, a monstrous figment, and they vilify the Reformation and the Reformers in terms equally coarse.

3. They propose to abandon and labour for the abolition of the 39 articles of religion, those forty-stripes-save-one, as some of them have called these, which they have solemnly vowed to observe.

4. They hold with Rome that there are seven sacraments, whilst the twenty-fifth article to which they have subscribed declares that there are only two.

5. They pray to the Virgin Mary, and elevate her to a throne in Heaven.

7. They set up images of the Virgin and of the saints; and introduce into their churches the Romish pictures of the Twelve Stations of the Cross.

8. They pervert the communion table into an altar, the communion into a mass, and the clergyman into a sacrificing priest.

9. They enjoin the reservation of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, contrary to article 28.

10. They pray for the souls of the dead, and they declare their belief in purgatory, and in the power of the priest to relieve them from its penalties.

11. They omit the prayers for the Queen and Royal Family and Parliament.

12. They also introduce the Romish practices of Extreme Unction, substituting wafers for bread, using holy water, &c.

13. They advocate the procession and veneration of relics.

14. They encourage and enjoin habitual auricular confession to a priest; they seek to restore judicial absolution by a priest, and the Romish sacrament of penance.

15. They are restoring monasteries and convents.

16. They recommend the celibacy of priests.

17. They deny the sole authority of God's word. Many are their publications to this intent. Here is a short extract from one: "In the sense in which it is commonly understood at this day, Scripture, it is plain, is not on Anglican principles, the Rule of Faith."—Tracts for the Times, No. 90, page 11, republished with preface by Dr. Pusey, 1865.

18. Even on the Primacy of the Pope, which by Acts of Parliament and by the order of our Reformed Church was rejected, these Ritualists are now approaching the Papacy with their entreaties. At St. Alban's, Holborn, Dr. Littledale and three other priests (!) asked all present to pray "That Pentecostal fire might descend upon that great council which was about to assemble under the Chief Bishop of the Church, so that some of the scandals of the last 300 years might be removed;" and the traitor's organ, the Church News, 15th September, 1869, voices the desire of this sect thus:—"The cry of the earnest and devout in our communion to the successor of St. Peter is 'Come over and help us.' Will he stop his ears and beat back the hands stretched towards him, or will he advance half-way and fall on our neck" (yes, given the chance, break, not) "kiss us? We are quite content to allow that we have been as a Church separate, degraded by the State to keep swine, and famished on the husks it has cast to us, but we do not forget that we are sons."

Such, my Protestant brethren in the Church of England and in the various Protestant Churches in New South Wales, is a brief résumé of the enemy within our gates. Will you not, then, fight and stand fast in and for that liberty wherewith Christ hath made you free and free men, nor support those who, under cover of "good works," are insidiously attempting to undermine the Church of England?

Beware, then, of the attempt to dust your eyes, which disloyal men in the Church of England here are striving to do. Is it not palpable, if these men and women be honest, their place is elsewhere. If they fear to lose their individuality, then let them form a church for themselves. I am certain loyal members of the Protestant Reformed Church of England will not regret their departure.

In conclusion, let me thank you, Mr. Editor, for your great courtesy in giving me space in your valuable and valued journal. I have but one object in writing. That is, to give your readers a true photo. of the plan of action pursued by these rebels in our branch of the Christian Church. I trust that their attempt to "capture" it will show the danger to our political, civil, and religious freedom. I am, &c.,

September 28. EDWARD J. H. KNAPP.

CODIFICATION OF STATUTE LAW.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Mr. F. W. O'Brien's suggestion "that the practice of passing amending Acts should be abolished, and that when an alteration of a statute is resolved upon the statute should be repealed and re-enacted with the incorporation of the necessary amendment," is of the utmost value to, at any rate, the members of the Typographical Society and the printing trade in general. An amendment, however short, would certainly justify the repeal and re-enactment of a statute of such moderate dimensions as the Bankruptcy Act or the Crown Lands Acts. Mr. O'Brien's sage remark that "a more scientific system of legislation should be introduced" comes as a revelation to the unlearned amongst us, and proves him worthy of a seat on the board of three proposed by him.

Sept. 27. I am, &c., LEOLIN.

What is claimed to be the largest torpedo-boat in existence will shortly be launched for the French Government from the Oriolle Yard, at Nantes. This monster of destruction, which is to be named Lansquenet, was laid down a year ago. She will be provided with twin screws, and is expected to develop a speed of 26 knots. In addition to her torpedo armament she will carry three quick-firing guns.

THE CENTENNIAL ON SUNDAY.

(BY VAURIEN.)

Sydney has many parks and open spaces, each with its Sabbath Day peculiarities. The Inner Domain is characterised by loveliness, the Outer by latitudinarianism, and Hyde Park by loafers. It is not easy to name the Centennial's speciality—not easy to decide whether its bent is in the direction of gateways, statues, rocks, sand, sludge, or skylarks. It has enough and to spare of all. The gateways alone are as numerous as those of Troy, if not quite so high. But they have this advantage over those of Priam's old city—few of them are closed at night. Many reasons have been assigned for this apparent carelessness. It has been said that, as the park belongs to the people, the latter should have free ingress and egress at all hours. Still, the suspicion will obtrude that the real cause lies in the fact that in the majority of cases there are no gates. This in itself would in a measure account for the circumstance that on Sunday nights the Centennial is as open as a suburban hotel. It would be gratuitously insulting to supply even the most experienced janitor with keys without holes to put them in. Of the rocks, sand, and sludge—nature's dot to the Centennial—little need be said. It would be unfair to assert that they are much as they were before the discovery of the boomerang or the disappearance of the diprotodon. They have improved greatly since the dedication of the park, and may ultimately be either removed altogether or covered with mantles of green. Sand is always at its best when mixed with mud; so that if these two elements could be induced to combine union would give strength, and enable the new firm to start in the horticultural line with a certainty of success. It is the same with metals and with men. Supply them with proper alloys or partners, and the amalgam in each case is a marked improvement on both.

To come to the statues. Some are allegorical, some real. Most of them are marble, although about a few there is a suspicion of an undue familiarity with a sandstone matrix. But the spoiler has been at work—the Assyrian has come down like a wolf, not in cohorts of gold, but in high-heeled boots and red neckties—the larrikin has been abroad. Like the French sapper, the young Australian considers nothing sacred. It should not be forgotten, however, that this want of reverence is peculiar to all new, large, and sparsely-populated countries. Reverence, like confidence, is a plant of slow growth. As a fool will ask more conundrums in a quarter of an hour than a wise man can answer in a lifetime, so a young person with bell-bottomed trousers and a fringe will in a minute do more to change Spring into Winter, when each is on a pedestal, than Time in a century. Painting is there with braided hair, a truncated great toe, and a spot on the left arm resembling a smallpox pustule that the patient had rubbed with some emphasis when she heard the doctor coming upstairs. Diana is there also with an inoffensive-looking animals by the horns. Much venomous controversy rages occasionally around this work of art. Men use the bitterest language towards each other regarding the true nature of the beast held by the goddess. The day of my visit a compromise was effected, and a general agreement arrived at that the creature was a hybrid, in which the deer, sheep, and goat were about equally represented, with just a sufficient seasoning of the giraffe to give tone and character to the whole. The next is Fine Arts. She holds a palette and rests on a mutilated figure. Why the latter should be so incomplete is not very clear, except that wherever Art appears her votaries break limbs and heads in her honour. Look at an artist's studio. A man must be in the lowest walk of his profession, and never likely to rise, if he can't show more wreckage in his workroom than the English and French left in Canton when they paid it a morning visit 30 years ago. Where four roads meet, a similar number of stone females take their stand and demand to be recognised as the Seasons. They are of German extraction, and have the firm's name on the back. Time has not dealt tenderly with them. The fierce southerly gales, too, have not spared them, so that now they might exchange pedestals without anyone's being the wiser. The statues of real persons are confined to statesmen and writers. Soldiers and merchants are conspicuously absent. The trader does not lend himself readily to art. Even the broadest-minded sculptor finds it difficult to spend laborious days over a block when he knows that the only thing he can get out of it is a person that established a corner in flour or made a rise in bacon. Little wonder that his enthusiasm wanes as the successful merchant waxes, till in a fit of ill-temper he not infrequently strikes the embryonic dealer with a sledge instead of a mallet, or sells him to a cheap monumental mason to do duty as Grief in a neighbouring cemetery. Lincoln and Garfield, Gladstone, Disraeli, and Dickens have places in the Centennial. All have scrolls and frock coats. The latter are almost as fatal to true dignity in marble men as improvers would be in stone women. Still, matters might be worse. Some day an artistic iconoclast or innovator will arise, and, repudiating the traditions of his profession, he will depend for his effects on a belltopper hat or a poke bonnet. This will cause more commotion than the Tinted Venus; and for years the daily papers will resound with virulent tu quoques between the rival factions of tiles and no tiles. The prospect is by no means a cheering one. Lincoln's scroll appears to be connected with the emancipation of the negroes. Now that these sorely tried people have been manumitted another scroll is already called for to explain what is to be done with them. Of the numerous skylarks in the park it would be superfluous to speak admiringly. They are the same wee, clear-throated, jocund vagrants that trolled for Horace on the Sabine farm, and for Shelley in the English fields.

The real charm, however, of a Sunday in the Centennial consists in observing the people, and chatting with those mature persons who do not resent the advances of strangers. The best way is to go before church time, bring your lunch, and remain all day. Even in approaching the place by any of the numerous avenues of convergence, the observant wayfarer cannot fail to see much to attract and to interest. Here, for instance, outside one of the entrances, a new terrace of houses is all but finished. The addition of a few chimney-pots and the removal of some unattractive whitewash splashes from the windows are alone necessary before tenants enter and occupy. Where the latter are to be found, these times, does not seem to occur to the two middle-aged men—evidently the proprietor and the architect—talking on the footpath while running the new buildings over with eyes as critical as those of a recruiting-sergeant at a rustic gathering. It is a fact, singular as indisputable, that whenever new houses are being built the owner or the architect, or both, go round on Sunday mornings to examine the shells. If living near, they often go in their shirt-sleeves; if residing some distance away, the attention paid by them to their personal appearance is a standing reproach to slovens. Sunday morning though it be, numerous youths are hurling at the old Paddington butts over against the Centennial. The hurleys are mostly small pieces of palings obtained from the neighbouring fences, and grasped in one hand. The display is peculiarly ludicrous to anyone who has seen two Irish parishes come out after Mass, with bludgeons that would brain a megatherium, and wait for the senior priests to throw up the ball, while the curates on each side acted as umpires. And the way the four clergymen would retire from the zone of fire, so as to avoid contingencies when their parishioners met, was frequently an example of the highest strategy. The Paddington game somehow reminded me of the time the French cricketers met an English team at Boulogne, and came on the ground in top boots and spurs.

There is a final feu-de-joie of church-bells, and then an almost unbroken silence, as I take my seat in the park and suffer my eyes to wander over its magnificent distances. A mature woman in black goes by on a bicycle. She is the central knot in a string of five—two men riding in Indian file in front, while two more bring up the rear. The sight is sufficiently novel to excite attention and remark. A couple of elderly ladies near me are somewhat perturbed. One suggests that it is a mother and her sons out for an airing, while the other is certain that there were three generations of the same stock in the saddle. There is no reason why bicycle exercise should not be healthy, graceful, and proper for young girls. It is when the system becomes antique and generous that this method of locomotion should be avoided by both men and women. However viewed, a well-developed female on a bicycle is subversive of both enthusiasm and chivalry. At the same time a crotchetty and probably conservative old gentleman next me said he was glad to see it before he died. "For," said he a little brutally, "if anything'll kill female cycling, 'twill be a fat woman with her hat on one side." Where the quintet was going it would be impossible to determine. No one can be so vindictive as a garrulous old man. The number of elderly people sitting about is very noticeable. One in particular attracted me almost to the point of fascination. He looked so benevolent and intelligent that it was impossible not to join him and enter into conversation—a step which I subsequently regretted, if only from the carking and half-defiant incredulity which his experiences aroused in me. Nothing wounds one's self-esteem so deeply as to be taken for a sort of Simple Simon that believes everything. Yet, I've but myself to blame. It must have been the lady on wheels that made me unsuspicious. At all events after a few ordinary commonplaces we soon drifted to politics. The designs of Russia, the awakening of China, the French in Siam, and the daily life of the Pope—whether his Holiness liked duck eggs for lunch as British tourists said, or for breakfast as the Americans declared—afforded us a wide field for a comparison of opinions. As he had been in all the places mentioned he was a veritable reservoir of facts—that is, real facts learnt personally and not through irresponsible journals. It was when we touched on Ireland and Home Rule that something like the old fire shot from his eye. Yet his remembrances were not so much of a political character as of a military. It was to the present Commander-in-Chief, Lord Wolseley, that his mind wandered. "I was with Wolseley on that expedition to the West after Riel," he said, "an' many's the time his Lordship said to me, 'William Hopkins (he was always a bit offish, an' wouldn't call me Bill, like the other staff officers), wen shall we meet this here rebel?' I was in the boat service, an' knew every snag in the river for 1000 miles, as well as a Frenchman. 'Can't tell, my Lord,' I'd say, 'but wen we does, e'd a wished the Injuns 'ad scalped 'im wen 'e was young afore 'e growed up to try it on agin 'is Queen an' country, God bless 'em, my lord.' That was always good for an extra tot, for he warn't too generous 'cept with friends." Considering that the present Commandant in Ireland was not raised to the peerage till many years after the Red River expedition, and that no spirit ration was served from beginning to end except in cases of pressing emergency, it was impossible to regard this man's confidences with respect. It is from 2.30 to 3 p.m. that the tide of life into the Centennial is at the flow. It was pleasant to notice the numbers of young men carrying babies, not in the mining sense, but in proud and unequivocal reality. It reminded one of a Continental crowd, where each father has a child on his shoulder when it is cross, and on his head when it is good. There are carriages, too, with men in livery driving, while youths and maidens chatter behind. It is difficult to regard without commiseration the adolescent who prefers riding to walking on such a day. He is just the sort of person that in mature life would be discovered trundling a wheelbarrow or, as sandwich-man, with his head through the roof of a far-reaching quadrilateral. Evening approaches—it is time to leave.

MILITARY MOVEMENTS.

ARTILLERY ASSOCIATION.

A general meeting of the Artillery Association of New South Wales was held in the library at the officers' mess, Victoria Barracks, on Thursday evening. Colonel Spalding, C.M.G., president of the association, occupied the chair, and the other officers present were—Colonel Wells (vice-president), Colonel Airey, Major Airey, D.S.O., Major Bridges, Captains Savage, Phillips (honorary treasurer), Morris, Kyngdon, C. B. Airey, and Lester, and Lieutenants Small, Le Mesurier, Clarke, King (honorary secretary), and Spalding. It was announced that his Excellency the Governor and Major-General Hutton had consented to become patron and vice-patron respectively of the association. The meeting was called principally to discuss and decide on certain alterations in the rules and match regulations rendered necessary by the adoption of the Imperial system of carrying out the prize competition, scoring in connection therewith, and other incidental matters. This was done, and matches were fixed for the present year, and will probably take place towards the end of October. For the present year one company prize for First Division Garrison Artillery and two company prizes for Second Division Garrison Artillery will be competed for. Each company will be allowed a certain amount of ammunition for practice for the purpose of the selection of the four best detachments in the company. These four detachments in each company will then compete against the four detachments of the other companies for the company prizes. A copy of the new regulations and rules will be forwarded to all officers and non-commissioned officers for their information and that of the men under them as soon as printed. The rules and regulations for the competitions of the Brigade Division Field Artillery will shortly be framed, and promulgated in the same way.

NAVAL BRIGADE RIFLE CLUB.

A special general meeting of members of the Naval Brigade Rifle Club was held last evening at the drill shed, Fort Macquarie. P.O. Knapton presided. The business was the reconsideration of the rule relating to the number of prizes offered for competition each quarter. At a previous meeting it was resolved, on the motion of P.O. Patterson, seconded by P.O. Pulsford,—"That the prizes issued by the club be a prize for each three members that shoot, and that the prizes of the first class shall be the same as that of the second class." This resolution having been rescinded, the rule as it stands printed, giving for two shooting members one prize, was reaffirmed.

THE RIFLE ASSOCIATION'S PRIZE MEETING.

The number of entries received for the various events on the programme of the Rifle Association is as follows:—The Queen's Match, 365; the Dangar, 332; the Members', 324; the President's, 322; the Champion, 311; the Nursery, 164; the Tyro, 97; Affiliated Medal, 34; Rifle Clubs, 37; Battle Firing, 18 teams; the Governor's Cup, 18 teams; the Hutton, 8 teams. The time for receiving has, in consequence of unexpected delay in completing arrangements in connection with the prize meeting, been extended to Saturday, 7th October. After that date the 25 per cent. additional will be charged on all entries. The Challenge Cup presented by his Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, for competition by sections of four from any mounted corps in New South Wales, will in future be known as "The Governor's Cup."

In the presence of Major-General Hutton and the officers of his staff, a concert, under the auspices of J Company, 2nd Regiment Infantry, was held in the Carlton Hall, Summer Hill, on Thursday night. Most of the officers were in uniform, as also were the members of J Company, who mustered in considerable strength. A good programme was compiled by Lieutenants Romanotti and Holland. Among the vocal soloists in the first part were Misses Sheridan Reed and Keele, Messrs. C. R. Case, E. W. Foxall, and F. Fosbery. Mr. H. M'Mahon played a cornet solo, and Mr. Meikleham gave an exhibition of legerdemain, while gentlemen amateurs rendered a double quartet. The soloists in Part II. were Misses Fitzmaurice and Sheridan Reed and Messrs. B. Polglasse and S. R. Dobbie. Messrs. M'Mahon and Fowler gave a cornet duet; Mr. Meikleham, legerdemain; and Lieutenant Jenkins, A.D.C., ventriloquism. There were likewise a duet by Messrs. Foxall and Dobbie, and a double quartet. During the interval the volunteers were drawn up in an anteroom, and addressed by the General. He highly commended their soldierly appearance, and complimented them on their efficient marksmanship. It was mentioned that a camp would be held, though the rate of pay would be slightly reduced.

LARRIKINISM IN OUR PARKS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—If there is one thing more than another which should be brought under the notice of the people at the head of affairs it is certainly the disgusting language which one hears and the scenes which one witnesses in some of our parks of an evening. At the lower end of George-street there is a nice green spot, known as the Dawes Point Reserve. Its fine elevated position and the sweet fragrance of its flora have rendered it a favourite moonlight resort for persons who seek repose in contemplating the beauties of our harbour after being worried by the manifold cares of the busy day. But of late it seems that the so-called pushes of Miller's Point are determined to make themselves masters of this handsomely situated recreation ground, and convert it into a sort of nocturnal pandemonium for themselves and their "donahs." Only the other evening, in company with my wife, I took a stroll through the reserve in question, and the shameful scenes which we beheld, and the language which grated upon our ears were something abominable. It is not to be wondered at that respectable girls are afraid to be seen in the place after sunset. I think the gentleman in charge of the lower George-street police station should endeavour to put some sort of a check on this sort of thing. It is a lasting disgrace to our police authorities that our parks, which we have beautified at such an enormous cost of public money, should be given up to the profanity of bands of ruffians. If some steps are not soon taken to put a stop to these outrages on society the people should certainly band together as one man and enter an emphatic protest against rampant blackguardism. Apologising, Sir, for trespassing so far on your valuable space, I am, &c., MARTIN JUDGE.

At the late settlement of Castelnuovo Fogliani, in the Province of Piacenza, the usual constructions characteristic of an Italian terra-mara have been found, with fragments of rude pottery, bronze knives, ends of stags' horns, earthenware spindle-whorls, and other objects, all typical of the age of bronze.

WHITE CLIFFS OPALFIELD.

SURFACE SCRATCHING TO BE ABANDONED.

DEEP SINKING SUBSTITUTED.

WILCANNIA, FRIDAY.

The following reports are just to hand from the White Cliffs opalfield. Numbers of opal seekers are arriving daily on the field. Water has to be carted some distance. Rain is very badly wanted at Poverty Flat. On No. 13 leased block, owned by Mackenzie, Matthews, and Co., splendid specimens have been found. Strange to say very little good opal has been unearthed. Adjoining this comes block 19, which is worked by Martin, Wagner, and Co. Since last January the system of working this block has been exceptionally good. The present workings reflect great credit upon Wagner, who is an experienced Bul oo Downs opal miner. The shaft has been sunk to a depth of 20ft. from the surface of the drive; 7ft. by 6ft. has been put in due west to a distance of 33ft. At the 14ft. level several crosscuts have also been put in. The total amount of driving and crosscutting done is 64ft. A roadway has been cut leading to the drive. All the stuff is run out by means of wheelbarrows. The present winze is being sunk at the 14ft. level to test the deeper ground. The opinion is fast gaining ground that "surface scratching" will have to be abandoned, and that deep-sinking will be the order of the day. The next two blocks are being worked under mineral licenses. Good colours only are being found. Ward and Scott Bros. lease the next claim. Their results have been satisfactory. The last of the Poverty Flat leases is Clancy and Co.'s, who hold a good claim, from which £1000 worth of opal has been turned out. The old Yancannia-road passes through this block. Nine tributers are working here. Several blocks beyond this are worked under mineral licenses. A Melbourne opal buyer has just returned from the field. He is reported to have purchased opal to the value of £3000.

MUDGEE, FRIDAY.

A new rush has taken place about 30 miles from here, close to the Digilah estate, where Brigden and party have been prospecting. At about 13ft. they struck wash, which gave an average of 1dwt. to the dish. A rush for ground took place, and there are now about 100 men on the ground. At Piambong Patmed and Parkins are on a promising reef, which shows good results in the mortar test. The Morrissey Paddock prospectors claim, near Gulgong, looks like a good thing. At Smith's machine the other day a lot of dirt was put through which gave out all coarse gold, one of the heaviest pieces weighing 1oz. 5dwt. The miners estimate that they have four years' work before them, and at the present rate they are earning £5 per week per man. Egan and party, close by, have given up; the No. 1 North has washed a quantity of barely payable stuff, and other claims are not on payable dirt yet. Frye and Morrow, Smith's paddock, find their lookout improving from small wages to better things; Panie's dirt, and Thew's, turned out poorly. Lamont and party, are getting up a big heap at Home Rule, which is expected to give another large dividend. Wolfmuller's party on the old Nil Desperandum are washing up for wages. The New South Wales Bank at Gulgong has during four months purchased 600oz. of gold. A syndicate has taken over Parish and party's claim, from which a deal of gold has been taken. The gold being found in Crossing's paddock, Enfield, is the heaviest found in the Mudgee district. About 35 men are at work here. A little gold has been found at the Razorback, Ilford, but the rush has subsided. At the Crudine, some nice nuggets were got at the Back Creek. Elgin and party got the largest, which weighed 7oz. 14dwt., while Walford and party found a 4oz. nugget; each of these had 1oz. of quartz attached. The prospecting party at Merrygoen have obtained some encouraging prospects, having found a clearly-defined reef at the head of the gully, which breaks away, and in which good prospects have been obtained. The Hargraves battery from which six plates were recently stolen, is in a fair way of being restored. After the men Ramsay and Denicker had been sentenced to imprisonment for the theft, and were being removed, one of them told Mr. Nullett (one of the owners) that he wanted to see him. Next morning Mr. Nullett saw the man, who told him where to find the plates, giving him a plan, which showed a small shaft, down which the culprits threw the plates when they found they could do nothing with them. They tried to melt the gold and evaporate the amalgam; but began on an electro instead of the copper plate, and failed in their design. It is expected the battery will be quickly repaired, as there are several lots of stone waiting to be crushed.

GUNDAGAI, FRIDAY.

The escort left by to-night's train with 458oz. 16dwt. 20gr. gold, made up as follows:—Adelong, 338oz. 2dwt. 9gr.; Tumut, 27oz. 7dwt. 5gr.; Gundagai, 93oz. 7dwt. 6gr. About 80 men are now working the alluvial leads at Jackalass Estate, and from 80oz. to 100oz. of gold are won monthly. The miners each pay the owner of the ground 10s per month for the right to mine.

WAGGA, FRIDAY.

Information reached town to-night that No. 1 party at Eurongilly rush "bottomed" on Thursday evening, and at a depth of 50ft. obtained excellent prospects. The shaft bottomed on a cap of lead, having indications of a dip easterly towards the gutter. The party intends sinking another 10ft., and will then drive towards the gutter. Prospectors are reported to be obtaining good gold. All the parties are hopeful.

HILLGROVE, FRIDAY.

The West Sunlight Company cleaned up to-day after crushing 343 tons of stone for a yield of 236oz. smelted gold. The battery lost 48 hours during the fortnight whilst repairing machinery. Everything is in full swing now. The east drive at the bottom level is in 30ft. and the west drive 15ft. Both are producing good stone. The winze from the 230ft. level is down 58ft., giving good stone. The Hillgrove Freehold tributors have 50 tons of good antimony ore at grass. The Sunlight mine contractors commenced the work of extending the No. 5 tunnel. The stopes at the back of No. 3 level are working as usual, providing all the crushing stone. At the battery 30 head of stampers are working half-time, 10 for the company and the balance for the Baker's Creek Consolidated tributors. The water in Baker's Creek is getting low. The Sunlight Company has it dammed back just below the battery.

BROKEN HILL, FRIDAY.

Mr. Wm. Stuckey, chairman of the board of directors of the Junction Mine, on being interviewed to-day, stated that the future of the mine, so far as sulphides were concerned, was practically assured. New stopes in proximity to Brownes and M'Intyre's shafts were now being opened up. They had materially increased the known resources of good grade ore of this class in sight, and the prospecting work done had enabled the ore to be easily and cheaply mined. The south drive from M'Intyre's shaft at the 450ft. level had exposed a large breast of valuable and virgin ground ready for the pick. So far as the carbonate reserves were concerned the lead contents were highly satisfactory and the quantity known to exist was also considerable, though he should like to see the silver contents a little higher. There were also siliceous bodies of some extent of a fair silver value that would pay to prospect and open up on now that the company had overcome its financial difficulties. Mr. Stuckey also said: "I visited the underground working of the mine to-day, in company with Mr. Phillipps, the manager, and I certainly was most favourably impressed with the kindly-looking appearance and the extent of the ore bodies which I saw. I am decidedly of opinion that M'Intyre's shaft, which is now sunk a depth of 450ft., should be continued at least another 150ft., as bottom at present depth carried cubical galena and sulphides much freer from zinc than were found elsewhere in the mine. So far as further immediate prospecting is concerned the drive from M'Intyre's shaft at this lowest level will be extended south, and also north drive at 400ft. level from this shaft will be continued towards the Junction North boundary to intersect an argentiferous garnet sandstone shoot so rich in silver, and which is now being treated on that mine to such advantage.

GYMPIE (Q.), FRIDAY.

Mr. Thomas Smith reports as follows:—Sales: Crown Phœnix, 1s 9d to 2s; No. 1 North New Zealand, 14s 7d; South Lady Mary, 1s 7d, down to 1s 5d; No 1 South Phœnix, 8s 9d, 9s; Phœnix P. C. Tribute, 8½d; Great Eastern Orient, 6d; No. 1 North New Zealand Extended, 8d; No. 2 South Phœnix, 3s 9d. To-night's quotations are:—No. 2 Great Eastern, seller 4s 0½d, buyer 3s 11½d; No. 5 North Phœnix, seller 5s 6d, buyer 5s 3d; No. 1 North Phœnix, seller 16s, buyer 15s.

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

A dull market prevailed for most gold-mining stocks, the principal sales being:—Bonnie Doon, 5s; Berry Consols Extended, 13s, 13s 9d; Chalk's Freehold, 12s 3d; Dowling's Forest, No. 1, 2s 1d, 2s 4d; Grand Duke, 22s, 22s 1½d; North Duke, 19s 3d, 18s 9d; Great South Long Tunnel, 5s 5d; Glenfern, 4s 6d; Golden Age, 21s; Hustler's Reef, 14s 9d, 14s 6d; Hustler's Reef No. 1, 3s 5d; Midas Consols, contributing, 6s, 6s 6d—paid, 7s; New Argus, 3s 3d, 3s 7d; New Koh-i-noor, 4s 8d, 4s; North Prentice, 7s 6d; Princess Dagmar (small lot), 3s; Russell's Reef, 3s 1d; Spes Proprietary, 2s 5d; Star of the East (ex. div.), 96s; Waterloo, 12s 6d; Johnson's Reef, 82s.

Although the market for silver-mining companies continues restricted, there was rather more business to-day than of late, Broken Hill Proprietary selling at 48s 6d; Block 10, 20s 6d, 21s; Central Broken, 3s 7d, 3s 8d; and Comet (Tasmania), 1s. Mount Lyell (Tasmania) had some inquiry in consequence of the favourable prospect of placing the new issue on the London market.

The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the Central Broken Hill Silver-mining Company was held this afternoon. The chairman, Mr. Henry Dodds, in moving the adoption of the report, said that the whole of the money required for liquidation had been paid the liquidators in Sydney. The directors hoped to have absolute possession of the property within a very short time. At the present moment their assets showed a surplus over the total liabilities of £4880. There had been considerable difficulty in arranging matters in connection with contracts made by the old company, but it was expected that in a day or two everything would have been settled. Mr. W. G. Sprigg said he thought it desirable that a vote of the shareholders should be given on the question of the company entering into a contract with other companies to drive a crosscut at the 1330ft. level from the Broken Hill Extended Company's shaft. A motion was unanimously carried—"That it is the wish of the shareholders that this work should be proceeded with, and that the Central Company should join in it."

ADELAIDE, FRIDAY.

There was a slight improvement noticeable to-day in the prices of silver shares. Sales included:—Gold: Coolgardie, £20, £22; Johnson's Reef, 86s, 82s; Baker's Creek, 26s 9d; Golden Age, 25s 6d, 21s; Ivanhoe, 6s. Silver: Broken Hill Proprietary, 48s 3d, 49s, 48s 9d; Block 10, 20s 6d, 20s, 1s; Block 14, 8s; Central, paid, 3s 7½d; Junction, 2s 8d; Junction North, 1s 6d; North, 7½d.

THE GULF OF MEXICO.

Messrs. A. M'Arthur and Co., agents for the Greenock Steam-ship Company and the Gulf Line Association (Mr. D. Macdougall, of Glasgow), are despatching the Gulf of Mexico for Dunkirk and Hull. The steamer arrived early this morning. Captain Warden is in command, and reports a rough weather trip. Departure was taken from Liverpool at 10 p.m. on the 27th July, and a pleasant weather passage was had to Las Palmas, reached on the 3rd ultimo. The steamer coaled and sailed the next day, and from Cape Verde to 37° south experienced strong S.S.W. and S.E. winds with heavy seas. This weather culminated in a fierce south-easterly gale, with high head seas. The winds gradually worked round to the westward, and a heavy gale from N.W. to S.W., accompanied by hard squalls of hail and snow, was experienced off the Leeuwin. The steamer went as far south as 46½°, but although the temperature of air and water was low, no ice was seen. In the longitude of and a little to the north of the Crozets a fresh northerly gale was encountered. Fine weather was experienced approaching Cape Borda, and Adelaide was reached on the 18th instant. From Adelaide light to fresh winds, with high seas, were met with, and after calling at Melbourne the steamer came on here.

THE TYSER LINE.—THE STAR OF ENGLAND.

In Tyser's line the above steamer yesterday arrived at Moore's Wharf en route to New Zealand, where she will load wool and frozen meat home. The agents of the line are Messrs. Ba'chin, Johnston, and Co., who intend to despatch her next Wednesday to Auckland. The Star of England is under the command of Captain J. Simpson, who reports a very boisterous passage. The vessel had to contend against strong head winds, and the passage of 48 days from London is very satisfactory. The consumption of coal has been under 25 tons per day. The steamer took her departure from London on 4th ultimo, and passed Dover at 11 a.m. the same day, with fresh westerly winds, which lasted till arrival at Las Palmas, where the anchor was dropped at 9.30 p.m. on 10th ultimo. The coaling operation were not concluded till 8.20 p.m. the next day, and the voyage was at once resumed. Fresh N.E. trades prevailed to 20° N., after which strong S.W. monsoons prevailed to 2° S. The S.E. trades were very strong, with high head seas, against which the steamer had to contend to 27° S. The meridian of the Cape of Good Hope was crossed in 38° S. on 8th ultimo. The Southern Ocean was crossed in the parallel of 42° south with strong winds veering from N. to N.W. round to S.W. These winds carried the steamer up to Cape Nelson. On 7th instant a heavy gale was encountered. The ship was put head to sea, and the engines were kept at half-speed till 10 p.m., when the wind veered by N.E. to N. The ship was driven full speed, and all went well until 5 a.m. on 21st, when a gale from the westward with squalls of hurricane force was encountered, which lasted all night. Port Phillip was made next day, and the Star of England cleared Port Phillip Heads at noon on Wednesday, 27th September. She experienced light S.W. winds with fine weather on the run from Melbourne. The Star of Victoria is next expected in this line. She left London on the 9th ultimo.

THE MENMUIR IN A TYPHOON.

The E. and A. Company's Menmuir arrived last evening at the company's wharf. This vessel, as reported the other day by wire from Thursday Island, was in a typhoon, and narrowly escaped. Heavy water was shipped, and it is supposed some found its way on the iron 'tween deck through a bursted port. Some of the cargo, which is a general one, has sustained damage by water, and after the arrival of the vessel at the wharf a survey was held. The extent and exact nature of the damage cannot of course be stated at present. The details of the trip are given by the ship as follows:—Left Kobe on Saturday, the 26th of August, and arrived at Moji on the 27th, and coaled ship and proceeded same day. From Japan to Hongkong had fine weather, although barometer low and every indication of bad weather to the south and eastward of Formosa. Left Hongkong on the 5th, and Macao at noon the same day. From Hongkong to Macao weather dull and overcast, with falling barometer, wind north-easterly. After leaving Macao weather continued the same, with showers and sea rising; on the 6th, at 6 a.m., weather squally and overcast, sea confused, wind veering to the northward, and every indication of a typhoon to the eastward; at p.m. of the 6th very fierce squalls and high confused sea, wind N.N.W., ship rolling and labouring heavily, decks continually flooded; at 8 p.m. wind N.W., barometer 29·0, centre of typhoon about E.N.E., ship running S.S.E.; at 6 a.m. of the 7th wind west, with very hard squalls and high confused sea, barometer rising slowly, same weather continuing all day, wind hauling to S.W., sea still heavy, but more regular, and weather moderating towards midnight; at 4 a.m. of the 8th sighted Cabra, and there the steamer took shelter until the crew trimmed ship upright, the vessel having taken a heavy list to port during the typhoon, and at 10 a.m. proceeded on voyage to Port Darwin, arriving there on Friday, the 15th September, and left on the 17th. The steamer demonstrated her seaworthiness well during the continuance of the typhoon. It was one of those storms that proved so disastrous last year to the P. and O. s.s. Bokhara. The Menmuir left Port Darwin on the 17th September, and arrived at Thursday Island on the 20th. Left again the same day, and arrived at Cooktown on the 22nd. Left again, and arrived at Townsville on the 23rd. Left on the 24th, and arrived at Moreton Bay on the 27th. Left again on the 27th, and arrived at Sydney on the 29th at 2.30 p.m. From Brisbane had fine and clear weather to Broken Bay, then showery till arrival.

OCEAN EXCURSIONS.

The manager of the Newcastle and Hunter River Company, Mr. F. J. Thomas, announces two special trips to the Hawkesbury on Monday next. The Namoi will run to Newport, and the Maitland to Port Hacking.

SHIPPING SALES.

Yesterday Messrs. Fraser and Co. offered the iron barque Argo at auction, but she was withdrawn. The Jubilee steamer, offered the other day, has not attracted a buyer at the price asked. Reports by the English mails to hand yesterday:—The barque John Johnson, 696 tons register, has been sold to Norwegians for about £1150. She was built at Annapolis, U.S., in 1874. She carries 1000 tons deadweight on 19ft. The barque Estella has been sold to Japan at about £750. She is 578 tons register, and carries 775 tons cargo; was built at Yarmouth, Maine, in 1866. The Pewick (s.), built in 1872, was sold for £5500. A new screw steel steamer Patriot, 591 tons gross, was sold for £9600. Fitted with triple-expansion engines, 70 h.p.n., speed 9½ knots. A steel screw-steamer Reeder has been sold, and renamed Siam. The purchase price was £19,000. She is 2172 tons gross and 2024 tons net register. Fitted with triple-expansion engines of 220 h.p.n. The steel screw-steamer Emma, lying at Renfrew.

OVERDUE SHIPPING.

At this port the Levuka and Varuna, barques, are overdue, with general cargoes. The Levuka's Halifax date is 23rd May, and the Varuna left New York 13 days earlier. In the overdue market at London the following were yesterday advised, under English date the 28th ultimo:—On the Narah, 80 guineas was offering, and the Blair Athol was quoted at 70 to 75 guineas, while the Harland had advanced to 30 guineas. Other ships offering were the William Mitchell, from Newcastle, N.S.W., 29th May, to San Diego. She is a new steel ship of 1865 tons register, built at Londonderry by Mr. C. J. Bigger, and owned there by Mr. W. Mitchell; and the Craig Elvan, from Antwerp 2nd March (spoken 20th April, 20° S., 30° W.), with a miscellaneous cargo for San Francisco; she is a steel barque of 1348 tons register, built by Messrs. Charles Connell and Co., of Glasgow, in 1891, and owned by Mr. J. Carswell, of Greenock. On the William Mitchell the rate was 15 guineas, and on the Craig Elvan seven to eight guineas.

ENGLISH SHIPPING.

Load or for Sydney at London 25th August: Macquarie, ship, Captain Goddard; Ivanhoe, Captain George; Port Hunter (s), Captain Orr. At Liverpool: Gulf of Venice. At the Berlin Anthropological Society, Mr. Merensky has given some curious particulars about the Kondeh people in the German district on Lake Nyassa. Their country is bordered on the north by the Livingstone Mountains, and on the south by the lake, and this favourable geographical position has enabled the people to develop in a peculiar manner, and attain a relatively high state of civilisation. "Their affections are largely developed. Friendship is especially valued among them, and love between the sexes strong and firm, as well as the domestic affections. Suicide caused by grief for the loss of a wife, a child, or even a favourite animal, is not unfrequent. The favourite form of suicide is to enter the water and allow oneself to be devoured by a crocodile. In war time all unnecessary cruelty is avoided, and women and children who have been made prisoners are let free again. The position of women among the Kondehs is unusually high. Women are on a perfect equality with men in the eyes of the law, and offences against women are even more severely punished than offences against men."

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

FRIDAY EVENING.

In the Stock and Share market the business of the day was small and uneventful in character. Sales of bank deposits were made at previous rates. Provision having been made for the transfer of the new shares of the Bank of New South Wales, the old shares were quitted ex the right to them at 38. Bank shares generally were unaltered. Steam and Insurance were unnoticed, quotations being steady. Australian Gaslight were quitted at previous price. All other shares were quoted the same as yesterday.

The following sales were reported at the Sydney Stock Exchange at noon to-day:—A.J.S. Bank deposit, 14s 6d; Australian Gas, 13¾. And at 4 o'clock: A.J.S. Bank deposit, 14s 6d; Commercial of Sydney deposit, 18s; and New South Wales, ex new, 38. The closing quotations were:—

Companies.	Capital paid up.	Amount of Shares.	Sh're paid up.	Last Div. per annum.	Prices. Last Sale.	Buyers.	Sellers.

The week now coming to a close has been a dull one. In some branches, however, there has been an improvement in trade, and generally there are indications of a better state of things. The opening of the wool sales next week is expected to impart fresh life all round. The exchange rate on London, 60 days sight, is quoted at 10s discount. The selling rate is 10s premium.

Although there was no reason to doubt that the English shareholders of the Bank of New South Wales would be eager to obtain the new shares to be allotted to them, the statement wired to the effect that they have applied for them, and there are others anxious to obtain them, must be regarded as satisfactory. This is one of the ways in which British capitalists will benefit by the banking crisis.

The Equitable Permanent Building Society advertises that it is now paying its half-yearly dividend to shareholders.

It will be seen that the proposal of the debenture-holders of the New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company to borrow £15,000 to carry on the business of the company at the present time has been sanctioned by the English Judge before whom application was made.

In the Equity Court to-day Mr. Justice Manning made an order empowering the liquidators of the Anglo-Australian Investment, Land, and Finance Company to sell such of its properties and assets as had been given by way of security to the Union Bank to the Anglo-Australian Assets Company.

It appears that three-quarters of a million of the Victorian Conversion Loan has been obtained by the holders of the debentures maturing in January, leaving £1,350,000 to be allotted to brokers and others.

The statement is now made that the proposed new New South Wales loan is required to redeem £1,350,000 of Treasury bills and to pay for new works.

Our London files to 25th August show that in the preceding week the tension in the money market was increasing, owing to the demand for gold for America, and on 24th August the Bank of England rate was raised to 5 per cent. In its money article of that date the Times thus referred to the position:—

> As was pretty generally expected, the discount rate of the Bank of England, which was raised to 4 per cent. on the 10th instant, was to-day further advanced to 5 per cent. [illegible]

As our cablegrams have informed us, the raising of the bank rate and the falling-off in the demand for gold for America brought about an easier condition of affairs, the bank rate falling on the 14th of this month to 4 per cent., and on the 21st to 3½ per cent., while the market rate of discount has pretty steadily declined from 4½ per cent. on the 24th August to 1⅞ per cent., yesterday's quotation. The bank figures this week show no material alteration.

The compromise which the silver party in America now suggest is the free coinage of American silver on the basis of a seigniorage of three-fourths of the difference between the London price of silver and the legal tender value of the dollar. This means that the price of silver being say 2s 10d per ounce in London—the London price being fixed presumably because the American market would be disturbed by speculation—and the legal tender price say 4s 11d, the Government and the silver men would divide between them 2s 1d per ounce, the Government getting three-fourths, or 1s 6¾d, and the silver men one-fourth, or 6¼d per ounce. The minting would operate somewhat in this way: The owner of the silver would bring to the mint say 100oz., worth at the London market price, 2s 10d per ounce, or £14 3s 4d. If the coinage were perfectly free, he would receive 111 dollars, valued about £23 2s 6d, practically a premium of £8 19s 2d, less ordinary mint charges. Now, what is proposed is that the Government, instead of making the complete loss of £8 19s 2d, should charge three-fourths, or about £7 9s 6½d, as seigniorage, and give the owner of the silver the remaining £2 9s 9½d, with the London market value of the metal, £14 3s 4d—or, in all, £16 13s 1½d—that is, silver coinage to that amount. Approximately, what the owner would get would be a bonus of 6½d per oz. on the London price of the metal at 2s 10d per ounce. The settlement of the question on this basis would be impossible. At 3s 4½d per ounce the metal would be valued in excess of requirements. No doubt it might be said that this would reduce the price in London. But just as the price was reduced would the bonus increase. If instead of 2s 10d the London price were 2s 6d, then the bonus given for the silver would be 7¼d, making 3s 1¼d as the price which the owner would receive in silver coin. What is proposed is an attempt to get in another way an advantage that was sought in vain to be attained by coinage at changed ratios. The scheme of people who want to get special advantages at the public expense may be very ingenious, but even though this particular silver-mining class wish to work with the other classes benefited by the M'Kinley tariff, it may be doubted whether what they desire will be carried into effect. The obstruction in the Legislature—the indecent obstruction, it may be said—indicates that the silver party will die hard. It is satisfactory to note that despite the threats of arraignment by Senator Stewart, President Cleveland continues to urge the repeal of the Sherman Silver Act.

The drift of some remarks we made the other day as to the sufficiency of the world's production of gold went to show that in 10 years' time the metal would all be required to maintain existing monetary conditions—that none would be available in substitution for silver. And, consequently, it might be held that if American silver mineowners continued their agitation, eventually they would attain their ends—that is, in the event of no fresh discoveries of gold being made. But at the rate at which American silver currency is overlapping gold, and would continue to overlap it even under the suggested arrangement, the United States would before 10 years be forced into a silver standard. At least everything points in that direction. As President Cleveland himself says, the country will be plunged into a deeper depression by the continuance of the present law. And it may be doubted whether when the international adjustment takes place (which on the figures we have quoted is as inevitable as the law of progress), the United States will be in as good a position with its interests more fully bound up in silver to take its part in the work as it would be under present conditions. Certainly, the policy of the United States for the past ten years has not been in the direction of that world-wide uniformity of currency law which is necessary to the easiest interchange of the world's products.

The quotations for copper and tin are rather lower on the week, Chili bars having declined 10s, to £42; and Straits tin, for three months' delivery, ⅞, to £73 15s.

The concession of the grant of a fully paid-up policy by the City Mutual Life Assurance Society is not a new feature, as stated yesterday, though it is being now advertised for the information of its policyholders.

The alterations in colonial stock quotations this week have been mostly upward. New South Wales 3½ per cent. have advanced 1 to 1½. The 4's have not advanced. That they have not receded is perhaps as much as could be expected considering the rumours of a new loan, probably at the rate of 4 per cent. If a new loan to meet the maturing Treasury bills is necessary, no doubt the market is more favourable for a 4 per cent. loan than a 3½ per cent. one. But is it not possible to renew the Treasury bills for a period of three or four years instead of borrowing on a long-dated security at an abnormally high rate of interest? Victorian 3½ per cents. have more than recovered from the "bear" movement which sent them down 1½ last week in consequence of the belief that the conversion loan would be at 3½ per cent. The New Zealand securities continue to head the list—both of 3½ per cents. and 4 per cents.—a change from the bottom to the top within a few years.

The question of the restriction of credits has recently engaged the attention of the Melbourne Warehousemen's Association, and its secretary has issued a circular letter impressing upon the drapers and storekeepers throughout Victoria that the credit system which had lately assumed such large proportions would have to be restricted very considerably in order to get trade into a more healthy state. The hope is expressed that the example set by merchants in other sections of business will be speedily adopted by all traders. The following are to be the trade terms of the warehousemen on and after 1st January next:—

> For Cash Payments.—5 per cent. discount will be allowed on payments made within one month from date of purchase, [illegible]

The second annual meeting of depositors of the Mercantile Building, Land, and Investment Company, Limited, in liquidation, was held yesterday afternoon at the Protestant Hall. There were about 70 present. The chairman of liquidators, Mr. Joseph Creer, read the report for the past year and explained each item in detail. Within the year ended 31st July the bank overdraft had been reduced from £28,301 to £23,474, the income for the year having been £13,164, and the expenditure £3413. The rents were still on the increase, and as all the house property had now been thoroughly renovated, it was anticipated that the returns would still increase. During the past year the list of contributories had engaged the attention of the liquidators, and they reported that the list had now been finally settled by the Master in Equity, and a call of 1s per share made on all shares upon which nothing had been paid. After discussion, it was moved and seconded, that this meeting had not confidence in the liquidators as at present constituted. On the motion being put to the meeting, 13 voted for it, the others refrained from voting either way. A meeting of shareholders was also held yesterday, in the evening, when Mr. Creer moved the adoption of the report as read. After discussion, the report was adopted, and a vote of thanks to the liquidators was carried unanimously.

In their Calcutta circular of the 2nd September, Messrs. Hoare, Miller, and Co. thus refer to the Exchange:—"The exchange market is still at the mercy of the Secretary of State, and this week a sudden advance in rates has been caused by his refusal to allot council drafts. To-day's rate for six months' sight drafts on London is 1s 3¼d."

THE IMPORT MARKET.

Although the business for the month proper has been confined to a most restricted scale, there are indications in the purchases which have been rendered necessary to supply orders already in hand for next month, that October will not be quite so bad as its predecessor. Although hardly anyone has a good word to say for September, the feeling with regard to the coming month is decidedly more hopeful. Market movements have not been altogether devoid of interest. The scarcity of kerosene has induced importations from Melbourne as well as from Brisbane, and although a large shipment from New York is now in port it is not yet accessible, and high prices have still to be paid for oil for prompt delivery. In dried fruits rather an unusual spectacle is presented. New currants are offering, for future delivery, at a price considerably below that which is being paid for old fruit on the spot. The new fruit, however, is still a long way off, some of the ships named "to arrive" not having as yet left port. Imported candles are very bare, and present the anomaly that storekeepers' small lots can be purchased more cheaply than large import parcels, which, indeed, are hardly obtainable. Breadstuffs have a steady trade at unaltered prices. China teas are quiet, purchasers of common grades having apparently supplied their wants, or else desiring to do so at previous auction rates, which were considerably below importers' ideas of value. For the moment, therefore, there appears to be a pause in the trade. Indians and Ceylons have more inquiry than China kinds, and move more freely. New Queensland sugar is coming to hand rather more liberally, but is not in excessive supply, and well-known makes and desirable samples of whites and yellows maintain their prices. Hardware is slow of sale, being chiefly affected by the dulness prevailing in the building trades, and the same remark applies to timber. The colony, however, is gradually adapting itself to its altered conditions in relation to finance and commerce, and in proportion as this is the case a gradual, and it may be hoped a permanent, improvement may be expected to take place.

Our cable advices respecting the London market for breadstuffs show that the advance reported last week has been maintained, prices of South Australian, Victorian, and New Zealand descriptions, ex warehouse, remaining unchanged with a firm market. In the face of heavy supplies following the American and Continental harvests, this is a favourable indication for the future of the market.

China teas were quiet to-day, but Ceylons and Indians had fair inquiry. A few sales of Ceylon, pekoe souchongs, pekoes, and broken pekoes were made at a shade over auction rates, good pekoe souchongs bringing 6½d to 8½d; fair to good pekoes, 9½d to 9¾d; and broken pekoes, 11d to 13d. For a break of 50 half-chests Ceylon broken pekoe 1s 2d was paid, and for 30 half-chests Indian broken orange pekoe 8½d. Cable advices from Colombo report the market still rising. By mail Messrs. Bathgate, Pim, and Co. report under date Colombo, 12th September:—

> September 6: 2100 packages offered, and 2400 packages sold. [illegible]

Prices obtained at the Calcutta auctions, as advised by mail, had been rather irregular, but buying for the colonies had been proceeded on a rather more liberal scale. Shipments for Australasia from the commencement of the season to 12th August, which includes the Bhundara's shipment, were 1,350,862lb., against 1,138,077lb. in the corresponding period of last season. Prospects pointed to a rather smaller yield than was at first thought. A market report of 30th August is to the following effect:—

> Tea.—During the past fortnight the offerings have been [illegible]

Shipments of tea for Melbourne by the s.s. Bonidana, which sailed on 1st September, were 454,790lb., and for Sydney 123,062lb. The Darra was to sail on 12th September, and to be followed by the Argus at the end of the month. Nothing definite was arranged for October, but it was thought that two steamers would be fixed for that month.

A fairly active business continues to be noted in sugars, and prices are well maintained. Fair parcels of whites were sold to-day at £24 to £24 15s, according to sample. In yellows, business was done for export at a slight concession on £17 f.o.b., and smaller quantities at £22, duty paid. Our cable advices from London show a fall of 3d per cwt. in 88 per cent. German beet during the week, and of 3d per cwt. in Java No. 14.

Dried fruits are engaging more attention. In currants an active business is being done, especially in fruit to arrive. For a parcel of 200 cases currants on the spot 4½d was paid; for another of 150 cases currants, arrive Clematis, 4d. From this ship and the Britannia some six or seven hundred cases have been sold at this price. To arrive Thermopylæ, sales of 150 cases at 4d are reported, and, to arrive Maori King, 300 cases at 3¾d. The last-named ship was to leave London at the end of this month. Sales covering 300 boxes elemes were mentioned at 4½d, and a parcel of Valencias was placed at 3½d. Dates have had a fair inquiry, and have been firm at 2½d for parcels, up to 3d for small lots. Dried apples had some business at 6½d, and dried apricots at 11d; for one tank walnuts 3½d was paid; small sales of sultanas at 4½d to 4¾d.

General groceries are moving with rather more freedom, the "first of the month" orders having naturally some influence on this branch of the trade. The sale of 1300 boxes Gondas in one line, ex Star of England, was reported at 7d. Small lots of Schiedams and D. R. J.'s might still be obtained at 6½d and 6¾d respectively, but the general quotation is 7d, and this figure is not easy to break unless some inducement is shown. Two large parcels of American canned fruits, totalling 1200 cases, have been taken up on private terms, which should strengthen the market for this commodity. Other sales mentioned were:—200 cases Berkeley pickles, also Whybrow's at 6s; 25 cases Hogarth's [illegible], 5s 6d; 10 cases ditto half-pint sauce, 3s 3d. Trade sales Hora's castor oil, half-pints, 4s; pints, 6s 9d. Whybrow's salad oil, 3s; 49 cases salad oil, half-pints, 3s 9d; 20 cases castor oil, half-pints, 3s 4½d. Fair sales of Colman's [illegible] starch at £15 and £25 10s, but the market is very bare; Hoffman's starch, £23; [illegible], £30; 150 cases Orlando Jones' starch, boxes, £34. Trade sales Morton's and Rowat's pickles; Houghton's marmalade, 6s 9d; Moring's fresh herrings, 4s 6d; Moir's, 4s 10½d; Moir's kippered herrings, 7s 6d; three cases Edam cheese, 12½d; 25 cases Milne's kippered herrings, 7s; several 25-case lots Salmon salmon, at 10½d, in bond 7s; duty-paid Alaska, 6s 3d; fair parcels quarter sardines, 3s 10½d to 4s, according to brand; Kennett's oysters, 4s 9d to 5s; five cases limejuice, 2s. Tea blenders report an active business, sales of "Billy" tea during the week having totalled over 15,000lb.

Notwithstanding the depression, increasing sales are reported of M'Ewan's bulk ale, hogsheads, half-hogsheads, and barrels being in active demand. Bulking, Ind Coope and Co.'s, and other brands of ale and stout have had steady sales. Sparta have also had a fair demand. Hennessy's brandy remains firm at recent quotations. Trade sales of Jubenne's, C.V.P. and A.V.P. at usual rates. Geneva quiet, and offering pretty freely at 12s 3d on the spot. Lowndes' rum firm at 2s 5½d. Sales of Lamb's for the week total 14 hogsheads and 41 quarters. Quarter-casks are in demand for country trade. In whiskies fair sales are reported of Burke's three-star Irish, John Jameson and Sons', bulk and case; 10 quarters Williams's bulk, and also trade sales Three-crown, Bulloch Lade's, Caton's, Rob Roy, Robertson's, and Thom and Cameron's. Sales totalling 30 cases Gilbey's dry gin were mentioned, 250 cases Wolfe's schnapps, 400 cases Usher's S.B. whisky, and 200 cases O.V.G. Wines generally are dull of sale, but there are signs of approaching improvement.

Kerosene has continued in active demand, and sales totalling fully 3000 cases have been made to-day ex Thurland Castle, the brands mentioned being Snowflake, House Light, Aurora, Evening Star, and Gem. It was rumoured that another of the overdue New York ships was off the coast this morning, but up to the time of writing this had not been positively confirmed. In any case the market is likely to be strong for some time, as there is a great shortage to be made up before storekeepers again hold their usual stocks, and most of the oil to arrive has already passed into second hands. Bonded stocks are returned to-day at 13,920 cases, imports into bond during the week having been nil, and issues 1812 cases. Bonded stocks last week were 15,732 cases, and this time last year 20,755 cases. Sales totalling 24 casks whale oil at 2s 1d were mentioned, also 10 cases cotton-seed oil at 4s 6d. Linseed oil was quiet; castor oil also without movement. China oil, arrive Memnon, offering at 2s 10½d in parcels. Stower's tattoo oil a little firmer at 2s 11½d to 3s.

Jute goods were unchanged. Woolpacks had some small business at 1s 7d to 1s 7½d, but the bulk of the season's requirements is now supplied. In cornsacks the sale of 100 bales, arrive Darius, was reported at 4s 10½d. There is a firm feeling in sacks, owing to an idea that supplies arranged for will prove inadequate to harvest requirements. Whether this will be justified by the event or not will depend upon the weather and the harvest, as well as on the quantity of sacks contracted for in Calcutta. With a general good harvest in all the colonies there can be no doubt that requirements will be much larger than those of last year, but if the season prove unpropitious this forecast might, of course, be upset. At mail dates (Calcutta, September 2) cornsacks were nominal at 4s 8½d, c.f.i., but very few could be bought at that price. The total purchases at that date were estimated to be 30,000 bales for Australia, and 14,000 bales for New Zealand, against 45,000 bales and 21,000 bales respectively shipped last year. Calcutta mail advices possess more interest than usual, on account of the speculation which had taken place in jute, and the vicissitudes of exchange. One market report states:—

> Jute has steadily risen in value since last writing. [illegible]

> Jute Fabrics.—During the early part of the interval the market was quiet, [illegible] sale brings the total settlements, so far as can be ascertained, up to about 45,000 bales. [illegible]

An approximate list of the Bonidana's cargo gives the following:—600 cases castor oil for Sydney, 955 cases for Melbourne, and 1650 half-cases for Adelaide; 2819 bales cornsacks for Melbourne, 720 for Sydney, and 1423 bales for Adelaide; 85 bales bran bags for Melbourne, 270 bales bran bags, ore bags, and other bags, for Sydney.

Chemicals had some attention, and the following sales were noted:—Caustic soda, ton lots, £14; bicarbonate of soda, ton lots, £9 5s; cream of tartar, jars, small sales at 13d; of liquid [illegible] a few tons were sold at £8 5s; fair parcels whiting, to arrive, placed at 52s 6d; 200oz. strychnine sold at 3s; ½-ton bluestone at £19. Resin continues very scarce, and for the limited supplies obtainable £10 per ton is asked.

Galvanised iron moves slowly at unaltered prices. Small sales Blackwell were mentioned at £18 12s 6d, and of Davies's Crown £18 2s 6d to £18 15s. Bar iron is inclined to be firmer, and is quoted £8 10s to £8 15s. At the former price some business was noted. The price quoted for shoeing iron was £10. Some sizes are scarce, and command higher prices. Wire nails in parcels had some attention at 12s 6d; for small lots 10-gauge 13s was paid. Fencing wire, Nos. 8 and 10, had some small business at unaltered prices. For pig lead, five-ton lots, £10 12s 6d was paid. A few cases Selector axes were sold at 44s; BHA shears at 33s to 35s 6d; 150 boxes I.C. coke tinplates at 14s 3d. For barbed wire £12 15s was quoted. In many lines of hardware inconvenience is being caused by the non-arrival of the New York ships now overdue.

The Customs revenue received to-day amounted to £6002. The principal items were:—

> Spirits, £[illegible]; wine, sparkling, [illegible] Total, £6002.

THE EXPORT MARKET.

Auction sales of tallow, hides, and sheepskins were held to-day. Tallow showed a decided advance in sympathy with the improvement which has taken place in the London market. Prime heavy hides were also in better demand. Prime sheepskins maintained last week's prices, but faulty descriptions were weaker.

At Darling Harbour to-day 6493 bales of wool were manifested; 1131 arrived from the Hunter, and 1790 same to hand yesterday at Newcastle.

COMMERCIAL TELEGRAMS.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.)

NEWCASTLE, FRIDAY.

It is satisfactory to report that a slight improvement has taken place in the export of coal to the west coast of South America. This has been for many years one of our best outlets for coal, and it is gratifying to see that in spite of the competition of Japan and other sources buyers still retain their faith in Newcastle coal. There is still a possibility that, with the co-operation of labour and capital, the position which our staple industry has hitherto so long and so profitably maintained will be renewed. It is clear that, unless labour to a certain extent succumbs to the inevitable, trade will be lost. The present rates of freight are:—Hongkong, 9s; Manila, 11s 6d; Ilo Ilo, 11s 6d; Singapore, steam, 7s 6d; San Francisco, 13s; San Diego, 13s 6d; San Pedro, 13s 6d; Honolulu, 14s 6d; Valparaiso, for orders, 13s 6d to 14s 6d; Mauritius, 12s; Mazatlan, 14s; Guayaquil, 14s; Panama, 14s; Java, Haiphong, Amoy, Chefoo, Amboyna, Amoy, Padang, Macassar, Penang, Colombo, nominal.

The export of coal for the week was as follows:—Victoria, 11,369 tons; Tasmania, 1120; South Australia, 3420; India, 1400; New Zealand, 9130; Honolulu, 781; Chili, 4144; Queensland, 266; total, 34,463 tons. Other exports were—New Zealand, 3271 bags [illegible]; Melbourne, 422 bales wool; London, 2722 bales wool; Adelaide, 280 tons coke. 4011 bales of wool arrived from the country during the week, bringing the total receipts to date up to 13,736 bales, being an increase on the corresponding period of last year of 4237 bales.

The steamer Port Chalmers sailed on the 29th instant with 2722 bales wool for the November sales. The ship Thirlmere is now loading for the January sales, and will sail early next month.

Rates are quoted ⅜ and ½ for steamers; ⅜ and ⅞ for sailers.

Frozen Meat.—The steamer Port Chalmers took away 13,374 carcases and 3105 haunches of mutton. The Morayshire will be the next steamer, and will take about 17,000 carcases of mutton.

Business in the produce market has been on the whole fair for the past week. Flour, bran, pollard, and potatoes have perhaps had most attention. Onions, too, have been moving freely. Maize is a trifle easier at 3s 5d to 3s 6d, and there is a tendency for lower rates. Potatoes have declined, and as supplies are coming forward freely from different sources, lower prices may be looked for. The present quotations are £4 10s to £5 for country kinds, and £5 10s to £5 15s for New Zealands. Flour is steady at £8 12s 6d to £8 17s 6d for both New South Wales and Victorian roller, the former being in most request. Bran and pollard are cheaper, and this to some extent accounts for the increased demand ruling. Prices for both are £1 3s to £1 5s. Onions are unaltered at £6 15s to £7. Cape barley is neglected at 3s 3d to 3s 6d. Bacon commands better prices, and factory-cured realises 5½d to 6d; other cures, 4d to 4½d. Butter, as was expected, came down in prices, and ruling quotations for best creamery are 9½d in kegs, and 10d in prints. Cheese goes off steadily at 3½d to 4d. Chaff is in fair request, and best lines of imported are selling at 72s 6d to 75s. Oats are dull at 2s 9d to 2s 10d. Wheat is in good demand at 3s 3d to 3s 4d.

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

Wheat, 2s 11½d, 3s, with more offering; maize, 2s 9½d, nominal. There is good inquiry for bright yellows and brown sugars. 350 quarter-chests of teas and 150 chests of Ceylons sold up to 8d. Currants active, 4½d, 5d. Sultanas active, to 5½d. Cornsacks, 4s 11½d, 5s. Branbags, 3s 11½d, 4s. Woolpacks, 1s 10d, 1s 11½d. 800 boxes of Schiedam candles sold at 7¼d. Castor oil weak, 2s 8d. Small sales of Oregon, £5 to £5 5s.

A very limited business was done in the Stock and Share Market to-day, dealers showing a disinclination to operate till after to-morrow, when several of the banks balance for the half-year. Among investment stocks, full late prices ruled for Broken Hill Water Supply and Mutual Stores. Silverton Tramway sold rather higher, to 24s 9d; while Melbourne Tramway continued very dull, some small lots changing hands at 9s 3d to 9s 9d, with a seller at the latter rate. Debentures were without a reported sale, but Metropolitan Gas were again taken at £7 17s.

The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the Australian Alliance Assurance Company was held to-day. Mr. W. Smith, chairman of the directors, presided. The report stated that the surplus on the year's transactions amounted to £23,448. The directors proposed to pay a dividend for the half-year at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum on the company's paid-up capital and a cash bonus of 2s 6d per share, leaving a balance, £26,722, at the credit of the profit and loss account, to be carried forward to next year's account.

BRISBANE, FRIDAY.

The steamer Burwah has sailed with the following cargo:—88 cases pines, 2 cases cucumbers, 14 cases 72 bunches bananas, 1665 bags sugar, 17 cases fruit.

ADELAIDE, FRIDAY.

Wheat, 3s, 3s 1d, gross weight on trucks at Port Adelaide; 2s 11d at outports. The flour market is steady and quiet. Quotations are unaltered. Bran and pollard unchanged.

PRODUCE INWARDS.

NOWRA, FRIDAY.

The exports from the river for the week ending yesterday included 189 kegs butter, 35 barrels fish, 40 sides bacon, 18 cases eggs, and 10 casks tallow.

GOULBURN, FRIDAY.

Four hundred and forty-one bags of potatoes, weighing 39 tons 13cwt., were forwarded to Sydney to-day.

THE LONDON WOOL MARKET.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, AUG. 25.

London presents nothing in the way of business to associate it with the vast trade of the wool industry, and more especially as the central market for that article.

At most but a few inquiries have been made for samples, which more often results in nothing more than samples being sent. At no previous interval between the series has there been, perhaps, less wool sold. Holders are placing a good deal of confidence in the fact that the supplies are now almost certain to be exceptionally small for the series, and would not care to disturb their parcels unless a tempting price was offered. What hungry buyers there are, and they are few, there is no disposition to offer anything more than late auction rates, and not always that considering the unsettled state of the coal industry. Hence, between the two opinions, there is nothing done in the way of business.

Outside London there is little to lead one to expect much change in an upward direction. Looking beyond the seas, America just now presents a most pitiable aspect; business in most textile trades is at a standstill, and large numbers of mills are stopped. There is some talk of sending wool back to the London market for resale. Sheepskins are likely to be seriously affected in price, as on account of the high price obtainable for the pelts in America, these things sold abnormally high; pelts are now quite unsaleable, and dear at a gift, so that it may be expected that sheepskins will suffer at the next auctions. America therefore halts and waits to see the result of operations in Parliament in respect to the Tariff Act, and sincerely hopes that this may end all their troubles. It remains to be seen whether it will.

The home worsted trade betokens quiet conditions in the near future. Prices are just steady; in the sorts said to be running low in stock there is firmness. There are not very large quantities of common 60s tops obtainable. The consumption of these has been very large since last London auctions, and they have met with a ready sale week by week. This fact should be welcome news to holders of broken wool and pieces of every description, and it may be anticipated that prices next series will rule firm for this class of the fibre. There is a steady trade in the woollen districts, though in particular sections, where America was an important exporter, business is only slow, and prospects gloomy. The prolongation of the coal dispute is being talked of in a serious mood; those with short supplies, and having to pay high prices, see the destruction of their profits because of increased working expenses.

Continental advices are by no means encouraging to sellers and holders of wool. Things could hardly be worse, or else they are trying to make them bad enough. It should not be forgotten that September series forms a basis upon which to work the early period of the Australian wool season. Most things are apparently helping to establish a low range of prices. It looks gloomy for the new clip of Victorian greasies and the lighter descriptions of New South Wales wools. America will be out of the market evidently the whole season, unless speculators come forward, and there seems scope enough for them, if prices run low, to sustain values and hold for a rise, for rise there is sure to be if America says free wool and woollen material. A watchful eye during the next 12 months may provide a comfortable bed for the future.

THE PRODUCE MARKETS.—FRIDAY.

TRADE IN SUSSEX-STREET.

The whole of the week just passed has been of unexampled quietness. So small has been the business transacted that it has been extremely difficult to gauge the market accurately. Several lines, however, are lower. Of these potatoes were the most important, and in them the fall was most pronounced. Opening at the beginning of the week at £6 for prime Circular Heads, to-day it was difficult to get 10s below that figure. In New Zealand and locals the decline has been corresponding. This was the result partly of the hot weather causing deterioration in stocks, and partly because of the increased supplies forward. The little demand which was experienced for maize last week at 3s 6d has now almost entirely disappeared, and what few transactions take place are only the result of absolute and immediate necessity. [illegible]

To-day's business was very small, and no quotable change in prices occurred. The fact that Monday is a holiday tends to still further contract the volume of trade.

THE INTERCOLONIAL INVESTMENT COMPANY, Limited (Established 1885),

THE FIVE PER CENT. DEBENTURE INSURANCE.

If it be true that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, the great American insurance company, the Mutual Life of New York, has cause to be satisfied [illegible]

Thus far the policy has secured insurance, investment, and trusteeship. Should the assured survive to reach the first distribution period, he can convert the instrument into an endowment for his own benefit. Circumstances may have changed. The nominee may no longer stand in need of the provision made on her behalf, or the assured may himself require the accrued funds. He has, therefore, the option of surrendering the debenture for its value in cash, or, if still prosperous, he may retain it in force, continually increased in bulk by bonus additions.

That a scheme which provides for so many of the contingencies of life, and overcomes such numerous difficulties connected with secure investment and trusteeship, should find imitators is hardly surprising. The Review, a well-known financial journal published in London, in its issue of August 16, devotes some columns to a comparison of the provisions of the Five per Cent. Debenture of the Mutual Life of New York with the family trust investment policy of the Standard Life Assurance Company, a leading Scotch office. Says the Review:—"We have always held that the advent of foreign assurance companies would put British insurance companies on their mettle, and we welcome the adoption by the Standard of the ideas of the Mutual of New York with acclamation." It shows that the Standard office, the Review adds, "is smart enough to know a good thing when it sees it." The plan put forward by the Standard is less liberal than that of the Mutual Life of New York, inasmuch as it only professes to concede an income of 3½ per cent. per annum, save at premium rates considerably higher than those of the American company. Still it is a distinct attempt at imitation. There are not wanting signs of similar efforts being made by Australian life insurance institutions in the early future. The game at "follow my leader," once initiated, is sure to attract an increasing band of players. So far as the public is concerned, however, policies involving trusteeship can only become popular when the position of the company offering them is rendered impregnable by a long and unimpeachable record and the possession of abundant assets.

TRADES' MOVEMENTS.

EIGHT-HOUR DEMONSTRATION.

The final meeting of the general committee selected by the various labour organisations to make arrangements for the annual eight-hour procession and demonstration was held in the Trades' Hall last evening. Mr. Frank Brennan (chairman) presided, and about 100 delegates, including Messrs. Bavister and Danahey, Ms.L.A., representing the 31 labour unions participating in the celebration, were present.

On the motion of Mr. Danahey, M.L.A., it was resolved that as Bridge-street is blocked the route of the procession should be from the corner of Bent and Macquarie streets, where the societies will assemble, along Macquarie-street, down Bridge-street to Phillip-street, along Phillip-street to the Circular Quay, and thence along George-street to the railway station.

It was resolved to invite Messrs. Schey, Rae, and M'Gowen, Ms.L.A., and the Rev. George Walters to occupy seats on the platform on the occasion of the drawing of the art union, which will take place within a week of the demonstration, in order that they may supervise the drawing in the interest of the public.

The police authorities wrote stating that the request of the committee in reference to the telling off of a body of police for Rosehill would be complied with.

The sum of £10 was voted for the entertainment of visitors, and a considerable amount of routine business was transacted.

DRINKING FOUNTAINS FOR CABMEN.

At a meeting of the Licensed Drivers' Union, held at the Trades' Hall last evening, Mr. J. Downey moved,—"That the secretary of this union communicate with the Water and Sewerage Board for the purpose of endeavouring to secure the erection of inexpensive drinking fountains on the various cab ranks of the city and suburbs." He said that the suggestion would not be expensive, and would be of incalculable benefit to cabmen. What he proposed was that at the different ranks an inch water-pipe should be attached to the gas lamps to be used by a thumb-tap. This small concession would prevent an immense amount of drinking, which unfortunately was only too common amongst many of their number. The motion was unanimously agreed to.

CUMBERLAND BUILDING, LAND, AND INVESTMENT COMPANY.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Cumberland Building, Land, and Investment Company, Limited, was held in the company's office, Parramatta, yesterday afternoon. Mr. F. Beames occupied the chair. The report stated that the directors had to announce a loss on the year's working. The loss, however, was but little more than half that of last year, and, excluding the cost of the special audit (£150), was much less than half. The management expenses, pure and simple, have been reduced from, in 1891-2, £618 10s, to, in 1892-3, £385 16s 6d, and as greater economy is now practised a further reduction might reasonably be expected, and it was confidently hoped that, for the next year, the profits would balance the expenses. The balance-sheet showed:—Dr.: To capital, less calls unpaid, £29,587; amounts received by forfeiture of shares, £500; saving bank, fixed deposits, bank overdraft, and accrued interest, £17,756 19s 9d; salaries due, £16 16s 8d; suspense account, £42 16s; total, £47,903 12s 5d. Cr.: By landed property, £24,467 0s 1d; balance due by mortgagors and on land, £22,002 2s 3d; less estimated losses thereon, £1400; sundry debtors, £24 4s; agency account, £31 9s 8d; cash in hand, £100 14s 7d; office fittings and furniture, £121 1s 10d; books, stationery, &c., £25; balance at debit of profit and loss account, £2532; total, £47,903 12s 5d. Profit and loss account showed a debit of £1795 6d 2d, exclusive of £1500 reserve fund written off; interest on savings bank and fixed deposits and bank overdraft, £1550 2s 5d; management expenses, £535 16s 6d; total debit, £4070 5s 1d. Credit showed—By interest, £1499 1s 5d; rents, profit on land sales, and sundries, £39 3s 8d; leaving a debit balance of £2532. Mr. R. H. De Low referred to the fact that the report did not bear the signatures of the directors. The chairman said that, so far as he was concerned, he would not attach his signature to any document that he did not personally know all about the contents. After an acrimonious discussion, the report was adopted. The election of two directors, in lieu of Messrs. A. Gee and J. Paull, was proceeded with, and Messrs. Jas. Paull and R. H. De Low were elected. A resolution that it be a suggestion to the directors that the expenses of management be reduced to £100 per annum was rejected. Messrs. G. Coates, jun., and J. G. Fyall were re-elected auditors.

PYRMONT BRIDGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Notwithstanding the various rules which have been laid down for the regulation of traffic over this structure, I notice that the majority of drivers of vehicles still persist in travelling, as heretofore, at a furious rate over the bridge. The regulations having been made, I consider it the duty of the Engineer-in-Chief to appoint officers to see that they are duly observed. I am, &c., FRED. NASH.

NEWS BY THE MAIL.

NOTES FROM VARIOUS SOURCES.

Particulars with regard to the recent serious conflict, resulting in the deaths of 14 people and many injuries which occurred between the Italians and Frenchmen employed at Aigues Mortes, show that the trouble arose under these circumstances. Every year up to the present French workmen had been in the habit of working first for a salt company at Mourgues for a short time, after which they proceeded in a body to the Peccais salt works, where they were taken at once. This year, however, the Frenchmen were told at the latter works that they were not wanted, as some 600 Italian workmen had been engaged to work at much lower wages. Some 150 out of the body of 800 French labourers were, however, taken on by the Peccais Company. A number of Italian workmen attacked the French labourers with stones and shovels. The gendarmes arrived in time to prevent the 150 Frenchmen being massacred by their 450 Italian aggressors. To avenge this attack the Frenchmen in a body then attacked the Italians. The French, now a veritable army, assembled to the number of 500 men in the streets of Aigues-Mortes, carrying every weapon, from pickaxes to firearms and bludgeons. In vain the Mayor, the Prefects, and the Procureur sought to calm them. The police tried to bar the way, and were swept aside. The Italians also were armed, but they were much inferior in number. Some frightful hand-to-hand fights ensued. Whenever an Italian escaped he was hunted like a rat, and done to death. The neighbouring houses and the hospitals became full of the wounded. A company of soldiers and 50 mounted men of the artillery arrived from Nimes, and another train brought more soldiers, and these troops set quickly about isolating the French and the Italians. Many of the Italians had taken to the houses, and 50 of them shut themselves up in a baker's shop, where they were protected by the soldiers. Those who were the least wounded were immediately sent off by train to Nimes, and thence to Marseilles, where they were given in charge of the Italian Consul. Even at the last moment at the railway station some terrible scenes occurred. When the news of the conflict reached Italy great excitement was manifested. In Rome bodies of working men simultaneously left work and formed processions with draped banners, intending to march through the streets in solemn protest against the unpunished "assassination" of their brethren in France. Their passage was opposed by troops, who, in cases where they offered resistance, confronted them with fixed bayonets. The Piazza Colonna, the Chamber, and the French Embassy were surrounded by troops. Crowds of labouring men assembled and shouted, "Down with France" and "Viva la Guerra." A telegram, signed by a large number of citizens, was sent direct to the King, to the following effect:—"To your Majesty, the jealous custodian of the honour of Italy, the undersigned Italians turn confidently, in this moment, in which the national sentiment feels itself offended by acts which wound the dignity of our country as well as the sentiment of human brotherhood."

Prince Bismarck delivered a remarkable speech on Sunday (20th August) to some 700 natives of Thuringia who visited him at Kissingen. He reminded his hearers (according to a report in the London Daily Telegraph) that they had come to him in a week of grand historical souvenirs—referring to the fighting around Metz 23 years ago. The national unity of Germany was then achieved. The sense of national unity was nothing material, that could be eaten or drunk, or converted into money, but nevertheless it was estimated at a high value. "Since the days of Louis XIV. a wedge had been shoved between North and South Germany by the French advance to Metz and Strasburg, so that it had become possible for the French to be in Stuttgart quicker than the North Germans. By the victories of Weissenburg and Woerth the alliance between North and South was secured. We have reconquered this bulwark, but we cannot retain it without unity. So let us remain united. The times are gone by when the French could think that a campaign against Germany was a sort of pleasure trip to Berlin. France knows well enough what we are made of. People should not grumble at what exists, and carp and criticise in order to replace what has been created by something else. I refer to the semi-official personages who want 'a united State,' this State being Prussia. The National Liberals of 1848 thought out the plan of a single State like this. They did not take into account the feelings, habits, and thoughts of the nation, or the power of the dynasties, and in this way they created for themselves the greatest enemies. When I brought about the unity of the Empire I tried to retain all that was in any way compatible with it. The great demonstrations in my honour outside Prussia are a proof to me of the correctness of my policy. I say to these Prussians who are not contented with it, 'You are the Particularists; you do not know Germany outside of Prussia.' (Great applause.) That is why I am rendered anxious in my old age when I see how the basis of the Constitution is being undermined in order to create an Imperial central power. Do you think it would be an advantage if, instead of the eight Princes in Thuringia, an Imperial Oberpresident were to reside at Erfurt? (No. (Loud applause.) Germans cling to their dynasties, and the dynasties have shown that they cling to Germany. That has a positive value, and we must foster it. The accusations made against me that I used to hold a different opinion are pure inventions. I am also accused of opposing the Government. I am not afraid of this charge. If I wanted to agitate all I need do is to make a tour through Germany, hold public meetings, and publish far and wide in print what I thought of their measures. But I have never dreamt of doing so. When, however, political friends come to see me I do not dissemble. I did not learn to lie, even as a diplomatist. I look upon a visit like yours as a sort of silent request that I should speak out my opinion on men and things. I regret extremely the separation of the Chancellorship from the Presidentship of the Prussian Ministry. The functions of the administrative officials of the Empire, of whom the Chancellor is the first, are simply executive, and have no right to co-operate in legislation. Within the limits of legislation neither his Majesty the Kaiser nor the Chancellor has a right to attempt more than publish the laws voted by the Federal Council and the Reichstag. The Kaiser has no vote in the Federal Council, but only the King of Prussia. Therefore it is necessary that nothing should be brought before the Federal Council that has not previously received the consent of the Prussian Ministry of State. The Constitution cost enough blood and lives, and was an exceedingly difficult work. All were not satisfied, but they gave their consent to it. When people attempt to shake it I feel anxious in my old age. I am no longer responsible, of course, but I should feel guilty of cowardice if I kept my peace when things are done which imply a crumbling to pieces of the Constitution. It is quite natural that the leading personages of the new system are not so well versed in the situation and feeling of Germany and foreign countries as obtained in the old system, under the old Kaiser, after an experience of 40 years in the service of diplomatic and Parliamentary life." The prince then defended himself for criticising bills introduced by the present Government, insisting that he had the right of every other citizen to do so. He did not intend to let anyone deprive him of his right as long as he lived. Before retiring Prince Bismarck apologised for speaking at such length, adding that, when a man's heart is full, he must out with what he has to say, and that he had nowadays no connection whatever with any newspaper. The "Hoch" he asked his audience to shout was to the eight Princes of Thuringia, those of Weimar as well as the others.

The director of the great Lick Observatory in California, Mr. Holden, points out how the practical turn of the Americans is illustrated by the way in which they have applied astronomy to the uses of daily life. Their public lands are laid out in rectangular plots; every important seaport has its time-ball to regulate the chronometers of ships; all railways and most towns have accurate time signals furnished by observatories; local times are practically abolished, and standard time, which is nothing but the exact Greenwich minute and second, with the hour decreased by five, six, seven, or eight, is universally employed over the whole of the vast territory of the United States. Thousands of local times were changed into standard times over that whole territory in a single day, without the slightest accident or detention, on more than [illegible] miles of railway. Mr. Holden instances a large number of ingenious devices for saving labour or increasing accuracy in making astronomical observations which were invented by Americans. In his opinion, they were largely due to the inventive faculty of the people being developed by the exceptional difficulties of the early settlers.

The Pope was in high spirits at the reception he gave on the 20th August to the Cardinals, the members of the Papal Court, and a few nobles. He talked much, recalling many incidents of his past life, and mentioning names and dates without mistake. A phonograph which was presented to him was caused to repeat congratulations offered to him on a former name-day in the voice of a cardinal now deceased. The Pope afterwards spoke into the phonograph a prayer to San Joachim, his patron saint, which was repeated by the instrument quite clearly.

Edison displayed an inventive imagination even in his earliest years, if we are to believe the story told of him by a writer in an American magazine. Astonished at the results of a goose sitting on a nest of eggs, the inventor thought to increase the brood by a device of his own. One day the boy was missed from his usual haunts. Messengers were sent in search of him and found him curled up in a nest he had made in the barn. It was filled with goose and hen eggs, upon which he was sitting trying to hatch them. Edison was more successful in another youthful experiment which he made. His wanderings brought him at 17 years of age to the Cincinnati office of the Western Union, where his absorption in electricity and predictions of his future power confirmed the soubriquet "Luny," which clung to him even until his fame was established. "We have the craziest chap in our office," said the telegraph manager to a Cincinnati editor, "he tries all sorts of queer things. I wouldn't be surprised if he should be great some day. Let me tell you his last prank. We had been annoyed for some time by cockroaches. They infested the sink. They don't now. 'Luny' fixed them. He just ran two parallel wires round the sink, and charged one with negative and the other with positive electricity; bread crumbs were then scattered, and when Mr. Cockroach appeared and put his little feet on the wires, ashes were all that were left to tell the tale."

An extraordinary story is told by the [illegible] Times, which states that Dr. Macgowan has returned to Tien-tsin, bringing with him, among other curious discoveries, some particulars of a race of Manchurian monkeys inhabiting the mountain region of the Great Wall of China. They are said to know how to make pottery; more remarkable still, they are represented as having made extraordinary progress in the art of making wine. A recent edition of the official history of Yungping states that lately a large body of immigrating monkeys passed a certain village in crossing from one mountain to another. The boys of the village clapped their hands and shouted at the spectacle, and the monkeys, being frightened, fled, taking their young in their arms, but dropping in their flight a number of earthenware vessels, some of which would hold a quart. On opening these, the villagers found they contained two kinds of wine, a pink and a green, that had been made from mountain berries. It is affirmed that the monkeys store this liquor for use in the winter, when the water is all frozen. Dr. M'Gowan cites other independent testimonies to similar facts, including a Chinese account of monkeys in Chekiang, who pound fruit in stone mortars to make into wine, and he asks, "Is it likely that all these statements are pure inventions?"

MUNICIPAL ASSOCIATION.

The eleventh annual session of the Municipal Association of New South Wales was concluded at the Town Hall yesterday morning, Mr. W. A. Hutchinson (vice-president) occupying the chair.

Mr. Alderman J. Graham (of Marrickville) moved,—"That a hearty vote of thanks be accorded to his Worship the Mayor of Sydney for his kindness in providing the association with accommodation at the Town Hall both for the annual session and for the monthly meetings."

Mr. Alderman W. H. Simpson (of Waverley) seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

Mr. A. W. Thomson (Mayor of Yass) moved,—"That a cordial vote of thanks be passed to the Railway Commissioners for their kindness in providing railway passes for the country delegates."

Mr. Alderman E. R. Wheeler (of Tenterfield) seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

On the motion of Mr. Alderman E. T. Webb (of Bathurst), seconded by Mr. W. Rigg (Mayor of Newtown), a vote of thanks was passed to the office-bearers and committee of the year just past.

Mr. Alderman Marsden (of Murrumburrah) moved,—"That, in the opinion of this conference, it is advisable for the committee to have printed and forwarded to each municipality the various questions asked by the municipalities and the replies thereto."

Mr. J. G. Griffin (Mayor of Hurstville) seconded the motion, and it was carried.

Some discussion arose about the advisability of enabling municipalities to send a substitute in the event of the Mayor being unable to attend the conference, and it was resolved to alter the rule, which at present reads, "That each municipal council shall annually appoint the Mayor and one additional representative," so as to read "That each municipal council shall annually appoint the Mayor, or in case he cannot attend the council may appoint a substitute and one additional representative."

Mr. Alderman W. H. Daniell (of Bourke) desired to move a resolution urging the necessity of restricting the importation of alien labour, but the chairman said he must rule the matter out of order as it was a political and not a municipal question. Mr. Daniell said the country was being overrun with Afghans, Syrians, Maltese, and Chinese, and they were intermarrying with the white population. This curse would have to be grappled with. He warmly denounced the evil.

This was all the business. A hearty vote of thanks to the chairman closed the session.

BREAKING AND ENTERING.

At the Newtown Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Whittingdale Johnson, S.M., James Cleary, alias Clarke, 43, on remand, was charged with breaking and entering the dwelling-house of William Brown at Edgeware-road, Newtown, on the 15th September, and stealing therein a violin and case value £2[illegible], the property of William Brown.

Constable W. Burr stated that he arrested accused on the 26th instant, and in answer to questions the accused informed witness that he bought the violin and case a month ago from a man on Newtown Bridge.

William Burton, pawnbroker, of Newtown, stated that accused came to his shop about 7.30 o'clock on the evening of the 15th instant and pawned the violin for 6s. Accused said that it was his.

William Brown, painter, residing at Edgeware-road, stated that on the 15th instant, about 1.45 p.m., he securely fastened all the doors and windows, and left home. He shut the front door, but could not swear if he locked it. He returned at about 5 o'clock, and subsequently missed the violin and case (produced).

After further evidence accused reserved his defence, and was committed for trial at the Quarter Sessions on 2nd October. Bail was allowed, himself in £100, and two sureties of £50 each.

ALLEGED INFANTICIDE.

At the Central Police Court yesterday, before Mr. James Giles, S.M., Annie Evans, 22, a domestic servant, was charged with having caused the death of her female child on the 18th instant. It will be remembered that the accused some days ago obtained admission to the Benevolent Asylum on her representation that she was about to be confined, and that subsequently the body of a child was found in her room. The accused was remanded to Darlinghurst until Wednesday next, and the magistrate recommended her for medical treatment in the gaol hospital.

CONVICTIONS AGAINST DAIRYMEN.

In the Summons division of the Central Police Court yesterday, before Mr. G. W. F. Addison, S.M., Inspector Seymour proceeded against a number of dairymen under the provisions of the Adulterated Food Act for having had adulterated milk for sale.

Maurice Costello, of Queen-street, Alexandria, was fined £5, with 5s 6d costs of court, £1 1s complainant's costs, and £1 1s analyst's fees, levy and distress.

Timothy Mulcahy, of Botany, Robert Howe, of Jesson-street, Alexandria, Amos Buckley, of Wilkins-street, Botany, and William Aston, of 106 Cleveland-street, were each fined £2, with 5s 6d costs of Court, and £1 1s analyst's fees in each case, levy and distress.

FILTH AT THE ZOO.

In the Summons division of the Central Police Court yesterday, before Mr. G. W. F. Addison, S.M., Inspector Seymour proceeded against William J. Powell, as superintendent of the Zoological Gardens, for having permitted filth to remain on the premises. Mr. Roberts, sen., appeared for the defence, and, on behalf of the defendant, pleaded guilty. It appears that the complaint made was in reference to that portion of the Gardens where meat is stored for feeding the wild animals. A fine of £1, with 5s 6d costs of court, was imposed.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—Friday, September 29.

In Chambers.—(Before Mr. Justice Foster.)

MARSLAND AND WIFE V. HINSDALE.

Mr. Cohen, instructed by Mr. Montagu, appeared for the defendant and asked for an order impounding money in the hands of the Sheriff pending the determination of the Full Court of the defendant's memorandum for a new trial. Mr. C. B. Stephen, instructed by Messrs. Crick and Meagher, appeared for plaintiffs to oppose the application. In support of the application an affidavit by Mr. Montagu was read stating that the action was one in which the plaintiffs had obtained £1000 damages from defendant as publisher of the Sunday Times on a declaration for libel and slander. A memorandum for a rule nisi had been filed for a new trial or a reduction of damages on the ground that the amount awarded was excessive. Shortly after taxation of costs the plaintiffs' attorney stopped him, and stated that the question of reduction of damages would be considered, and that he would see his clients on Monday, before which time he would take no steps to issue execution without informing deponent of the fact. Contrary to this promise, the plaintiffs' attorney on Monday afternoon, after bank hours and without any notice whatever, levied upon the machinery and plant of Richard Markham Evans and another, proprietors of the Sunday Times, and the Sheriff's officer in charge refused to accept Mr. Evans's open cheque in payment of the verdict, costs, and possession fees. Mr. Evans at considerable inconvenience then obtained and paid cash amounting to £1226 2s 8d, and defendant desired that the Sheriff should be directed not to pay out this amount to plaintiffs or their attorney, as he feared that if the plaintiff obtained the money it would be difficult to obtain a refund of the amount by which the Full Court might reduce the verdict.

Mr. Stephen said he had affidavits in reply; but, as Mr. Cohen wished to obtain an adjournment in order to answer them, he would not use them, but said that the plaintiffs were not unwilling to leave £500 in the Sheriff's hands pending the result of the application for a reduction of damages.

His Honor said he thought that the application was one which ought always to be made to the Judge who tried the case, and there was a full opportunity of doing so before the Chief Justice left on circuit. The application was not made in proper time, or to the proper Judge, and no sufficient grounds had been shown for making the application to him, and it would therefore be dismissed, except so far as the £30 poundage fees were concerned.

Order accordingly.

THOMPSON V. SOUTHERN COAL COMPANY OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

Dr. Sly, instructed by Messrs. Woodward and Fraser, appeared for the plaintiff in support of an application for leave to proceed with the action, notwithstanding that six months had elapsed from the time of the cause of action. Mr. Cohen, instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Co., appeared to oppose the application. The action was one brought by William Thompson, a miner, against the defendant company to recover compensation for injuries received while working in the Corrimal coal mine in the Bulli district. The plaintiff, it appeared, was in charge of some skips hauling coal in the mine, when the horse drawing the skips took a wrong turning and jambed one of the plaintiff's legs against a post and severely injured it. He commenced an action under the Employers Liability Act for damages, but had not given notice as required by the Act within six months. He now applied for leave to proceed on the ground that he was in the hospital for six weeks, and that the manager of the company was aware of the accident at the time it occurred.

His Honor said the point was one of considerable difficulty and novelty, but on the whole he thought he ought to decide in favour of the plaintiff. The object of the Employers Liability Act was to extend, rather than to curtail, the liabilities of employers, and he would construe it as it had been construed in all previous cases. He, however, thought that the decision of the Full Court should have been obtained upon the question.

Application granted, without costs.

In Equity.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice Manning.)

MOLYNEAUX AND ANOTHER V. WILSON.

Mr. Wagner, instructed by Messrs. Johnson, Minter, Simpson, and Co., appeared for the plaintiffs, John Molyneaux and Thomas Adams Kelly, and moved for a decree in default of the appearance of the defendant, Alexander Wilson.

The statement of claim set out that the defendant had been attorney for Mary Wilson Kelly, deceased, and as attorney had received sums of money on her behalf. Miss Kelly had died in Ireland, and the plaintiffs, as executors in her estate, prayed for an account of the money which had come into the defendant's hands as such attorney, and also for an account of the securities in which they had been invested. The defendant, according to an affidavit filed, had not appeared.

A decree was made in the terms of the first prayer, and a declaration as in the second.

THE ANGLO-AUSTRALIAN INVESTMENT, LAND, AND FINANCE COMPANY.

Mr. A. H. Simpson, instructed by Messrs. Johnson, Minter, Simpson, and Co., appeared on behalf of the liquidators of the Anglo-Australian Investment, Land, and Finance Company. This was an application on behalf of the liquidators of the company for an order sanctioning the sale by them to the Anglo-Australian Assets Company, Limited, of the properties of the company comprised in the securities given by the Anglo-Australian Investment Company to the Union Bank of Australia, Limited, at the price and upon the terms mentioned in the affidavit of the liquidators or in the alternative that the Court would determine whether or not the liquidators ought to pay to the bank in part discharge of the bank's debt the sum of £45,600, which was in the hands of the liquidators, arising from calls made in the winding up, on the terms of the bank agreeing to postpone the sale of the properties and assets comprised in the securities, for a period of not less than six months, such payments not to affect the rights and equities of the parties who shall eventually be held entitled to the call moneys, or for such further order the Court should choose to make. It was stated that the bank had advertised to be sold at public auction the properties of the company over which they had mortgage, on 12th October, and that the proposal to sell the properties of the old company to the Assets Company was the result of a meeting of all the debenture-holders held in London.

His Honor made an order empowering the liquidators to sell to the Anglo-Australian Assets Company, the properties and assets of the Anglo-Australian Investment, Land, and Finance Company, in liquidation, comprised in the securities given by that company to the Union Bank of Australia at the price and upon the terms mentioned in paragraphs 2, and 25 of the affidavit of the liquidators dated 27th September, plus the sum of £2000 for the liquidators. Provision being made for the protection of the debenture-holders and general creditors, as mentioned in paragraph 26. Costs were allowed as between solicitor and client.

In Divorce.—(Before Mr. Justice Foster.)

CLARKSON V. CLARKSON.

Mr. Moss appeared for the respondent, and applied for an order directing petitioner to furnish further particulars. Mr. Walker appeared for the petitioner. The object of the application was to have particulars as to the evidence said to have been obtained of some persons who had travelled from Tasmania to Sydney in the same vessel with the respondent and the person named as co-respondent.

The application was dismissed without prejudice to another application.

HOLLAND V. HOLLAND.

On the motion of Mr. Lucas, who appeared for the petitioner, personal service on respondent was dispensed with, and his Honor directed the citation to be advertised three times in the daily papers and once in the Gazette. Issues were settled as marriage, habitual drunkenness, cruelty, and desertion. The hearing was fixed for 2nd November.

SANDS V. SANDS.

On the application of Mr. Arnott, who appeared for the petitioner, the petition was amended by adding the name of a co-respondent.

DECREES MADE ABSOLUTE.

The decrees nisi were also made absolute for the dissolution of the marriage of Ada Margaret Paget and John Paget and Rafael Harcourt Lavers and Lottie Lavers.

METROPOLITAN QUARTER SESSIONS.

FRIDAY.

(Before his Honor Judge Coffey and a jury of 12.)

Mr. W. L. Merewether prosecuted for the Crown.

PERJURY.

The jury in the case of Alfred Garrett, charged with committing perjury before his Honor Judge Murray, after being locked up all night returned into Court with a verdict of guilty. They added a strong recommendation to mercy on the ground that prisoner had not given due consideration to the consequences of his action when in the box. He was remanded for sentence.

SENTENCES.

William Gleeson, who pleaded guilty to two charges of larceny and one of horse-stealing, was sentenced to five years' penal servitude.

John Watson, found guilty of receiving stolen property in conjunction with Angus M'Leod, was ordered three years' imprisonment, with hard labour.

Angus M'Leod, who was convicted of receiving stolen property in conjunction with Watson, and who pleaded guilty to five charges of breaking and entering, one of stealing from a dwelling, and another of stealing from the person, was sentenced to 10 years' penal servitude. His police record showed that he had already served 17 years for various offences.

ACQUITTED.

Albert Edward Stevens, or Severne, was arraigned upon an indictment charging him with attempting to commit an unlawful offence, at Sydney, on the 17th August, 1893.

He was defended by Mr. Charles Bull.

Prisoner pleaded that he had been drinking, and did not know what he did on the night in question. He was given a good character by the police.

The jury returned a verdict of "not guilty," and accused was accordingly discharged.

UTTERING COUNTERFEIT COIN.

Ada Mallon was indicted on a charge that on the 6th September she offered and uttered to one Barua Bartholomeo a piece of counterfeit coin, resembling and apparently intended to resemble a silver coin called a half-crown, well knowing it to be counterfeit.

The Crown case was to the effect that on the night in question accused went to the fruit shop kept by Bartolomeo, and asked for a dozen bananas, tendering a bad half-crown in payment. The fruit-vendor called in a constable, and gave the woman in charge. The accused could give no satisfactory account of how she obtained possession of the coin.

She was found guilty, and sentenced to six months' imprisonment, with light labour, in Darlinghurst Gaol.

ALLEGED ASSAULT.

Frederick Ahlberg was brought up on an indictment charging him with maliciously wounding Simon Peter Weinel, a constable in the police force, on 2nd April of this year. On a second count he was charged with assaulting the said constable, and with beating and otherwise ill-treating him.

He was defended by Mr. Meagher.

The Crown case was to the effect that on the night in question the constable was on duty at Surry Hills, but previous to that occasion he had had on several occasions to move the accused on when standing at the corner of Cooper and Marshall streets. Two hours previously to the time of the assault he had had to remove accused from that corner along with several others. At the time of the assault he was just stepping from the footpath to the roadway, and heard some voice behind him, "What do I care for a policeman?" Just then he was struck by a stone near the region of the ear, and fell. The accused with others came up to him, and, it was alleged, kicked him in the ribs. Accused was not seen to throw the stone, but the constable positively swore that he kicked him.

The defence was that it was a case of mistaken identity, and that the accused was elsewhere at the time of the committal of the offence.

The jury, after a short retirement, found the accused "not guilty," and he was discharged.

POLICE.

At the Central Police Court yesterday Mr. James Giles, S.M., presided. Henry Holland, 38, having neglected to pay the sums of £10 and £5 10s due on orders of the Court for the support of his deserted wife, was ordered to be imprisoned until the orders are complied with. In the Summons Division a large number of persons were fined in sums varying from 10s to £2, with 5s 6d costs in each case, for having loitered on the streets. William Baxter was fined £2 with costs for having driven furiously, and Louis Swanston, having incited a prisoner to resist a constable, was fined £2 and costs. John Devine, licensee of the New Masonic Hall Hotel, was fined £5 with 5s 6d costs of court, levy and distress, or one month's imprisonment, for having kept his hotel open for the sale of liquor on Sundays; and Helene Phillips, licensee of the Star Hotel, was fined £2 with costs, levy and distress, or 14 days' imprisonment, for having sold liquor in her hotel on a Sunday. Joseph Hegarty having given fermented liquor to an aboriginal was ordered to pay a fine of £1 with 4s 10d costs, levy and distress, or seven days' imprisonment.

At the Water Police Court Mr. C. Delohery dealt with the charge cases. William M. Goad, 30, seaman, for absenting himself without leave from the ship Damascus, was sent to gaol for three days. Louis Steel, a boy 12 years of age, who was sentenced the previous day at the Quarter Sessions, for breaking and entering a house at Randwick, to a nominal term of imprisonment, was brought up, by direction of Judge Coffey, on a charge of being a child under the age of 16 years found habitually wandering about the streets with no ostensible lawful occupation, and ordered to be sent on board the Sobraon. The boy's father was ordered to pay 2s a week towards his support. James Watson, 26, plumber, was charged with stealing a waterproof cape, value £1, the property of Frederick John Henry. It appeared that prosecutor went to a warehouse in Dean's-place with a cartload of goods for delivery, and went inside, leaving his waterproof on the top of the goods in the cart. He saw accused jump on to the cart and take the macintosh off, after which he ran away. He was sent to gaol for one month, with hard labour. In the Summons Division, before Mr. G. H. Smithers, D.S.M., Alex. Mackellar, chairman of the committee of the Australian Jockey Club, proceeded against W. Smith, John Sullivan, Jeremiah Sullivan, Michael Donnelly, Walter Madden, and David Dugdale for trespassing upon the Randwick Racecourse during the holding of some races on the 21st September. It appeared that they scaled the fence without having paid for admission. Each defendant pleaded guilty, and was fined 20s, with 26s 6d costs, levy and distress.

At the Glebe Police Court Mr. J. Giles, S.M., presided. Sidney Buckley, 15, was charged with stealing, in company with others, one pigeon, value 1s 6d, the property of Robert Kidd, of Toxteth-street, Glebe, on 13th September. The evidence showed that the lad, with two others, was seen to run out of Mr. Kidd's back premises, one of them carrying a pigeon. They were chased, and subsequently the accused was arrested. He was sentenced to seven days' hard labour.

At the Newtown Police Court, Mr. Whittingdale Johnson, S.M., presided. Ann M'Cardell and Robert M'Dowall respectively were fined 20s, or seven days' imprisonment, for drunkenness. The latter was also fined 40s, or 14 days' imprisonment, for using bad language. On the Summons side, George Nuttle was fined 20s, or seven days' imprisonment, for using bad language. Neal Collins was fined £5, levy and distress, for illegal burial in the Petersham Cemetery, in contravention of the bylaws of the borough. Several parents were fined for not sending their children to school. Thomas Budd was fined 20s, or 21 days' imprisonment, for assaulting Newton Singleton, and a similar penalty for an assault upon James Singleton. There was a dispute in connection with some work which the defendant was doing for the complainants when the alleged assault took place. James Hamilton and William Cinnamon were fined respectively £2, and ordered to pay £5 damages or four months' imprisonment, and £1, and to pay £2 or two months' imprisonment, for stealing in company turf from the Haymarket Permanent Land, Benefit, and Investment Company's property at Marrickville. A number of minor cases were dealt with.

At the Redfern Police Court, before Mr. Whittingdale Johnson, S.M., L. Adams, Mary Hume, and Mary Saber, respectively, were fined 5s, or to be imprisoned till the rising of the Court, for drunkenness. J. Hunter, 14, was sentenced to six hours' imprisonment, for stealing a penny from another boy named M. Ferrier.

At the Parramatta Police Court, before Messrs. F. W. Edwards, P.M., and R. Harper, J.P., Benjamin Simes, a young man, was charged with burglariously breaking and entering the dwelling-house of Mr. J. J. Brenan on the night of the 8th of October, and stealing a lady's gold watch and other property, valued at £45. Accused was arrested at Newcastle, when he told the arresting constable that he was a dealer, and that the bags in his possession contained scents and small goods that he had brought to Newcastle for sale. In one portmanteau a six-chambered revolver and a dark lantern were found. A number of articles, such as knives, forks, &c., were also found in his possession, and identified by Mr. Brenan as his property. He valued the articles at £30. A watch which had been stolen was not recovered. Accused said he was perfectly innocent, and reserved his defence. He was committed to take his trial at the next Quarter Sessions. Simes was also charged with burglariously entering the house of T. H. Houghton, Granville, on the 1st September, and stealing articles of plate valued at £40. Mr. Houghton identified a number of articles found in the possession of accused as his property. Accused reserved his defence, and was committed for trial. Edward Cowling, with a record of 23 previous convictions, was ordered to pay £[illegible] and costs, in default three months in gaol, for using bad language.

Thousands of Miles in India.—"For many years I have found Eno's 'Fruit Salt' of the utmost value in the hot and dry seasons, also in the monsoons. I have travelled some thousands of miles in India during the past 15 years, and in all the various changes of climate I have found Eno's 'Fruit Salt' the most refreshing beverage I could get, especially after long heavy marches and other fatiguing duties to which the British soldier has of late been exposed. I have always been able to keep a supply of the 'Fruit Salt' on hand, and could obtain it on most stations." Caution. Examine each bottle and see that the capsule is marked "Eno's Fruit Salt." Without it you have had some worthless imitation imposed. Sold by all chemists. Prepared only at Eno's "Fruit Salt" Works, Pomeroy-street, New Cross-road, London, England, by J. C. Eno's Patent.—[Advt.]
